U of O Will Study Effects Of Competitive Athletics On Boys 8-12 Years of Age

Chicago—A special research project designed to study the effects of competitive athletics on boys between the ages of 8 and 12 years will be initiated at the University of Oregon this September, Colonel T. P. Bank, president of the Athletic Institute, has announced. "There's been a lot of talk this year both for and against competitive sports for kids," said Colonel Bank. "And, actually, the facts available at present fail to offer much support for either the proponents or the opponents." The new competitive-sport research project will study the basic traits of 8-12 year old boys who are engaged in all types of competitive sports and compare these traits with those of boys who do not participate. All of the research will be conducted over a period of several years in the Oregon public school system under the direction of the school of physical education at the University of Oregon. "Enthusiasm for kid sports is sweeping the United States, especially in baseball, football, and basketball," commented Bank, "and the wave of poorly-supported criticism that's popped up has made many parents fear that their children will be harmed by participation. I'm certain that the results of this project will prove that competitive athletics for the 8-to-12 age group are harmless and greatly beneficial to the emotional, mental and physical growth of the child." OSMA Co-Sponsor Dr. Arthur A. Esslinger, dean of the school of physical education and H. Harrison Clarke, research professor at the university, will be in charge of the research. The program is co-sponsored by the Oregon State Medical Association, the University of Oregon, and the Athletic Institute. Boys, picked at random from 8 to 12 age groups in the state public school system, will be used in the testing. Consideration will be given to comparative strength, body structure, personality, motor performance, physiological maturity, academic achievement, and mental aptitude. "Affirmative results from this research project will put further emphasis upon the need for youth fitness and the value of competitive sports in such a program," Colonel Bank added. "This project will tie in with President Eisenhower's program of youth fitness in that it will give physical education and recreation personnel as well as youth-minded civic groups a firm foundation upon which they can build their youth fitness programs."

FLAM WINS SECOND SINGLES TITLE—Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif. (left) successfully returns the ball to his opponent, Ed Moylan of Trenton, N. J., during final singles match in the National Clay Court Tournament at River Forest (Illinois) Tennis Club. Flam beat Moylan, 3-6, 6-3, 1-6, 6-3, 6-3, to take the men's singles title for the second time. His previous win was in 1950.

Joe Maxim Dropped in Ring Ratings

New York—(U.P.)—Joey Maxim of Cleveland, former light-heavyweight champion, headed a group of fading fighters who dropped out of the Ring Magazine's top 10 ratings today to make room for rising youngsters. Because of Maxim's inactivity, he failed to make the top 10 for the first time in more than a decade. His departure made room for brilliant young Tony Anthony of New York, who broke into the rankings at the number seven spot among 175-pound contenders.

Similarly, in the middleweights Holly Mims of Washington, D.C.—beaten by young Spider Webb—dropped out and unbeaten young Rory Calhoun of White Plains, N.Y., crashed the ratings at number 10.

Among the welterweights, European Champion Emilio Marconi of Italy made 10th place as Joe Miceli of New York fell out. Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., returned to the lightweight rankings at number six because of his upset victory over Ralph Dupas; and Frankie Ryff of New York was ousted.

Chestnut, Berrios Join

Ray Famechon of France, ex-European featherweight champion and Jose Hernandez of Spain sank from the top 10 feathertons as Ike Chestnut of New York, No. 9, and Miguel Berrios of Puerto Rico, No. 10, moved in. Little Cesar of the Philippines faded from the select bantamweights as Filipino Tanny Campo shifted from the flyweights to number seven among the bantams. Bindi Jack of Australia thus was able to crash the flyweight contenders at number eight.

There were no drop-outs in the heavyweight division, where ancient Archie Moore—top contender as well as light-heavy champ—won the "Fighter-Of-The-Month" award for July over Big James J. Parker at Toronto.

Homers Help Beaver Victory; Seals Pull Cord on LA Seraphs

By JOHN McDONALD United Press Sports Writer Right-handed fireballer Jerry Casale, fighting to keep his spot in San Francisco's starting rotation, pulled the brake cord on Los Angeles' eight-game winning streak Tuesday as he struck out nine and hog-tied the mighty Steve Bilko in twirling the Seals to a 7-3 win. Casale, relegated to the bullpen for his failure to finish games and what Manager Joe Gordon called too much experimentation with slow stuff, survived a wild start to blank the Angels the last six innings and whiffed Bilko three times. Meanwhile, Seattle nipped San Diego 7-6 in 10 innings to pull within four games of the league-leading Angels in the Pacific Coast league merry-go-round. Portland also went 10 frames to cop an identical 7-6 decision over Sacramento on Ed Mickelson's second homer of the night; and Hollywood turned back Vancouver 6-3 in the loop's other battle. Follows Command Casale went into Tuesday's game under orders to rear back and throw the fast one, his bread and butter pitch, that made him the knockout king of the American association last year. Gordon told the young six-footer his experiments with a change of pace produced instead a medium-speed fast ball which opposing hitters were teeing off on. Casale retired the last 13 men to face him in order and Marty Keough smashed a grand-slam homer in the sixth to give him his winning margin. In Seattle, the Rainiers overcame a 5-1 deficit with five runs in the last three innings, two of them on Bill Glynn's two-run homer, and then put it away in the tenth on a throwing error by Padre shortstop Clarence Moore.

Elden Corthell County Chairman For Red Hat Day

Jackson county efforts to improve landowner-sportsmen relations and to provide safer, fire-free hunting seasons will be coordinated by Elden Corthell, Ashland, who has been appointed by Governor Elmo Smith as Jackson county chairman of this year's Red Hat Days campaign. More than a score of statewide organizations again have joined in sponsoring this educational program which was so successfully launched last year. Red Hat Days will start September 21 and continue throughout the hunting season. Governor Smith said marked improvement in hunter conduct was observed in 1955. He noted that there were fewer reports of vandalism, fewer hunter-caused fires and fewer fatalities resulting from careless use of firearms. "Much progress remains to be made," Governor Smith added. "I am convinced that the Red Hat Days program is a sound approach to solving problems created by a small percentage of hunters. I urge all hunters to remember their outdoor obligations when they go afield this fall." Each of Oregon's 36 counties has a Red Hat chairman. The statewide educational campaign is directed by the Governor's Red Hat Days committee, composed of seven representatives of sponsor groups.
