

Attempt To Wreck John Day Doctor's Airplane Studied

Portland — UP — State police today were investigating the attempted sabotaging of a John Day doctor's airplane Saturday night, and a warning telephone call against use of the plane.

Dr. Albin Kincaid, staff physician at the Blue Mountain hospital in Prairie City, was able to complete his late Saturday afternoon flight from John Day to Portland, despite the apparent attempt to make the plane crash.

Officials said that after landing at the Troutdale airstrip an examination of the Cessna turned up a foreign substance believed to be sugar in the gasoline fuel.

Phoned Wife
Before the substance was discovered, the 45-year-old pilot had phoned his wife to report he had landed safely.

A short time later Mrs. Kincaid received an anonymous phone call warning that her husband should not attempt to fly the plane.

Dr. Kincaid said he felt that someone had made an attempt on his life. He said a threat was voiced by "a smart, bully type of guy" at a meeting in Prairie City Thursday night. He said he has been active in a campaign to get only one hospital in Grant county and to have this located at John Day.

Dr. Kincaid returned to John Day yesterday. His plane was held in a hangar at the Troutdale airport pending investigation.

Deepest Trench in South Pacific Found

Berkeley, Calif. — UP — Discovery of the deepest ocean trench ever found in the entire eastern half of the South Pacific was reported here recently on the University of California campus.

The report was made by Dr. Parker D. Trask, lecturer in geological engineering, who recently returned from an expedition to the coasts of Peru and Chile. He acted as chief scientist in charge of the recent "Atlantis" expedition.

The expedition carried on detailed marine geologic investigations in the deep troughs lying 40 to 100 miles off the coasts of eastern South America.

The deepest one found, Trask reported, plunges some 28,000 feet down, or 930 feet deeper than any previously recorded in the area. The trench, he said, had walls 1,500 feet below the surrounding ocean floor and was only three miles across in its widest place and nearly 500 miles long. It is 50 miles off the Chilean coast.

Central Point Firm Accused by NLRB

San Francisco — UP — Examiners for the National Labor Relations Board Saturday accused two Oregon employers of unfair labor practices.

The Vancouver Plywood company was found by the examiner to have improperly interfered with employees rights to join a union at its Springfield operation.

In the other case, The Howard Cooper corporation was accused of refusing to bargain with the international union at its Central Point operation.

The examiner recommended that in both cases the firms be directed to bargain with the union and cease discouraging union membership.
