Radar Gear Repaired Via Radio by Medford Airman

A Medford airman from the 551st Airborne early warning and control at Otis Air Force base, Mass., repaired the intricate radar gear aboard an aircraft via radio recently.

The aircraft was on station several hundred miles off the Atlantic coast when the radar gear began to malfunction. The aircraft called the base advising that it would be unable to return to Otis for repairs or replacement due to a heavy fuel load and requested further instructions.

Lt. Frank Trammell, wing operations center officer, contacted Airman Thomas Wright, radar repairman for the 551st wing who was going off duty. Wright is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Wright, 1857 Minear rd., Medford.

Wright's instructions for repairing the radar gear were relayed to personnel aboard the aircraft via high frequency radio, and repairs made enabled the aircraft to stay on station and continue its mission of airborne early warning.

Wright is a 1953 graduate of Medford High school, and has been in the Air Force about two years. His wife is the former Miss Sharon Tyler of Medford.

Most of the businessmen members have nothing to do with fish nowadays but they served it anyhow, despite the fact that Mr. Truman can take it or leave it alone.

"They heard I didn't like fish very much," Mr. Truman said. "They told me that by the time lunch is finished I would now on."

Just in case, beefsteak also was on the menu.

Mr. Truman did not attend. Women are barred from the Fishmongers' Hall by tradition.
