

Journal Prints Pear Salad of Medford Woman

Rogue valley pears are spotlighted in the July issue of a national magazine, The Farm Journal.

The article explains how the food editor of the Journal was introduced to "Medford Salad" by Robert Fowler, formerly of Medford and now field editor for the Farm Journal.

According to Russ Jamison, public relations representative of the pear industry, the salad was first prepared at Rogue Valley Country club in Medford. It was devised by Mrs. C. F. (Betty) Gordon, 913 South Holly street, to be served for a meeting of the Rogue River Valley Traffic association, a group of pear packers and shippers. Club manager, George Harrington, reports the salad was well received and has since added it to the salad menu.

When notified that her recipe had received national mention, Mrs. Gordon explained that Medford Salad was served the first time because Robert Root, president of the pear association, had jokingly requested that the club should serve something appropriate to the group. Since it was at the peak of the comice pear season, she decided to use that variety as the base for the salad although she states that fresh bartlett will prove just as tasty.

Mrs. Gordon's recipe is as follows: Arrange lettuce or watercress on a salad plate; place half a peeled fresh comice pear in the center and top with a dash of thawed orange concentrate. Mrs. Gordon says, "It's as simple as that, tasty too, and for calorie-counters, it's the perfect salad." The Farm Journal food editor adds several variations to these basic directions to add interest and vary the flavor.

Mrs. Gordon has other recipes for serving pears and although she no longer is employed at the Rogue Valley Country club she still sends them new salad ideas and recipes for unusual dressings to highlight the flavor of Rogue Valley pears.

Party Announced By Footlighters

State GOP Publishes Morse Record Book

Portland—(U.P.)—The Republican state central committee released a 25-chapter book here today devoted, it said, to the record of Democratic Senator Wayne Morse.

In the publication, the GOP traces Morse's career from 1940 through his switch to the Democratic party and record during the Eisenhower administration. Wendell Wyatt, Republican state central committee chairman, said the book was offered for inspection by the voters "and with this book at hand, the public will be better able to accept the senator's challenge to look at his record."

A great deal of the book was devoted to quotes from newspapers and the congressional record.

New Bank Opens For Business Now

Grants Pass—The new Southern Oregon State bank will open for business next Saturday, July 14, in the Dierks building in Grants Pass. The bank will celebrate with a "grand opening."

Stockholders are meeting today in Grants Pass to elect directors and adopt by-laws. The directors will appoint bank officers, according to H. Allen Tegarden, chairman of the bank's organizing committee.

Tegarden, who for some years has headed the Bank of Illinois Valley at Cave Junction, will retain his interests there, but is slated to become an executive officer of the new bank here.

J. M. Stevenson of Portland has been named vice president and executive operating officer of the Bank of Illinois Valley and started his duties in that capacity last Monday.

The day before the Southern Oregon State bank opens, the Grants Pass chamber of commerce will sponsor a no-host luncheon, Friday noon, July 13, at the Cave Shop, in celebration of the opening.

Museum Acquires Pear Industry Data

Information regarding the early development of the pear industry in the valley has been added to the Jacksonville museum by pear industry representatives.

Received at the museum were agricultural bulletins and booklets published in the early 1900s which give a picture of the growth of the area as a producer of pears.

In addition, Cliff Cordy, county agent for horticulture has contributed to the museum's collection of early day agriculture equipment with the donation of the first pear pressure testing apparatus used for determining the maturity of the fruit.

It was acquired by the local agents office about 1911 and had been in constant use until delivery of a different model recently.

The newly acquired material has not yet been catalogued and placed on display but the curator of the Jacksonville museum, Miss Mary Hanley, said that it would be as soon as possible. She stated that anyone having pictures, printed material or early day equipment relating to the pear industry is invited to contact the museum to make arrangements for having it added to the collection.

Boys Held For Attempt To Derail U.P. Train

Portland—(U.P.)—Three Portland boys were turned over to juvenile authorities today after they attempted to derail a train here Saturday night.

Police said that 18 railroad ties had been placed across the Union Pacific tracks by the boys. Crewmen spotted the youths leaving the area and they were apprehended when they returned for their bicycles.

The boys, ages 11, 10 and 9, were released to their parents pending juvenile court action.
