Addiction To Drugs

Many people with a relative who is addicted to drugs beg me for information that would help them in dealing with the afflicted person. How can they help him to get off the drug? Where can they find a hospital that will take him? Will he come home? Must they keep snoring on him, or had they better leave him alone?

I have just been reading an advance copy of a book which will soon be out (Grune-Stratton, N. Y.) Called "Drug Addict as a Patient" it is written by Dr. Marie Nywander who has been well trained in the science and art of helping those unfortunate people. She tells what addicts are like, and what makes them act the way they do. She tells of possible treatment at home as well as in hospital. There are sections on the technique of withdrawing a drug, and on the symptoms which then appear, there is also a section on the rehabilitation of the patient.

One of the most important parts of Dr. Nywander's book is Little Trouble in Britain

As Dr. Nywander says we ought to study the way in which the problem has been handled in Great Britain, because there they haven't much trouble with it. They have succeeded where we have failed. They allow a doctor to prescribe for an addict, giving him just enough to keep him comfortable. The doctor can try to treat him, if he wishes. In England the addict is regarded as a sick man whose trouble is closely allied to psychosis. He is not looked on as a criminal. The authorities know that he is just a man who is in pain, and without the help of drugs, he can get him off the drug, but when a little thing goes wrong in his life, back he is likely to come asking for more morphine or heroin or cocaine.

Frying Pan Project Rejected By House

Washington (U.P.)—Despite a last minute telephone plea from President Eisenhower, the House yesterday killed the proposed $150,000,000 Frying Pan-Arkansas Project in Colorado.

By a roll call vote of 194 to 179, the House refused to act on the Senate-passed measure.

Opponents denounced the multi-purpose reclamation project as a waste of money.

The project called for the federal government to dig a six-mile tunnel through the Rocky Mountains to funnel water to South-eastern Colorado.

Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. told the House shortly before the show-down vote that President Eisenhower "only this morning called me on the telephone and told me he hoped this legislation would pass."

Grange Upper Rogue

Upper Rogue Grange met Thursday evening July 19 with a good attendance.

The teenagers from Elk-Trail school put on an exhibition of square dancing under the supervision of Mrs. Arthur Hume after which the meeting was called to order by Master Caroline Harding.

Pomona Master Herb Carlton obligated Mrs. Robert Carter in the third and fourth degrees.

Mrs. Glenn Anderton was reported improving nicely since coming home.

Refreshments were served by Brother and Sister Brewster and Sister Ragsdale. At the next meeting Aug. 2 their will be moving pictures of the Rose festival recently held in Portland.

failed so miserably, here we go to pass a supplementary law which almost certainly will be unworkable. No jury will ever send a dope peddler to the chair any more than they will send a bartender to the chair for selling whiskey after hours.

One of the greatest failings of man is his willingness to blunder ahead, trying to cure some disease of the body public without first consulting with the experts who can tell us what the problems facing us are. Often, when the experts tell us what to do, we do not listen to them, but forge ahead, basing our actions on some ancient prejudice.

A while ago, Dr. Hubert S. Howe, Professor of neurology at Columbia University, urged the government to provide addicts with morphine at cost. He thought we would do such a sensible and money-saving effort, saving time if only we could rid our minds of the false idea that these unfortunate and often pathetic and weak-minded people are criminals. As Dr. Howe said, they tend to become criminal only when they are crazed with suffering, and must somewhere find the money with which to buy the morphine they want.

Today we have come to fear the peddler of morphine because he will sell the drug to teenagers. It pays him to introduce more persons to the habit. As many doctors keep asking, why spend millions trying ineffectually to get rid of peddlers and their gangster overlords when, by underselling them, we could put them out of business overnight?

Enlargement of Prostate Gland

Many elderly men ask if there is some medical treatment for enlargement of the prostate gland, and I have to tell them that I know of none. There is only one thing to do and that is to have an operation. My feeling is that by far the best, the simplest, and the safest operation is the one in which the operator works through a lighted tube which is passed down the urethra, or the tube that carries the urine out of the bladder. The urologist removes pieces of tissue, one after the other, until the channel is open again.

As some urologists keep reminding me, the older operations have been improved, and the original high mortality rate has been cut down. Also, in some few cases, the new operation cannot be done. The only urologist I disagree with is the man who always does one of the old operations because he does not know how to do the new one. I respect thoroughly the man who can do well any type of prostatectomy, and who then chooses in each case the type best suited to the conditions found.

SHIPMENT OF PEARS INCREASES FROM AREA

Salem — Pear inspections at eight Oregon shipping inspection districts during the year ending June 30 increased 2,581 cars according to the state department of agriculture.

The Medford area, the state's leading pear district, showed an increase of 2,809 cars, while the Hood River district showed a decline of 392 cars.

Inspections were made on 5,815 cars of pears during the year, compared to 3,234 the previous year, department officials said.

Prunes showed the largest increase in inspections last year with 1,119 cars inspected, compared to 82 the previous year.

A total of 33,084 cars of fruit, vegetables and nuts were inspected at the eight shipping points during the 1955-56 shipping year, department officials said.
