

TABLE ROCK Richardson Family Arrives

By R. E. NEALON
Table Rock—Donald Richardson and wife, Doreen, with daughter Diane, arrived July 29 from Portland to join Dennis and Debbie, the two younger members of the family who have been spending some three weeks with "Gramps" and Grandma at the J. S. Richardson home.

The Richardsons spend their yearly summer vacation here at the home of Don's parents, from where they take trips to the mountains and fish in their favorite creeks for trout. They attend the Shakespearean festival and visit with friends and relatives. They brought along Raleigh Smoky's Silver Sonja, a pedigree young elk hound dog, a daughter of Smoky, but which looks more like a dog and not so much like a registered Berkshire pig.

Most of the local grain is being harvested without sacks this year, or what is called in bulk, most of it going to feed stores and warehouses in trucks made for that purpose. This method does away with considerable back strain and saves a "right smart" sum of money usually paid out for sacks.

The mosquito situation was discussed here at some length at a meeting held Thursday night at the school house, attended by some 15 mosquito-bitten persons and Walter Sutherland, operator of the fogging apparatus, and Shy Morthland of the county court.

There was some difference of opinion as to the best method of control, the visitors claiming that the fogging machine that patrols the highways at night had been found after much investigation to be the most practical and thorough. This was doubted by several local residents who claimed that examination of their lawns only a few feet from the highway the day following the fogging operations revealed thousands of hungry, frisky, ferocious mosquitoes.

Many local people were in favor of spraying by airplane, which they claim cleaned up the insects and the hatching beds several years ago, but this method was not approved, so not much help along this line could be expected from the county.

It was stated by Commissioner Morthland that Lane county uses the fogging method, but has $4,800 budgeted each year for mosquito control.

The meeting concluded with most of those present feeling that each family should try and look after their own premises and get what help they could from the county in locating and treating the breeding areas. Harry Ellis, recently of the Central Point area, now of Beagle where he and his family were moved out when Camp White was being readied for training troops, was here one day last week with some friends from Iowa who took a swim in the cool waters of the Rogue. Harry says they are back to the old home where they have longed to be for some 14 years, away from the hustle and bustle and traffic jammed highways near the cities and thickly settled communities.

R. V. Beall, the sage of Beall lane, and his housekeeper, Miss Caroline Drexler, were over this way Thursday looking for wild blackberries along the river.

R. V., who sold his farm a few years ago, says he had to buy hay this spring for his cows the first time in his life.

The Herb Grissoms of the Central Point district were visitors here Thursday. They are very much interested in chemicals being used in food products and poisons used in the new insecticides.

They are sending us a subscription to the magazine, Natural Food and Farming, which we appreciate. We have believed for a long time that many of our ills and new diseases are caused by the way we live as to what we take into our bodies in the name of food.

Some 60 persons, members of the Unity Sunday school class, attended a noon picnic dinner at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Ray Bosworth, July 29.

Lt. Col. C. A. Duffie has been released from Walter Reed hospital where he has been undergoing treatment since his serious injury last winter in a plane crash, according to his mother, Mrs. Ray Bosworth, who conversed with her son by phone.

The annual picnic of the Houston-Rodgers families held July 29 at TouVelle park was attended by some 60 relatives and friends. Just across the street, the Jackson County Democrats were holding their regular summer picnic. Some members of the Houston-Rodgers picnic strayed over into the ranks of the Democrats where they seemed to feel very much at home.

Ray Ryan, Table Rock's east side farmer, reports a bountiful harvest of hay which he says is not selling very fast. He hopes he will do better with his hay than he did with his registered pig, which he bought for $28 and after feeding it five months it brought $14 less Bill Bray's commission.

Before receiving this appointment he was serving as principal of the school and had served in other capacities at the school. While here he visited the homes in southern Oregon having children in the school.

A measure to create a special "city services fund" was filed by the finance commissioner with the city auditor's office.

Bean will ask the city council to consider it as a new tax measure on the ballot in the November general election.

The measure requires a special tax levy of not more than two mills, about $1,400,000 a year, over the next two years. The sum would be spent at the council's discretion.

A city workers' committee and the trades council of the AFL-CIO requested that the measure be drawn.
