Troutdale Plant Closed by Strike

Troutdale, Ore.—(U.P.)—Picket lines today closed down Reynolds Metals Company aluminum plant here. Some 650 steelworkers at the plant struck at midnight as part of a nationwide walkout.

Tony Geisler, vice president of the union, said maintenance men would be allowed through picket lines. Some 900 persons work at the plant.

The local Reynolds plant apparently was the only one in the area affected by the walkouts. The company's Longview plant is operated by the Aluminum Workers International Union which agreed to extend its contract on a day to day basis while negotiations are continued.

The Aluminum Company of America plant at Vancouver, Wash., has a contract with the Aluminum Trades Council and negotiates separately from discussions in the east.

A Nichol's Worth of . . . Comment On This and That

Washington —(U.P.)— What's new in Washington:

Irish Blitch, the lady Democratic law maker from Georgia, is miffed about the portable TV cameras they are going to try out at the party's Chicago convention. She calls them "peekers—next to wire tappers the worst invasion of a woman's privacy."

Mrs. Blitch points out the little cameras give off no warning signal like the big ones do. "You don't know when you are going to be shot," she says. "What if a garter string is hanging or you're busy reddening your lips? You're tapped. I'll bet this new gimmick won't last long enough to worry the Republicans in San Francisco."

The newspaper on Capitol Hill, "Roll Call," plays no favorites.

On page one is a story written by Sen. William F. Knowland, Republican floor leader of the Senate. Opposite is an item signed by Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the Democratic leader.

The headline on the Knowland story says "Dems Thwarted Ike's Domestic Program." Johnson's essay is headed "Solid Achievement Marked 84th Congress."

Mrs. Alex Martin called the other day to report that she has been having trouble getting mustard wax. She uses the stuff to slick up her eye brows and blinkers. She asked her druggist how about the shortage? He

Freak Woods Accident Kills Vancouver Logger

Vancouver, Wash.—(U.P.)—A Vancouver, Wash. logger was killed yesterday when he was hurled through the air for about 65 feet by the lever action of a downed timber which was struck by a falling tree.

Dead was 46-year-old Woodrow Beer. The accident occurred in the Fly creek area, near the Clark-Skamanian county line.

Other workmen said that Beer landed in the path of a third tree which toppled on him, crushing him to death.

"What time did you call, sir?" asked the polite AAA man. "It was around noon—1911," the old-timer replied. "I'm still sore."

Falling Tree Kills Earl Howard, Dexter

Eugene—(U.P.)—Earl Howard, about 60, of Dexter, Ore., was killed yesterday by a falling tree about 15 miles southeast of Eugene. He was an employee of the Fall Creek Lumber Co.
