

Dinner Planned For Missionaries

The Rev. and Mrs. Al Kantor of Firebaugh, Calif., will be honored guests at a fellowship dinner planned by the congregation of First Baptist church for Wednesday, August 15, at 6:45 p.m., at the church.

The Kantors are missionaries to the migrant workers in the San Joaquin valley of California, and at a church service following their work. Members of the local congregation are asked to take gifts to the dinner and service, which will make suitable Christmas gifts for the Kantors to distribute among the children of migrant workers at Christmas time.

Mrs. Kantor, the former Jean Rice at one time made her home in Medford.

"Woman for President" Club Group Not Active This Year

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY United Press Correspondent New York (U.P.)—The "Woman for President" organization is sitting out this election year in case any politicians are curious.

That elusive someday when voters will get a chance to decide whether they would like to have a woman in the White House seems less imminent than it did 20 years ago.

Then, freshly organized and eager for action, members of the organization met on both the Republican and Democratic national conventions. They had banners and buttons and suggestions for women to run as presidential candidates.

They urged the Republicans to nominate Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth and the Democrats to nominate Mrs. Ruth Bryan Rhoads, former congresswoman and minister to Denmark.

Spark Is Missing This year the members are staying home. A few determined members have kept the organization alive and listed in the Manhattan telephone book. But the spark is missing.

There has been no concerted demand for any national women's group for action. And a few national feminine figures, including Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Mrs. Perle Mesta, have stated that they do not feel the nation is ready yet even for a woman as candidate for vice president.

It will happen someday, insists Miss Lillian Rock, the woman lawyer who inspired the "Woman for President" organization 20 years ago. Miss Rock simply commented in a speech at a women lawyers convention in Chicago in 1936 that someday she expected to see a woman as president of the United States.

"I was organized," she recalls. "The delegation quickly followed, with 30 women appointed on the board of directors and a corner of Miss Rock's law office here set aside for the national clearing house.

Interest Fell Off That first flood of mail has slowed down to an almost imperceptible trickle. Women voters now outnumber the men, but Miss Rock has received no indication that they are clamoring to elect one of their own sex to the nation's highest office.

"I am so busy now with my own law work that I haven't had a great deal of time to devote to the organization," the woman lawyer admitted.

They definitely are not giving up their dream, however. They believe that the woman who eventually gets nominated can be from business, professional or educational fields, but she must be trained as an executive.

"Women," Miss Rock said firmly, "are born executives."

Republicans Set Out in Earnest To Kick Up Interest in Own Show

San Francisco (U.P.)—Confident Republicans, with an eye cocked TV-ward at the Democrats in Chicago, set out in earnest today to stem up interest in their own well planned show to renominate President Eisenhower next week.

With the Democrats battling over civil rights and other touchy platform issues, the hopeful GOP arranged to get its own platform committee hearings underway Wednesday with no advance rumblings or major dissension.

Sen. Prescott Bush (R-Conn.) temporary chairman of the Platform Drafting committee, told the United Press he hoped for "harmony and unity" throughout.

Bush called a morning press conference to announce appointments to the Platform committee's preliminary subcommittees as the Republican convention got underway.

Ike Sets Theme Mr. Eisenhower himself set the theme for the first GOP convention ever to be held in this city with a statement in the official convention program calling on the party to "help make the bright promise of the party's future more than equal to its past."

It led off the 160-page convention program which the Republicans made public Sunday. At the same time, the GOP threw open its vast Cow Palace on San Francisco's south side to thousands of wondrous sightseers who wandered through it in guided tours.

The Republican National committee reported that 6,500 roamed through the cavernous hall Saturday and another 11,000 Sunday.

The response was typical of the historic city's interest in the first national political convention to be held here since 1920, when the Democrats nominated James M. Cox for president and Franklin D. Roosevelt for vice president.

Despite an official cold shouldering from Republican National committee headquarters, the GOP still kept a wary eye on Harold E. Stassen's maneuverings from Washington to dump Vice President Richard M. Nixon in favor of Massachusetts Gov. Christian A. Hesser. Stassen expects to set up a speech here later this week.

Arriving in Dallas for a speech to the Veterans of Foreign Wars today, Nixon again declined to comment on Stassen's efforts but he predicted that Mr. Eisenhower will defeat anyone mentioned so far as a possible Democratic nominee.

Nixon Called "Effective" In Washington meantime, Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa.) chairman of the GOP Congressional Campaign committee, took a poke at Nixon with a statement that Nixon is one of the party's "most effective" campaigners. Simpson said it would be a "disastrous blow" to House and Senate candidates if the Californian is dropped from the ticket.

The Republicans' sleek convention program also featured statements from Nixon and Sen. Andrew F. Schoepel (R-Kan.) chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign committee. Nixon made no reference to his own job in saying:

"The idea that government is the servant of the people is not a new idea, but the way it has been applied for the last three and one-half years is new and we are all the better for it."

But Schoepel, in the printed program's only reference to the possible battle for the vice presidency, said, "Specifically we are going to nominate at this convention the incumbent, Dwight D. Eisenhower, and our vice president, Richard Nixon."
