

Plan for Snake Financing Told

Washington — (U.P.) — Pacific Northwest Power company unfolded its proposal for financing construction of a $217,400,000 hydro-electric project on the Snake river between Oregon and Idaho here yesterday. The plan was told at a Federal Power commission hearing on the company's application for a license to develop the Mountain Sheep and Pleasant Valley sites.

The FPC was told the construction would be financed by the purchase of 15 per cent equity securities by the four organizing companies.

The four utility groups making up Pacific Northwest Power are Portland General Electric, Pacific Power and Light, Washington Water Power and Montana Power company.

Robinson said Pacific Northwest would sell approximately $32,000,000 of common stock and that arrangements would be made to borrow up to $60,000,000 in a revolving bank loan to be reduced from time to time through the sale of bonds.

On behalf of all of the members of the staff of the new London Grill and Piccadilly Bar in the Hotel Benson, I'm proud to extend a warm invitation to visit our hotel on your next trip to Portland. Those of your friends who have dined with us have told you that the London Grill is Portland's finest, and we know that you will agree with them. We have a collection of cartoons from Punch magazine -- as well as an original oil painting by the famous Punch cartoonist, Rowland East -- and decorations that would make the London Grill a fascinating place to visit even if it weren't for the wonderful menu.

Here are some of the foods on our menu -- many of them prepared right at your table -- and it makes my mouth water just to write them: Shish Kabab; Butterflied New York Cut Steak; Char-broiled Golden Broad-breast Chicken Half; Fresh Pacific Lobster; London Style Flankd Char-broiled Ground Sirloin Steak; Caesar Salad; Limestone Lettuce Salad; Coffee Wellington -- and on, and on.

On your next visit to Portland, please drop in and look around. You'll be pleasantly surprised, I know -- and you will be very welcome.

Meet Mac McCoy of the "Telephone Patrol". You may not know them, but men like Mac McCoy have a lot to do with your telephone service. Their job: patrolling cross-country lines to spot potential trouble before it can affect your service. Their work goes on in winter or summer, bad weather or good... and mostly off the beaten path. Mac patrols transcontinental lines crossing the desert in Southern California. You might see some of his buddies patrolling in a railroad handcar in Oregon's timber country. Others ride Sno-Cats in California's High Sierra, or a cable car over the Columbia River, or a helicopter in Nevada. All are on the lookout for anything that might threaten cables or poles. Their aim: To keep your service ready to go whenever you need it. Pacific Telephone.

One of the reasons why your out-of-town calls go through so fast and dependably is that the "Telephone Patrol" time and again beats trouble to the punch.

Your local calls -- to merchants, friends, and the like -- are protected in the same way. Line crews and testboardmen keep a close check on voiceways all over town.

Day or night, every part of your telephone system is under watchful eyes whose job it is to safeguard your service. This is one reason you can count on help from your phone in so many ways.

The men and women of Pacific Telephone work to make your telephone more useful every day
