The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Sexual Responsibility of Women

Maxine Davis, a wise and thoughtful journalist, has just published a splendid book on the sexual responsibility of women. She writes for brides and for all those many married women who know that the spiritual joy which they had hoped would come with sexual fulfillment is missing from their lives. Many, when they married, thought that happiness would be given them along with "their breakfast or a winter coat," but it wasn't.

Walter Alvarez

Most arm-chair philosophers have preached that the responsibility for success or failure of a couple's sexual life rests squarely on the man. Especially in Victorian England it was assumed that women should never enjoy sex, and should not show either interest in it or desire for it. For a woman to enjoy sex suggested that she was immoral or else not as good as she should be. This outmoded idea still is held by some bridegrooms.

It was about time that someone said clearly that the wife, too, has much responsibility for making a couple's sex-life happy. Many a marriage goes on the rocks because the woman has failed to be interested in pleasing or satisfying her husband. She may have been unaffectionate or uninterested, or interested only on rare occasions. This does not mean that the woman was to be blamed. When she married, she may not have been in love with the man. Her mother may have said, "You'll learn to love him," or "You must do your duty." But in many instances, the woman was selfish. No matter how good and kind her husband was, she would not put herself out for him, and often this left him hurt and humiliated and angry. From talking to hundreds of women in the office, my impression is that most frigid women were born that way. Many were like their cold, undemonstrative mother who, perhaps, never caressed her children or cuddled them or told them she loved them. Thousands of such women will do their wifely duties well enough, but they will never reach out to pat their husband's head, and they will not bother to kiss him when he comes home after his day's work.

Affectionate With Another

As Miss Davis says, some women are frigid with one husband and affectionate and sexually adequate with another. The moral then is — do not marry an unloved man. "Never marry a man whose touch on your arm you do not like; along that way lies a lifetime of suffering and loneliness." Few women are so lonely as the unhappily married.

At last, we find a writer sensible enough to say that, on the honeymoon, the bride may have to be the one who is kind and patient and understanding. She may need much tact in encouraging a bashful or inhibited or fearful husband who, at first, many not do very well. Brides should know, also, that they may have to be disappointed at first. Many a woman does not become sexually adequate until she has been married for months or even a year or two.

Miss Davis has a helpful chapter on pre-menstrual tension and depression. Many marriages go on the rocks because, although the wife is angelic for most of the month, for a few days she is "a devil not fit to live with." She may then be so depressed and blue that she wants to cry, or she may be so tense and irritable that she wants to scream. Her husband may then be fortunate if she just ignores him. Too often she will want to jump on him, and blame him for all her troubles. After two or three days, she comes out of the spell contrite and apologetic; but damage has been done. With each one of these spells, the husband may lose a little more of his love, until eventually all is gone.

Ways of Treatment

The writer of the book speaks of the things doctors try at these times in the way of treatment, such as cutting down on the amount of salt and water ingested, but I do not know if any treatment helps much.

In her final chapter, Miss Davis points out why in later life some men who have had a rather hum-drum marriage become rejuvenated by another and younger woman who is much more affectionate and knows more about being loving. As many writers have pointed out, when a marriage breaks up in this way it is not necessarily due to the wiles of "the other woman." Usually what has happened first has been a loosening-up of the bonds that tied the man to a none-too-loving wife. The marriage was a failure before the other woman appeared on the scene, and this other woman took the man mainly because his love for his wife was largely gone.

Many women past 50 lose out with a still-virile husband because, with the menopause and their lessening of desire, they begin to slide out of their "marital duties."

Dr. Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnose by mail.

Neon Sign Workers On Strike at Portland

Portland — (U.P.) — Some 40 neon sign company employees at nine Portland plants are off the job over a disputed new contract.

Pickets appeared at the nine companies where the sign hangers and tube benders were employed. The old contract with employers expired at midnight last Saturday.

A union spokesman for the striking electrical workers, members of local number 48, said employees were asking a 20-cent hourly pay boost from the current $2.95 hourly scale.

Buddy Baer Charged With Molesting Girls

Van Nuys, Calif.—(U.P.)—Former heavyweight boxer Jacob H. (Buddy) Baer faced charges today of molesting three girls aged 10 to 14.

The city attorney issued a warrant for the arrest of Baer Monday after three girls identified the fighter turned actor from photographs. Police said Baer impersonated a police officer and asked the girls to get into his car.

City Attorney Dan Whiteside said Baer also was charged in a misdemeanor complaint with being a "lewd and dissolute person."

Salem — (U.P.) — Dudley Sitton of Ontario has been reappointed to the State Potato Commission.

COSTLY WARM-UP

Detroit—(U.P.)—A judge fined Frank M. Powell Jr., 42, $150 Monday on a drunk driving charge because he tried to warm up after a cold swim. Powell said he had dived into a cold lake to rescue his dog who he thought couldn't swim and afterward he went to a bar to warm up by drinking two shots of whisky and three beers.

Auto Workers Pledge Steel Strike Support

Detroit—(U.P.)—The giant United Auto Workers Union has pledged its support to the striking United Steel Workers Union.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther wrote USW officials that "the steel workers have been forced to strike by the irresponsible anti-social attitude of the steel industry magnates."

Reuther said the "arrogant refusal" of the steel industry to "prolong the contract" left steel workers "with no choice but to withhold their labor until management comes to its senses."

HARD ON SONG WRITERS

New York—(U.P.)—Automation rocked Tin Pan Alley Monday. Executives of the Burroughs Corp. Electro Data division disclosed they had succeeded in making a $250,000 electronic brain write songs at the rate of 1,000 an hour.
