More on Better Care In Mental Hospitals

Instead of starting right in brusquely on the questionnaire, the superintendent talked to the much frightened new patient in a friendly and kindly and interested way about his family, his doctor, and his home town. He made the man feel that he was looked on as sane, and that he would be treated as a sane man. Then the superintendent explained that, if the patient did not mind, they would move him from the admitting department into a room which would be his own for a while until he was better, and then they would move him to a still nicer room. The doctor said, "Don't be frightened at the bars on the windows; those are there because some patients are not as sensible and well controlled as you are." By this time the new patient had calmed down, and the young doctor was able to take his history.

Walter Alvarez

What is sad, as the superintendent said in his article, is that with the lack of funds for adequate care of mental patients such as one finds in many states today, it is very hard to get good attendants and good residents. Many young psychiatrists today want nothing to do with the patients in hospitals—they want to go down town and make much money listening to the stories of a few well-to-do neurotic men.

Some day the people of this land must face the fact that the commonest disease in this country is psychosis, and that it would pay well to take such care of these patients that many could be helped and sent home again. Then it would help tremendously if these "cured" patients could be gotten a job. Today in some cities all avenues of employment are closed to the man who has to say, on his application blank, that his last place of residence was the state mental hospital.

Doing Mighty Little

Every legislator in this country ought to be reading and re-reading Mike Gorman's remarkable book, "Every Other Bed". Every other bed in our hospitals is taken by a mentally disturbed patient, and we are doing mighty little about the problem. For a while this year I went up and down this country trying to get some money for research to improve this situation, but everywhere I was turned away empty-handed. If every wealthy family with mentally disturbed relatives would contribute generously of their funds something could be done. What we need are institutes newly - built in which the modern type of research on the brain could be carried out. I do not blame people for having refused in the past to give money to non-scientific men. But today real scientists are tackling the problem.

Dr. Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnose by mail.

McKay Points To High Baker County Payroll

Baker —(U.P.)— Douglas McKay, Republican candidate for U. S. senator, said yesterday that a rapidly-rising industrial payroll in Baker, resulting from the work on the Idaho Power Company's Brownlee project, was symbolic of the nation's new all-time high in employment.

Yesterday at Enterprise, McKay said that an administration program now underway could alleviate damage from flash floods such as those which hit Mitchell and Mt. Vernon last week.

"The program is designed to speed reseeding of ranges and to spread water for moisture conservation," McKay said. "If this expedited program on federal lands is allowed to continue and broadened to include national forests, we will have the means to reduce damage from flash floods."

Widow of Former Oregon Governor Dies

Salem —(U.P.)— Mrs. Harriett Ruth Benson, widow of Frank W. Benson, former governor and one time secretary of state for Oregon, died here Wednesday at the age of 90.

Mrs. Benson was born in Chicago and came to Oregon with her parents in 1870.

Her family settled in Douglas county and it was there that she met and wed Benson while he was serving as county school superintendent.

Following the death of her husband, Mrs. Benson was a house-mother at the Phi Beta Phi sorority at the University of Oregon for nearly 20 years before her retirement and return to Salem.

Showmanship Practices To Be Held by FFA

Central Point — The Crater chapter Future Farmers of America held a meeting at Tou Velle State park July 16.

At the meeting, members agreed that showmanship practices for those among them planning to show pigs, beef, and dairy animals would be held before the FFA and 4-H fair. Members with truck crops and grain projects reported on plans for harvesting crops.

Engineer Dies After Stopping Train

Bangor, Wis. — (U.P.) — The engineer of a crack passenger train, with the assistance of the fireman, managed to stop the train near here Wednesday shortly before he died of a heart attack, railroad officials said today.

The fireman said the engineer, Walter Ayotee, Winona, Minn., became ill shortly after slowing down to 20 miles an hour here to pick up a train order. Ayotee set the brake and the fireman pulled out the throttle to help stop the train.

A doctor was called but Ayotee was dead on arrival at Sparta. An extra engineer aboard the train who wasn't working, took the train into Sparta.

The train, the Chicago and Northwestern's Dakota 400, was en route from Rapid City, S.D., to Chicago.

Liquor Sales Show Increase in County

Portland — Jackson county liquor sales totalled $1,482,089.20 for the fiscal year ending June 30, an increase of $109,949.05 over 1955, according to the Oregon Liquor Control commission.

Total state sales were $45,102,483.91, which is $2,184,007.85 more than was collected during the preceding year, the commission said.

The commission attributes the total increase in dollar volume to the fact that this is the first complete 12 month period to reflect price increases made May 1, 1955, following legislative recommendations that liquor prices be increased for more revenue to the state.

Eleven counties showed declines in dollar volume and 25 collected increases.

Special Session On Salaries Asked

Salem — (U.P.) — Gov. Elmo Smith has received a telegram from the AFL-CIO Oregon Public Employees council, asking him to call a special session of the legislature to raise salaries of state employees.

Leo Butts, council representative, said that the state is expecting a $21,000,000 tax surplus this bienium which the council thinks could be used to improve salaries.

Gov. Smith was told in the telegram that he has a "moral obligation" to call the legislators in special session to: (1) Restore the seniority and merit salary steps previously accrued to the career employees of the states; and (2) to establish salary advances providing a more realistic minimum scale "in compliance with the spirit and intent" of the law regulating salaries.

Butts is an advisory member of the 1953 legislative interim committee on retirement and compensation for state employees. He claimed the 1955 legislature tried to save money on salaries because it expected a $1,993,000 deficit this bienium, but instead has a $21,000,000 surplus.
