

Lady Lions to Sponsor Central Point Kindergarten

Central Point area will have a kindergarten this fall for the five year old children in the area. The Lady Lions have secured a certified registered kindergarten teacher and obtained the American Legion hall to hold the class. Mrs. C. L. Miller, who will teach the sessions, has seven years of experience in Eugene prior to coming here.

A tea is planned soon by the Lady Lions for all interested parents who would like additional information. Mrs. Miller will be present to answer questions and explain the operation of the kindergarten.

Peter Welch Guest Of Paul Lea Family

Recent house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lea, 458 Haven street, was Peter W. Welch of Portland. Mr. Welch, a World War I pilot and one time personal aide to the late General Jimmy Doolittle, is also a member of the DeForest Pioneers organization. This group is dedicated to gaining recognition for Dr. Lee DeForest, early radio pioneer and inventor, and is made up of former associates of Dr. DeForest.

Mr. Welch's visit here coincided with the 50th anniversary observance of the invention of the three-element vacuum radio tube, a DeForest invention and one of the developments that aided in the early development of radio communication.

Quentin (Tin) Welch, Mr. Welch's son, is a salesman at Lea Motors in Medford.

Mr. Welch, who left for southern California after his visit, is now surveyor for Multnomah county with offices in Portland.

Milk Drinks Make Easy Refreshments For Summer Days

Warm weather calls for cool refreshment, and there is nothing cooler or more refreshing on a hot day—or evening—than a delicious milk drink. Besides being cool and refreshing, it will give you a lift from that wilted feeling. It's a wise homemaker who keeps extra supplies of fresh milk in the refrigerator this summer to prepare luscious coolers for friends and family.

Along with milk, ice cream and whipping cream are good dairy foods to have on hand to make milk drinks extra special. Here are some refreshing drinks that can be prepared in a jiffy:

Coffee Mambo Shake: Combine 2½ tsp. instant coffee, 4 tsp. sugar, and 2 cups of cold milk in a shaker, glass jar or electric blender. Shake well or blend. Pour into tall glasses. Top with 1/3 cup whipping cream and a dash of nutmeg. Serves 2.

Apricot Ginger Flip: Fill six glasses half full with apricot nectar (4 cups will be needed), finish filling glasses with ginger ale (total amount, 1 qt.), then top with a scoop of vanilla ice cream (better have at least a pint on hand), then serve with colored straws.

Mocha Float: Combine ¼ cup of chocolate syrup, 4 cups of milk, and 1 cup cold, strong coffee, and shake or blend well with beater. Pour over finely crushed ice and top with 1 pt. of vanilla ice cream in scoops. Serve to 4.

Relatives Visit Mansfields Here

Mr. and Mrs. John Mansfield and son, David, have returned from an eight day trip through the Bay area. They now have house guests at their home at 924 Kenyon.

Visiting them are Mrs. Mansfield's cousin and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Smith and Mrs. Sarah E. John of Redlands, Calif. The guests, former Medford residents, will remain here through the week.

STUFFED BURGERS

For stuffed burgers, combine 1 cup grated Cheddar cheese, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ cup chili sauce or catsup. Season 1½ pounds ground beef with ¾ teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon pepper. Shape into 12 three-inch patties. Place cheese mixture on half the patties; top with second patty. Grill or broil, brushing with soy sauce if desired. Serve in toasted, buttered hamburger buns. Makes 6 burgers.

The Family Council

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, a newspaper editor, a women's page editor and two newspaper writers. These consult with clergymen of all faiths and denominations. All letters are held in complete confidence.

L. T.—My wife lets our 16-year-old daughter go to wild parties.

MRS. L. T.—I have confidence in Grace.

L. T.—I always considered my wife an intelligent woman, but I think she is losing her mind now that our 16-year-old daughter is beginning to go out socially. Grace has gotten in with a crowd of youngsters who give wild parties at which they drink and smoke and who knows what else. My wife believes that Grace should be permitted to do whatever her friends do, but I'm not afraid of having my daughter be a bit of a nonconformist. I think the whole thing is disgusting and dangerous. I can't understand parents of these kids.

MRS. L. T.—The "wild parties" my husband talks of are carefully chaperoned parties at very decent homes. It is true that liquor has been served, and while I do not approve at all and would not serve it to youngsters in my home, I must admit that some very fine boys and girls go to these parties.

As for the smoking, I don't think it's a secret to any parent that the kids have experimented with cigarettes before this. My husband talks very lightly of nonconformism, but he doesn't realize how important a certain amount of conforming is to a young girl. Grace doesn't like to smoke or drink, but will hold a cigarette or a glass in her hand just to feel that she is part of things. I have confidence in her.

THE COUNCIL: This alarmed father is oversimplifying things if he thinks he can just withdraw his daughter from contact with her rather "fast" group of friends and make the problem go away. Within two years his daughter will be within the legal age to be served liquor outside the home in many states. He can't order her life much longer, but he can do the next best thing—guide her first steps in a complicated adult world in which the serving of alcoholic drinks appears to be an inescapable partner to sociability.

It is possible that the parents he can't understand are trying to do just that. They know that the youngsters will be able to drink outside the home in a very short time and they don't want them to go wild with a sense of this new privilege when it happens.

No responsible adult can relish the picture of teen-agers, drinking, but certainly all too many do, and it is better for a youngster to get his first exposure to this experience under adult supervision and in a home in which some standard of proper conduct is maintained. The same is true of smoking, which loses some of its glamour and mystery when it is not forbidden.

Grace has already found her way around the problem a bit and learned to avoid the actual smoking and drinking, but have all the fun at the party. Within a year or two she may even get the social courage to say, "No thanks," when offered something she doesn't want. Mrs. L. T. does not appear to take the problem too lightly and her understanding and confidence encourage Grace to both accept guidance and to behave with greater maturity.

Kitchen of Today Room To Live In, Authorities Declare

Philadelphia (U.P.)—“Today's kitchen is a room to live in as well as work in, and should be planned accordingly,” say two authorities on the subject, Ann Satter and Catherine Maurer, food editors of Town Journal and Farm Journal, respectively. But the modern kitchen first must be efficient and time-saving, said the two. The current trend toward eye-level cabinets and sliding shelves is just one example of the emphasis placed on efficiency.

“Let's face it, women just don't like to climb today,” said Miss Satter. “They used to accept out-of-reach cabinets as a necessary evil, but not any more. So the kitchen designers and manufacturers are giving them what they want and everybody's happy.”
