Idaho Power Indicted For Starting Work On Brownlee Dam

Baker — (U.P.) — The Idaho Power company was indicted by the Baker county grand jury yesterday for starting construction of the Brownlee dam on the Snake river between Oregon and Idaho without first obtaining a license for the dam from the Oregon Hydroelectric commission.

Idaho Power Co. Attorney A. S. Grant immediately filed a demurrer asking dismissal of the complaint. Circuit Judge F. L. Hubbard indicated that he may have a decision on the motion this week.

Has Federal License

Idaho Power Co. has a federal license for construction of Brownlee dam and two other low head dams in the Hells Canyon reach of the Snake.

A date of Sept. 12 had been set last week for a hearing a request by the utility company to waive Oregon law and obtain a state permit for development of the Hells Canyon site. The State Hydroelectric commission is scheduled to listen to the company's arguments for the permit.

The commission has set Sept. 6 as the deadline for written protests to such waivers.

The indictment returned yesterday had been returned to the jury at the request of Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton, for re-wording.

In filing a demurrer, Grant cited several other cases throughout the country where federal permits, such as the one issued for the construction of Pelton dam in Oregon, have overruled state law.

Grants said that it has been proved that any state act would be superseded by a federal power act.

Violation Denied

T. E. Roach, president of Idaho Power company, immediately issued a statement, denying that his company has violated any law in starting construction of Brownlee dam.

The company has done everything in its power voluntarily to meet Oregon requirements by applying for a state license and we believe the company has done nothing in conflict with any applicable provisions of Oregon law," Roach said.

Maximum penalty possible under the charges brought yesterday by the grand jury would be $1000 fine and six-months imprisonment.

Western Australia Offers New Start

Sydney—(U.P.)—Looking for a start in life where the land sells at 50 cents an acre? Then go west, young man, to Western Australia.

The West Australian government has opened vast tracts of land in the vicinity of Esperance where 3,000 acres can be taken up for a down payment of $60. The total payment can be made over a 20-year period at five per cent interest.

The move is part of a campaign by the West Australian government to encourage settlement of its more remote areas.

The Esperance area is located on the southern coast of West Australia some 350 miles from Perth. The town of Esperance has a population of 700 with a hospital, post office, two hotels, two garages, two butcher shops, a bakery and a drug store.

Rainfall in the area averages about 22 inches a year and the temperature ranges from 52 degrees in winter to 83 degrees in summer.

Applicants for land must take up residence within one year after the applications are approved, and must make their homes on the land for the next five years.

The government also requires that one tenth of the new land be cultivated each year for a four-year period.

Skin Diseases Cured By 'Potent Weapons'

Pittsburgh —(U.P.)— Medical science has developed new "potent weapons" to cure many skin diseases caused by disorders remote from the blemish.

Dr. Harry Robinson Jr., professor of dermatology at the University of Maryland School of Medicine, told family doctors here that long practical application has proven the value of new steroid hormones and antibotics.

He said two new steroid hormones, identified as prednisone and prednisoline, are four to five times more potent than powerful cortisone and ACTH in curing some skin diseases. The medical researcher said he based his conclusions on treatment of 5,000 patients over the past four to five years.

Dr. Robinson told the practitioners the cause of many skin diseases may be found far from the point of the eruption on the body. Because of this, he said, the family physician should not treat the symptoms alone.

The skin, Doctor Robinson added, must be viewed as a functioning organ, just as the heart, lungs or nervous system.

STRAYS WILL STRAY

Peru, Ind. —(U.P.)— The city gave up plans to pick up stray dogs. Angry citizens had broken all the windows in the building where the dogs were to be impounded.

Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Correspondent

Editor's Note: Aline Mosby is with the UP convention bureau in San Francisco. Today's guest column is by Phil Rapp, writer-director of Wally Cox's new TV series, "The Adventures of Hiram Holliday."

BY PHIL RAPP

Hollywood— (U.P.) —I was sorry to see "Mr. Peepers" go. He was a nice fellow and he was around so long I'd grown to like him.

But I can't lament his passing too greatly. For ten years I've wanted to put "Hiram Holliday" on film, and in my mind at least, there was only one person cut out to play the part—Wally Cox.

When "Peepers" folded on NBC-TV, I saw my chance and started negotiations with Wally right away.

Bewildered Teacher

For one thing "Peepers" had a single dimension. He was the shy and somewhat bewildered school teacher whose response in any situation was predictable. "Hiram" preserves much of "Peepers" but adds something.

In the new TV series, Hiram Holliday, a character created by Paul Gallico for Cosmopolitan Magazine in 1939, is an obscure proof reader on a New York newspaper. His spare dollars and hours are devoted to developing an amazing knowledge of the world and physical skills like fencing, swimming, judo, etc., so that beneath the innocuous facade of proof reader he is really a highly trained athlete, sort of a pint-sized Douglas Fairbanks.

Publisher Saved

Hiram's adventures begin when, by catching a transposed comma, he saves the publisher from a million dollar damage suit. The publisher sends him on a round-the-world trip and assigns a reporter to write about his adventures.

Thus Wally gets to show an under side of his nature that could never burst out of the "Peepers" frame. His first "Hiram Holliday" film will appear Oct. 3.

Hiram Holliday is another Walter Mitty, the difference being he really can do the things Mitty dreams about.

Oregon Reports New Cases of TB

Dr. A. Erin Merkel recently urged all Jackson county residents to get chest x-rays and emphasized that there were 56 new cses of tuberculosis reported in Oregon during June.

This compared with 45 new cases for June a year ago, according to the Oregon State Board of Health. The cumlative total of new TB cases in the state during the first six months of this year is 303. Last year's total was 305.

The Jackson County Public Health association operates a chest x-ray clinic at the Sacred Heart hospital for the convenience of the public. Clinic hours are from 2 to 5 p.m. every Thursday and from 7 to 9 p.m. the first Wednesday of each month.

More than $800 million were spent in the United States last year by governmental and non-governmental agencies for the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of tuberculosis, Dr. Merkel said. The average cost of treatment of a person who has the disease is $15,000, he added.
