

Thornton Names 8 Attorneys To Assist In Vice Prosecutions

Salem—(U.P.)—Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton has named eight assistant attorneys general and seven former state and federal prosecutors to handle the Multnomah county vice trials.

Earlier, Thornton had named Dan M. Dibble, special assistant attorney general, to coordinate the prosecutions.

Thornton said he had not yet made appointments of special prosecutors who will handle illegal bootleg establishments, bawdy houses, wiretapping and two other matters. He added that Assistant Attorney General Francis T. Wade would continue to take an active role in assisting and prosecutions.

Handling the cases will be:

Pinball cases: Raymond Carskadon, former chief criminal deputy district attorney for Multnomah county, and Assistant Attorney General Arthur G. Kaplan, Portland.

Police perjury cases: Gene Conklin, Pendleton, former assistant United States attorney for Oregon; Assistant Attorney General Walter J. Apley, Salem,

Oregon Cities Get Federal Grants for Urban Planning

Seattle—Federal approval of urban planning assistance grants for Beaverton, Coquille and Grants Pass, Ore., was announced last week by L. R. Durkee, area representative, Seattle office of the housing and home finance agency serving the Northwest states.

The general planning activities authorized in the preparation of master plans for the three cities will be carried on by the bureau of municipal research and service of the University of Oregon. Studies will include population trends, land uses, arterial highways, off-street parking facilities, preparation of subdivision regulations, utilities and annexations.

Match Local Funds

The federal grant of $4,200 will match local funds made available by the three communities. Herman Kehrl, director of the bureau of municipal research and service, will supervise the program for the state planning agency.

Federal funds authorized on a dollar-for-dollar matching basis under the housing act of 1954 are limited to communities having a population of less than 25,000 and to metropolitan or regional planning agencies.

The University of Oregon authorized by the state legislature as the state's planning agency for these purposes, has previously been granted matching funds for the cities of Albany, Sweet Home, Forest Grove and for the Eugene-Springfield metropolitan areas.

News About Books From the Library

National Aviation day is being observed today. According to Librarian Helen Webster, the Medford Public Library has a number of excellent books which tell the story of man's conquest of the air—from the Wright Brothers' first attempts to the latest developments in space travel.

Two books giving varying aspects of the history of American aviation are Charles A. Lindbergh's "The Spirit of St. Louis," which gives his autobiographical narrative of the first nonstop airplane passage between the continents of America and Europe, and Jean Poter's "The Flying North." Hers is the story of the amazing—and amusing—exploits of those famed flying heroes, the "bush pilots" of Alaska. A more recent book, "Flight," is published by the editors of Year, Inc., and is a pictorial history of aviation.

Planes Described

Descriptions of more than 800 planes, from the earliest models of DeVinci to present day jets, are given in Douglas Rolfe's "Airplanes of the World from Pusher to Jet." Another book of interest from a military point of view is "The World's Fighting Planes" by William Green and Gerald Pollinger. "The Complete Book of Helicopters" by D. N. Ahnstrom gives an account of how the machine works and how it is flown, with a startling vision of the giant sky-buses and convertiplanes which will be soon plying our skies.

Two recent books on the ever-popular subject of flying saucers are Edward Ruppelt's "The Report on Unidentified Flying Objects" and Lloyd Mallan's "Men, Rockets and Space Rats." Ruppelt was chief of the Air Force project investigating Unidentified Flying Objects and his book is written in a vigorous straightforward manner. Mallan's book is a readable and exciting account of the research and experimentation which may

MEET the CASTERS...

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Caster and their son Tod are neighbors of yours near Central Point. With the help of another son, John, they operate a 35-acre dairy farm—milking 32 of the finest Holstein cows in this part of the country. They are members of Jackson County's Milk Producers' League, and sell their milk through the League to Jorgensen's, Snider's, Gilman's, and Cloverleaf—your distributors of pure, rich, processed Grade-A milk... nature's most perfect food... the food for which there is no substitute.

Here Tod is preparing "another member of the family," Valentine II, for the Jackson County 4-H Club-FFA Fair, which runs August 21 through August 25 at the Fair Grounds south of Medford. Valentine was raised by Tod as his 4-H Club project for the Fair. He's worked hard with her, and he's pretty proud of the results—so he urges you to attend the Fair and take a look.
