

Pears, fresh or canned, are mighty good when sprinkled with confectioner's sugar, cinnamon and coconut that has been lightly browned, either in the broiler or oven of your gas range. It's a keen combination to serve with a scoop of vanilla ice cream.

GOLD HILL Council Discusses Property

By MRS. SAM ELLIOTT

Gold Hill — School Superintendent H. P. Jewett met with the city council at their regular session Monday evening. Acting Mayor Floyd Lance and Councilmen Fred Lewis, Delos Walker, Harry Foley, Ernie Cooper and Virgil Gribble discussed the problem of making an exact and acceptable survey on the property which is the site of the city disposal plant, in order to meet FHA loan demands relating to the sale of certain school property adjoining the disposal plant area. Jewett agreed to confer again with the county surveyor as to the location of section corners.

Jewett reported that the school district has contacted the Oregon state highway department relative to blinker lights to be placed near the new primary school on Second ave.

Lot 11 in block 1 was voted to be sold to Clayton Netzel for a home site.

Cline and White, contractors, attended the council meeting and requested fill-dirt from city property to be used at the Ideal Cement power plant for the construction of a fish ladder. The council offered to give the plant all they needed if the dirt was taken from the proposed First st. extension.

Letters were received from the Oregon state highway department giving permission for the city to go ahead with the construction of a sewer and waterline on the north side of Second ave. between Sixth and Seventh sts.

The council also voted for more oil seal to be placed on the oil streets mentioned on the oiling program.

The next meeting will be held Sept. 4, Tuesday, due to the Labor day holiday.

Small Fry Write Frank Opinions Of Own Parents

Pierre, S. D. — (U.P.) — Some parents would be shocked to hear what their children think of them.

Small fry opinions of what's right and wrong about the way they're being reared came to light in fourth, fifth and sixth grade classrooms here. The children were asked to do essays, unsigned, on what they thought of parents.

Much of their advice was in the form of gripes. One child thought his parents should "cooperate with each other." Another wished his parents "would talk in a quieter tone" and not be so strict and absolute in their decisions.

One sixth-grader hoped his parents would "stop babying me like I was four years old and stop questioning me every time I go someplace or do something with my friends." Parents were criticized as "a little stuffy" or "bossy."

Some of the children couldn't understand why parents don't punish themselves for misdeeds.

One perplexed child wrote: "When I drop something or knock something over, I get heck for it. But when they do, they don't do anything to themselves."

Art Educator Speaks Against Coloring Books

New York — (U.P.) — Coloring books, a childhood institution as old as bubble gum, get a severe smudging from one art educator.

Dr. Victor Lowenfeld says they only put a straight-jacket on a child's creative instincts.

Dr. Lowenfeld, director of art education at Pennsylvania State University, said that "research shows more than half of all the children who have been exposed to coloring books lose confidence in their creativeness..."

Writing in the current issue of the magazine "2-to-5 World News," he warned parents of small children that the books "make the child inflexible."

"By the same token, children prefer sweets to vegetables, but this doesn't mean that we should adjust their diets to sweets," he added.

Fabric Headboards New Decorating Trick

New York — (U.P.) — Fabric headboards shown with box spring and mattress combinations are the newest-decorating trick.

John and Earline Brice, a young interior design couple, used a sheer print, gathered on brass rods and hung on the wall above the bed to form a "headboard" with canopy top in a recent fabric exhibit here by the Celanese Corporation. The headboard was made of a fortisan sheer print, and the same fabric was used to cover lampshades on the bedroom night-tables.

nephew of Wilburn Martin and this is their first visit at the Martin home and in Oregon. An unpleasant experience in the form of a car collision occurred when Mrs. Wilburn Martin and Mrs. Melvin Martin were driving on Highway 99 north of Rocky Point and were struck by another car. Mrs. Melvin Martin was hospitalized with a broken rib. The car was badly damaged on one side.
