

Fruit Publication Editor Visits Group

Special guest at the Thursday meeting of the Rogue River Valley Traffic association was Oscar Bower, managing editor of International Fruit Word publication. He was introduced by Carroll Miller of Pinnacle Packing company.

Bower is on a tour of the major fruit districts of the United States and will travel to San Jose, Calif., from here and then to Mexico and South America. The publication is issued three times a year and is published in Switzerland. It deals with developments and problems of marketing and production of the world wide fruit industry.

Bower said one story that he was particularly interested in for use in an early issue was the development of the Oregon-Washington-California pear bureau. He said that fruit districts in other parts of the world would be benefited by learning of the methods used in promoting increased use of their products in their domestic markets.

'Sleepy' Making Rounds in Medford

If you saw a bear wandering around Medford today, your eyes weren't playing tricks.

The "bear" is "Sleepy," a copyrighted costume character given life by Les Sears of San Diego, who is visiting Medford on behalf of the company for which he works, the Travelodge corporation.

It's a pure and simple publicity gag and attention-getter, Sears admits freely. But he says he has so much fun with his bear costume, with "Goldilocks," the life-size rag doll with which he dances, and with the kids who flock around him, that it's grown to be more than just a gimmick.

Sears (as "Sleepy") was making the rounds this afternoon, and he'll do so again tomorrow. And he'll also tell you about the parades he's marched in, the beauty contests he's enjoyed, the children's hospitals he's visited—mostly for fun, but with a little plug for his motel chain on the side.

His visit to Medford is in advance of the Sept. 11 opening of a Travel Lodge here, at 722 North Riverside ave., to be operated by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Keeler. The motel is the first of the chain in Oregon, but five others will be built soon under the company's policy of 50-50 ownership with the local managers. There are 56 in California, and others in Washington and most going up in Arizona and Mexico.

Sears hopes, again as "Sleepy," to be back in time for the motel opening—but he may be too busy opening the California State fair, he said.

Stock Market Higher; Aircraft Strongest

New York—(U.P.)—Stocks made a quiet advance in the weekend session today with aircrafts the strongest group.

Aircrafts registered gains ranging to more than a point. Rails outpaced industrials on a percentage basis with a long list of them up small amounts. Steels produced several strong spots. So did the nonferrous metal group. Building issues perked up, and a long list of specialties registered good gains. Utilities sagged averagewise.

The improved tone followed a smart recovery Thursday. It reflected in part the recent rise in money rates indicating a booming industry.

Horror Production Scheduled Tonight

Ashland — All doctors and nurses planning to attend the Oregon Shakespearean festival's performance of "Titus Andronicus" this evening are requested by festival officials to report seat numbers at the box office.

William Patton, general manager, says they may be needed in the theatre this evening—and he declares this is no publicity gag. As proof, he points out that one member of the cast fainted at the dress rehearsal last evening, and others came close to doing so.

"Titus" was popular in Shakespeare's time, but Elizabethans were notoriously addicted to horror of the most overt kind. The play, rarely done in modern times, is considered one of the most horrendous ever written.
