Name of Talkative Serviceman Given

Honolulu — UP — The loose talking serviceman who leaked top secret details of the May 21 Bikini H-bomb explosion has been identified as Airman 1C Jackson H. Kilgore, 21, Meadowview, Va.

An Air Force spokesman, in disclosing the airman's identity, said 7th Air Force Commander Brig. Gen. Julian Chappel is awaiting a recommendation from Kilgore's unit commander at Eniwetok before finally deciding to court-martial him.

If court martial is ordered, the spokesman said, Kilgore probably will be brought to Honolulu for trial.

The Honolulu Advertiser said in a story Saturday the then unidentified airman disclosed secret information about the H-bomb miss while on a furlough in Honolulu.

His disclosures resulted in the Air Force admitting that the bombardier was off the target by 3.7 miles.

The Advertiser said Kilgore was "questioned exhaustively" at Hickam Air Force base for a week before he was returned to his unit at Eniwetok.

Congress, Pentagon Said Keeping Secret Overseas Junkets at Taxpayer Expense

Washington — (UP) — Rep. Clare E. Hoffman (R-Mich.) today charged that both the Pentagon and Congress are trying to keep secret the extent of congressional overseas junkets made at taxpayer expense.

Hoffman said the Defense Department has failed to make good on its promise of nine months ago to give him a complete record of which congressmen and senators and their wives made trips during 1955, which was a closed phone-tapping season.

And now, Hoffman told a register, "we've congressional sources won't give him the information."

Report Goes Unrevealed "Congress itself is refusing information to one of its members," he said.

The Defense Department has given a report to Chairman

Onar Burleson (D-Tex.) of the House Administration Committee, which is supposed to keep tabs on congressional spending.

Burleson refused a United Press request for the report several weeks ago on the grounds that it would present an "unfair" picture of congressional travel.

Reversal on what congressional junkets cost have long been withheld from reporters.

Hoffman said today that he wrote Burleson on July 11 and again on July 19 for a copy of the report. In each case, he said, Burleson's committee staff replied that the request would be called to Burleson's attention when he returns from Texas.

Long After Economy Hoffman said that as ranking Republican member of the House Government Operations Committee he is entitled to the information.

"They want to keep the stuff from coming out," Hoffman said.

Hoffman, a long-time economy advocate, said "we should have economy in the legislative as well as the executive branch."

Hoffman would become chairman of the investigating committee if the Republicans win control of the House next year. In that event, he said he would see to it that Congress puts "its own house in order."

Mount Hood Plunge Survivors Treated For Multiple Hurts

Portland, Ore. — UP — Sixteen youngsters who survived a 46-plunge into a sulphurous crevasse on Mt. Hood were under treatment today for injuries ranging from contusions to broken bones.

One of the group of 19 involved in the accident lost her life. She was Lynn Kaufman, 16, of Larchmont, N.Y. Her body was flown home Monday. Only two escaped injury.

Among the most seriously hurt were Suzanne Blum, 16, Baldwin, N.Y., who suffered a spine fracture, and Susan Stein, 16, Baltimore, Md., who suffered a fractured skull. Hospital attendants said their condition was serious but that they were not on the critical list.

Most of the other injured youngsters suffered broken bones in the accident which took place at the 10,500-foot level of the 11,225-foot-tall mountain.

The climbers included 18 members of the American Hostel Association, led by Carl Schnoor, a Portland College student. They were on a "train, bicycle and hiking trip," according to one of the parents. Most of them were from the eastern seaboard.

Some of the parents of the injured teen-agers said they would have refused permission for the expedition had they known about it. Others, however, said they knew about the climb and did not object.

It was not clear what caused the accident. Ralph Wiese, National Forest agent on Mt. Hood, said there will be no official investigation. He said the service has no power to make any investigation.

The 19 climbers were tied to a 120-foot rope and apparently some lost their footing, pulling the others 400 or 500 feet down the mountain and into the 40-foot-deep crevasse.

"There was a terrible smell of rotten eggs that gagged and choked us," one of the survivors said.

Hot Sulphur Rocks Mountaineers said the crevasse was caused by hot sulphur rocks which melted the snow. The crevasse is known as a bergschrund. Clackamas County Coroner Leslie Penke said Miss Kaufman

Thornton Petition Against PGE Denied

Salem — UP — The Oregon Supreme Court today denied without opinion a petition from the attorney general asking the court to force Portland General Electric company to stop construction of Pelton dam on the Deschutes river.

Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton sought to have PGE's corporate charter forfeited and the company enjoined from continuing construction of the dam without first securing a permit from the state engineer or hydroelectric commission.

PGE is proceeding with construction under a federal license. The company claimed that Thornton's "drastic" request would deny electric power to one-third of Oregon's residents.

PGE also claimed that Thornton's suit should be filed in Jefferson county Circuit Court rather than the Supreme Court.

At the request of the attorney general, a Jefferson county grand jury investigated reports that PGE was building the dam but returned no indictments.

Thornton also charged that the dam would result in less irrigation water, but the company said there was just as much water below the dam now as when construction started.

Chrysler, Union Negotiate Issues

Detroit — UP — Union and company officials met today to negotiate two issues which idled more than 4,000 workers at two Chrysler Corp. DeSoto plants for nearly a week.

Production at the two plants resumed Monday when the workers returned to their jobs on the company's promise to discuss the issues which deal with the firing of a United Auto Workers committeeman and the hiring of outside workers to do model changeover work.

The wildcat walkout began last Tuesday when the workers protested the firing of the committeeman who allegedly led a demonstration against the bringing in of outside workers.

Britain Holding Up Delivery of Two Destroyers To Egypt

London — UP — Britain is holding up delivery of at least two destroyers to Egypt in retaliation for the Mideastern nation's seizure of the Suez Canal, it was reported today.

Delay in delivery of the destroyers was believed to be the first concrete result of Prime Minister Anthony Eden's order to halt arms shipments to Egypt. To Cover Arab World

Liveshipmen in Liverpool announced Monday night they will extend the embargo to cover the entire Arab world. They are expected to refuse to load the Egyptian freighter Star of Luxor when it arrives Friday to pick up a cargo of arms destined for Lebanon.

The British Navy ceased loading ammunition aboard the Egyptian destroyer Al Quahar in Portsmouth Navy Yard Monday night, and despite official denials it appeared the layoff was a result of Eden's order.

Big Three leaders continued talks here and in Washington on measures to be taken to counter Nasser's grab for the canal.

A Big Three meeting in London today, following a special session of the British cabinet, is expected to produce formal proposals for the appointment of an international authority to supervise operations at Suez.

Russia in Game A high Iron Curtain source said Monday Russia would be willing to support an "international solution" for the dispute.

Higher Milk Prices In Portland Unlikely

Portland — UP — Milk distributors said here today a price hike for milk in the Portland market area this fall appears unlikely, but they warn the picture could change rapidly.

Will W. Henry, general manager of the Dairy Cooperative association, said milk was selling in the Longview and Vancouver, Wash., areas for as little as 68 cents a gallon and 17 cents a quart. With lower dealer prices in Washington, California and Idaho, an increase in Oregon was not likely, he said.

A number of large producers, however, were planning to go out of production by Oct. 1, Henry said, and a prolonged dry spell could change the price situation.
