

Ford Foundation Checks Mailed to Oregon Colleges

Portland — (U.P.) — The Ford Foundation is mailing checks to 10 privately supported colleges and universities in Oregon this week. The checks are the first payment under the foundation's program to help raise faculty salaries.

Institutions in Oregon scheduled to receive their checks this week are Linfield college, McMinnville, $95,000; Marylhurst college, Marylhurst, $100,000;

Mount Angel seminary, St. Benedict, $20,000; Mount Angel Women's college, Mount Angel, $30,000; Pacific university, Forest Grove, $75,000, and Willamette university, Salem, $125,000.

Portland Schools on List

Portland institutions are Cascade college, $20,000; Lewis and Clark college, $145,000; Reed college, $150,000; and University of Portland, $160,000.

The foundation's payments represent half of a total of $260,000 being given to 630 institutions in the nation. Final payments are expected to be mailed out by July 1, 1957.

Each institution is to receive a total sum approximately equal to its undergraduate instructional costs for the 1954-55 school year. The grants are to be added to the institution's endowment fund and are expected

Canadian Named Champion at Albany

Albany, Ore. — (U.P.) — Alan Woodrow, Courtney, B.C., was named as the best all-around logger of the year at the annual Albany Timber carnival here yesterday. He also gained a championship in the ax throwing contest.

Other top winners of the championship woodsman show were: Russ Harris, Kelso, Wash., log rolling; Harold Johnson, Castle Rock, Wash., tree topping; Jimmy Dunlap, Powers, Ore., speed climbing; and Paul Searls, log bucking.

The log-rolling contest lasted 2 hours and 45 minutes before Harris finally bested Jubiel Wickheim, Sooke, B.C., on a 13-inch log on Waverly lake.

Johnson's time for racking up a 100-foot spar tree and slicing off the top was 42.7 seconds. Dunlap gained his speed climbing crown by racing up a 100-foot spar tree in 31.1 seconds.

Is That So?

Strangely enough, although histories have ransacked the Revolutionary period for the tiniest details, for the most part little has been reported about the sports of our founding fathers.

This we know: Mad Anthony Wayne was a billiard player; Patrick Henry, a fisherman; Benjamin Franklin, a swimmer; the Marquis de Lafayette, a fencer; Ethan Allen, a deer hunter; Na-

Gov. Smith Leads Parade at Klamath

Klamath Falls — (U.P.) — Gov. Elmo Smith rode as grand marshal of the annual Fourth of July parade here yesterday after being honored at a chuck wagon breakfast sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce earlier in the day.

When the governor arrived in town Tuesday evening he was met at the city's outskirts by a stagecoach. He rode shotgun on the stage the remainder of the distance into town.

The governor planned to return to Salem today.

PHONE CALL

Boston — (U.P.) — When John Shanahan, 25, was pinned in his car after a collision, he summoned aid by merely picking up his car radio-telephone and calling police.

ARTHROITIS?

I have been wonderfully blessed in being restored to active life after being crippled in nearly every joint in my body and with muscular soreness from head to foot. I had Rheumatoid Arthritis and other forms of Rheumatism, hands deformed and my ankles were set.

Limited space prohibits telling you more here but if you will write me I will reply at once and tell you how I received this wonderful relief.

NOW, MUTT, DON'T BE LIKE THAT.

I DREW UP MY WILL YESTERDAY AND REMEMBERED YOU IN IT FOR YOUR KINDNESS TO MY PIGS!

OH—WHAT'CHA LEAVING ME, POP?

THE PIGS!

THANKS!

thaniel Greene, a wrestler; John Adams, a ballplayer; Alexander Hamilton, a hunter; Gouverneur Morris, an outdoorsman; James Madison, a bird watcher; and Thomas Jefferson, a chess player.

But of them all perhaps George Washington was the greatest all-around sportsman. And in those days, this was not easy. Considerable prejudice existed against sports—particularly in Puritan New England. This bias was so strong, in fact, that the First Continental Congress of 1774 passed an agreement calling upon the colonies to "discontinue and discourage every Species of Extravagance and Dissipation; especially all Horse Racing, and all kinds of gaming, Cock Fighting, Exhibitions of Shows, Plays and other expensive Diversions and entertainments."

Perhaps this very bias indicates how popular these sports must have been—particularly in the southern colonies.

At any rate, in defiance of the bluesoes, Washington lived the active outdoor life.

While President, he once took his Secretary of State, Thomas Jefferson, out to sea on a fishing expedition. At another time, during his first year in office, he went fishing. His diary says (and note the Angler's alibi): "Having lines, we proceeded to the fishing banks, a little without the harbour, and fished for Cod, but it not being a proper time of tide, we only caught two, with wch, about 1 o'clock we returned to Town. Dined at Mr. Langdon's, and drank Tea there, with a large circle of Ladies, and retired a little after seven o'clock."

Horses Greatest Passion

But Washington's greatest passion was horses, apparently being one of those fabled Virginians who would walk five miles to catch a horse to be able to ride him one mile. The Father of our Country not only bred horses, but trained them and raced them and then bet on them. To cite but one instance, in 1773, Washington made a special trip from Mt. Vernon to Annapolis to attend a race meeting. Whether or not Washington won is not disclosed but it is a matter of record that when beaten, he was always prompt to congratulate a rival owner upon his "success on the turf."

His love for horses, as to be expected, led him into fox hunting—and his diary has frequent references to this sport. For example, in the middle of the winter of 1769, during the month of January and February, he rode to hounds 15 times—one week, on six successive days. Among the names of his hounds were Pilot, Musik, Truelove, Trueman, Sweetlips and Bell Tongue.

Mounted on his favorite horse, Blueskin, Washington must have cut a fine figure. He wore a
