Imported cream performs miracles for a dry skin

If your skin is very delicate, very dry, and you're in the mood to give it some luxurious pampering, we suggest that you find out about a wonderful cream. It's imported from France.

It comes in the simplest container, a shiny metal tube, from which it is squeezed just like your toothpaste. It is not pretentiously perfumed. What it does for a dry, thirsty skin is unbelievable.

The cream is not heavy in texture, it's more on the light side, but it is obviously rich in the best of lubricating oils. You don't have to go to Paris to buy it—for at last it is imported to the States, and truly we think it is worth its price. It's Caron's Le Demaquillant Creme in two sizes, 2.50 and 5.50 plus Federal Tax.
