Back Stairs: Ike 'Wonderful' Patient

By PATRICIA WIGGINS
United Press Correspondent

Gettysburg, Pa. —(U.P.)— Back stairs at the President's farm:

One of the doctors called in on President Eisenhower's case describes the chief executive as a "wonderful" patient.

He told friends Mr. Eisenhower didn't complain about anything the doctors asked of him during his hospitalization, followed all their orders to a "T" and all told, was an "ideal patient."

The doctor also said the President's close friend, Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, had read up so thoroughly on ileitis before his visit to the hospital that everyone, including the doctors and the first family, was calling him "Doctor Gruenther."

Reporters who watched the President as he left Walter Reed hospital noted a switch in the usual roles of husband and wife as he and Mamie descended the five steps from the hospital porch to waiting car.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who does not like height and has difficulty on stairs, normally hangs on tightly to her husband's arm on any descent or ascent. This time, it was her arm that the President held tightly as they slowly and carefully walked down the stairs.

On his arrival here, farmer Eisenhower found his herd of Aberdeen Angus cattle intact despite a report to the contrary.

The erroneous report—relayed by another well-known Angus raiser—was that a bear from a nearby woods had wandered onto a presidential pasture, killed one steer and wounded two others. A telephone call to the President's neighbor and farm overseer, Gen. Arthur S. Nevins, scotched the rumor. All hoofs safe.

The President's return to the farm means less of a trip for at least one item on his menu—the farm—grown peas which were among the first food he ate after his operation at the hospital.

Besides the peas, Mr. Eisenhower also has broccoli, lettuce and other vegetables growing at his farm in a small plot for "just family" eating.

Most of the rest of the land is in pasture. The peaceful pastures not only feed the cattle but grandson David's pony Tony, his burro—a present from Spain's Francisco Franco—and the President's and David's quarter horses—Doodle De Do and Sporty Miss—were delivered to the farmhouse on the President's last week end there June 1-4.
