NAACP Convention Schedule to End In Bay City Today
San Francisco — (U.P.) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People held final business sessions Saturday as its 47th annual convention neared the end. The 800 delegates who attended the six-day convention will close the session Sunday with a mass meeting at which Executive Secretary Roy Wilkins will deliver the closing address. Top Republican and Democratic spokesmen squared off before the Negro leaders Friday night in a high-voltage, open debate on a hot election year issue — civil rights. Rep. Sidney R. Yates (D-Ill), chosen by Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler to represent his party, charged most members of the GOP with working with "reactionary Dixiecrats" to defeat civil rights legislation in Congress. Hugh Scott, former Pennsylvania Republican representative to Congress accused the Democrats of "20 years of deceit, doubletalk and demagoguery." Yates told the delegates that it was the Democratic party under the late Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman that "brought American minorities closer to their goal of equality than any other influence," despite GOP opposition. Scott, former chairman of the Republican National Committee, said the GOP was the "first political party in this century" to register a "genuinely good record" in civil rights. He said while President Eisenhower leads the fight against "second-class citizenship," the Democrats remain "hopelessly split" on the civil rights issue.
