Baby's Body Not Peter Weinberger

New York — (AP) — Discovery of a baby's body in the Hudson river Friday led police to first believe it might be that of kidnaped Peter Weinberger.

Medical examination definitely determined, however, that it was the body of a newborn infant, Peter was 32 days old when he was kidnaped 16 days ago.

The announcement ended three hours of additional anxiety for Peter's mother, Mrs. Betty Weinberger, and hectic police activity.

Police said the body had fitted the general description of Peter as to size, weight and eye coloring.

When informed that a body had been found, Mrs. Weinberger at her home in Westbury, Long Island, clung to her hope that it was not Peter and her baby would be found alive.

"It's not my baby," she insisted without viewing the body.

Peter was abducted from his carriage on the patio of the family's home on the afternoon of July 4. The FBI entered the case a week later, adding its nationwide resources to the efforts of Nassau county police.

Allocations Increased For NW Operations

Portland, Ore. — (AP) — An increase in its allocations by more than one million dollars will permit the bureau of Indian affairs to expand its Northwest operations, Acting Area Director Perry E. Skarra said Saturday.

Largest increase went to the Michaud irrigation project in Idaho and the Klamath irrigation project in Oregon to a total of $724,500 for both projects.

Road construction in the Washington - Oregon - Idaho region received an allocation of more than one million dollars, an increase of $121,000 over the previous fiscal year. A $53,000 allocation will permit the bureau to broaden its relocation service for Indians who to improve their employment opportunities away from the reservations.

Should the weatherman ever need an assist in predicting rain, he would need only to confer with Emory Parshall as to when he would have some hay down.

It would be sure-fire, nevertheless, and safe to say that would be the day it would rain. It hasn't missed for years, nor did it fall this year. After not a sign of rain for days, Emory cut his hay Wednesday. It rained Thursday.

A glance out the window shows the power lines dipping from pole to pole, heavy with blackbirds. Now if they would just swoop down and scoop up some of the army worms which are on the march through here it would make everyone happy.

The most effective method "Pappy" Chapman has found of keeping them out of the garden patch is to circle it with a ring of water. It doesn't discourage them but it does discourage them considerably.

Siskiyou County Agricultural Agent Dudley Zoller recommends for a home garden to put a ditch or trench around the area and spray DDT powder generously into the ditch. If the worms are found to be on the plants themselves, he suggests spraying TETP on each plant with a small hand sprayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Houston and children, Eddie, Sarah Ann, Gail, Susan and Danny, of Reno, Nev., are spending their vacation here, camping in the hills above Hill, and calling on their many friends in this area. The Houstons lived here until three years ago, when they moved to Nevada, and Houston has since been made assistant manager of the Sprouse-Reitz store in Reno.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Here's a good idea to remember for your vacation trip: Kellogg's All-Bran.

All-Bran, you know, helps avoid irregularity due to lack of dietary bulk. And so often on a trip we eat differently and don't get the bulk we need (the gentle roughage that helps keep us regular).

Take a box of All-Bran with you, or ask for it in the new aluminum foil "Individual" packages at restaurants along the way.
