Ceremonies For Ski Lift On July 22

Mt. Shasta, Calif.—Start of work on what will be the world's largest ski lift will be observed here at ceremonies Sunday, July 22.

Fourteen miles of road will be rebuilt and paved before the end of next year at a cost of $1,000,000.

Work also is to start next year on the lift which will dwarf in both length and vertical rise those at Squaw Valley, Calif., and Aspen, Colo., which are being advertised as the world's biggest.

The lift will be in two sections and, with its shelter houses and cafe, will cost an estimated $750,000.

The first section will be 7,775 feet long. It will run from the 7,800 foot altitude at Panther Meadows to Thumb Rock at 9,840 feet.

Length 11,975 Feet
The second section will be 4,200 feet long. It will go from Thumb Rock to Shastara Point at 11,090 feet. Total length will be 11,975 feet and total vertical rise 3,290 feet.

According to local skiers, there is only one lift which may be even higher. It is a small one in Bolivia which handles only 18 persons overnight.

Bids on both the lift and buildings will be opened next May 1st by the U.S. forest service which will decide at the same time who will operate the project. The forest service, however, will supervise the operation.

A group of northern California businessmen will be among those bidding for the concession. They will, if successful, sell stock in the venture.

Footings for the first lift are to be built by Dec. 1, 1957. The forest service has set up the following schedule:

Dec. 1, 1958—Lower lift and shelter house to be completed along with cafe. Footings to be started for upper lift.

Dec. 1, 1959—Upper lift and terminals to be completed.

1960 Completion
Dec. 1, 1960—Entire project and all planned facilities and buildings to be completed and in operation.

The lower lift will have the usual two-chair arrangement. The upper lift however, will have something new for American skiers: Plexiglas-enclosed gondolas carrying four persons.

Tows for less experienced skiers will be provided at Panther meadows where there also will be a cafe, warming house, parking space for 300 cars and some trailer facilities.

There will be no overnight accommodations at the lift but skiers can find lodging in the nearby towns of Mt. Shasta, Dunsmyr and Weed.

The lower lift will carry 600 passengers per hour and the upper one will handle 250 persons per hour at first and probably 350 later.

Bright Nesting Picture Painted By Duckological
Winnipeg, Man.—Broods are "popping like popcorn" throughout the Canadian prairie waterfowl region with late nesters and re-nesters contributing to a high now approaching its peak.

Average size of broods is exceeding the long term average of six and a good duck crop is in sight. This bright picture in waterfowl nesting is painted in the July issue of the Ducks Unlimited "Duckological," prepared by Chief Naturalist Bert W. Cartwright. He states that "if the weather behaves from now on, a duck crop comparable to last year's excellent return is assured."

The report reveals that heavy rainfall has temporarily eased the threat of drought in southern Alberta and western Saskatchewan. It mentions scattered hail storms in Saskatchewan and Manitoba and some flooding from excessive rain in Manitoba's important potato area, but does not envision this seriously affecting the overall duck crop.

Excellent Showing
Cartwright also points up the fact that Canada geese have made an excellent showing, particularly in southern Alberta where broods of five to seven have been observed. The big geese continue to spread and increase on DU projects in the Brooks and Hanna districts of Alberta and have also become re-established as breeding species on numerous projects in Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Ducks Unlimited biologists are now running brood count surveys in cooperation with Canadian and U.S. wildlife service and provincial game department staffs. DU men will be in action about the middle of the month. Cartwright concludes, "By the end of the month we should have a comprehensive picture of the degree of success of the current breeding season."

Parnell Says No Jinx Worry
Boston—(U.P.)—Nonsense with the jinx on no-hit pitchers, said Mel (Marv) Parnell of the Boston Red Sox today. It's the loss of a good night's sleep that's got the most recent dealer of a "dream game" concerned.

As far as the personable 34-year-old Sox southpaw is concerned, "I can't have any more woes or worries than I've experienced the past couple of years."

The little Boston hurler explained that the traditional hex on pitchers following a no-hit effort like his 4-0 triumph Saturday against the Chicago White Sox, was the least of his worries.

After being hobbled with a distressing series of assorted ailments the past two seasons—and a sprained ankle this year—he figured he had more than mentally equipped to overcome whatever psychological hex that has beset other recent no-hitters such as Carl Erskine of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Jim Wilson, then of the Milwaukee Braves and Sam Jones of the Chicago Cubs.

Study of Military Plane Wreck Made

Ft. Dix, N.J.—U.P.—Safety experts made a detailed examination of a crashed C118 transport today to determine whether 21 of the 66 persons aboard survived because of the plane's rear-facing seats.

Brig. Gen. George B. Dany, commander of the 1611th Air Transport Wing led Air Force officers and civilian investigators through a sandy swamp to go over the mangled remains of the Douglas "Liftduster" military equivalent of a civilian DC6, which crashed a minute after takeoff Friday.

Forty-five persons were killed in the crash. The 21 who survived were injured, five seriously. Doctors said it was impossible to tell if the five seriously injured would survive. The other injured all were expected to recover.
