

Rev. Fritchman Speaks On 'Gadfly' Religion

"The God of the pre-Darwinian and pre-Einstein world is dead beyond recovery and resurrection; no genteel ambiguity and learned juggling of medieval or transcendental theology will long postpone the day of judgment."

The Rev. Stephen H. Fritchman, minister of First Unitarian church, Los Angeles, and former editor of the official publication of the church, the "Christian Register," spoke thusly at a meeting of the Unitarian Fellowship here at the Labor temple. His topic was "The Role of a 'Gadfly' Religion."

"Modern science has closed the door on 99 per cent of our religious presuppositions," the Rev. Mr. Fritchman declared, adding "Pietism and good works of charity will not replace some hard, honest thinking if we are to keep an open church."

The Rev. Mr. Fritchman began his talk by saying that religion has many good roles to play in a man's life, but that "by criticizing our own lives, and our world of human relations, we transcend our world and exercise our freedom as men." Pointing out that the gadfly function of religion has had a supernatural authority, the speaker said "the endemic sickness of our time is conformity and silence, yet this is a sickness that can destroy us."

"The official and established religions have, with rare exceptions, contributed to the sordid process—the deadening of man's critical faculties, his chief source of advancement and freedom." Quoting Eric Fromm's book, "The Sane Society" to the effect that religious enthusiasm for the past 200 years has been found in movements which have broken with traditional religion, he continued by saying "The worst enemies of Jesus, Buddha, Mohammed, and Roger Williams were not atheists but ordained clergy at the altar." He said Fromm concluded that "religion for millions of fine people is inimical to human progress, in its organized form it seems to have supported docility, conformity and submission to arbitrary authority."

"It is unhappily true that professional religious leaders have all too often an occupational fear of the thinking man, or the reforming man," he said. "It is no accident that conservative governments in all eras, including our own, have recognized this fact and found the priestly class invaluable allies in maintaining the status quo."

The Rev. Mr. Fritchman quoted also from Professor Harvey Seifert of the USC School of Religion who wrote recently that social liberals "seem content with tiny tinkering at the social structure" and quoted him as saying that the "neo-orthodox in Protestantism put their emphasis on the sovereignty of God interpreted in such a way that the nerve of human effort is severed; they reject the role of human reason, they neglect the human potentialities for goodness, so that we end up with an ethics of accommodation."

The Rev. Mr. Fritchman then added that "if we teach the evil of human nature, and stress a deep pessimism about man's powers, as the neo-orthodox do, we leave men and women without courage or hope to remedy their plight. . . they end up leaving the matter in the hands of a transcendent God who seems to have a time table of his own, strangely unrelated to the prevailing misery of man. . . I would add to Dr. Seifert's fine words my own conviction that theology, orthodox and liberal, needs a gadfly these days."

The speaker said that "employment of critical imagination is one of the hallmarks of our being human, and without it we are but half-men. The democratic way of life calls for whole men, and it cannot function without them. Only the whole man is a moral man."

The Rev. Mr. Fritchman said that authentic religion gives man a "divine impatience" and added "the danger in past centuries was that men would become slaves; in our time it is that man will become robots, that we will lose that which makes us most truly human, our power of thought and feeling."

He spoke of the recent Gallup poll which showed that the American people are ready for far more progressive legislation and action than their congress gave them in the session just ended, said "No salvation in religion or politics or education comes from the skies or from the top echelons of power. It comes, I feel, from the military, the energy and the critical thinking of the rank and file person. It is the common man who turns the world upside down."

The speaker concluded by saying that because of science, this generation has the power not only to affect history, but the power to reverse history—to return to the wilderness and jungle—and that because of this "we are in great jeopardy." Stressing that "man can think and man can act" the speaker said "we need not become a nation of shopkeepers and boarders, playboys and mere TV viewers, bereft of initiative and resourcefulness."

His concluding quotation was, "What is a man, if his chief good and market of his time be . . ."

but to sleep and feed? A beast, no more. Sure he that made us with such large discourse, looking before and after, gave us not that capability and godlike reason to fust in us, unused." He then added "It was true in Hamlet's time; it is even more imperative today."

Mr. Fritchman was introduced by Mrs. A. H. Hatch. A discussion period and refreshments followed the talk.

Man Files Suit In Circuit Court After Jail Release

Jesse F. Dressler, Old Stage rd., Jacksonville, has filed a damage suit in circuit court against Roby L. Isaacs, Nate H. Smith, and Iris Smith, who he claims caused him to be wrongfully imprisoned in the Jackson county jail.

Dressler is asking $20,000 general damages, $20,000 punitive and exemplary damages, $2,000 special damages, and costs.

Released from Jail In the suit, the plaintiff charges that on or about Aug. 27, 1954, the defendants wrongfully caused him to be imprisoned in the Jackson county jail, and that by order of the circuit court he was released Sept. 9, 1954. He claims legal costs of obtaining the release were $2,000.

On a separate cause of action, Dressler alleges that on or about Aug. 27, 1954, the defendants falsely accused him of being an insane or mentally ill person, causing a warrant to be issued and himself to be placed in the county jail.

Makes Claim On both counts, the plaintiff claims he suffered "great mental pain and anguish and was caused undue humiliation, all to his damage in the sum of $20,000."

The law firm of Roberts, Kellington and Branchfield represents the plaintiff.

Members of Board Honor School Clerk

Mrs. Ruth Stocks, who is retiring after 25 years as clerk of Howard school district 100, was honored recently at a meeting of the board members.

Mrs. Stocks was elected to her position in 1931, when only four teachers were employed, including the principal, who also taught seventh and eighth grades. Enrollment at the school totaled 90 pupils. In the school year of 1955-56, there were 17 teachers and the principal, with a total enrollment of 422.

School directors presented Mrs. Stocks with a gift of luggage and passed the following resolution:

"In deep appreciation and gratitude for 25 years of faithful service to Howard school and the thousands of children who have gone through its portals during the years she served as clerk of the school board, we, the present members of the board, express our heartfelt thanks and wish Mrs. Ruth Stocks the best there is through the years ahead."

The resolution was signed by George C. Flanagan, board chairman; Don J. Elliot, Jack R. Campbell, M. C. Friend and Bud Hurt, board members; Harold F. Boner, principal; Lorraine Eaton, PTA president; Mary L. Hurt, PTA treasurer; Erma Breeden, PTA vice president, and Marie Henney, PTA secretary.

Junior Girls To Return From Camp Eleven junior girls are scheduled to return to Medford tomorrow morning from the Nazarene Youth Camp on the McKenzie. Twenty-six young people from the church have attended three of the graded camps scheduled annually by the Oregon Pacific District church of the Nazarene.

A camp for adults is also held annually in addition to the various camps for young people. Those returning from the camp include: Cheryl Mansveld, Karen Mansveld, Connie Robinson, Lois Tompkins, Connie Hurn, Carol Beard, Deena Beard, Jannette McArthur, Lydia Orgain, Diana Vinzant and Julie Griffin.

'Togetherness' September Theme At Baptist Church

A campaign to enlist whole families for the Sunday school will take the spotlight during September at the First Baptist church. The theme of the drive, "Let's Go Together to Sunday School," will be featured on posters, letterheads, and invitations sent to members of the church. Parents of children in the Sunday school will be invited to attend the classes for adults.

There are two reasons for the family emphasis, according to Rev. James Neely, pastor of the church. "Many Sunday school members drop out of classes when they reach their teens thinking that it is only for children. Then families need to do things as a unit. A spiritual emphasis in a home becomes quite difficult unless there is a feeling of 'togetherness' in the worship and study habits endorsed by the parents."

Fellowship Camps Report Record Attendance

The Southern Oregon Community Churches fellowship report a record attendance of 158 young people at the Youth Bible camp. The Bible camps are being held at Camp McLaughlin.

During the past five years Bible camps have been held at various locations. The Fellowship sponsors junior boys, junior girls, and young people's camps. Last week 129 junior boys were registered. The junior girl's camp will be held Aug. 27 to Sept. 1.

A number of young people are attending from Central Point Community Bible church, Trail Community church, Eagle Point Community church, Berean Baptist, Medford Community church and Hillside Chapel, Ashland, as well as 20 other churches.

Dr. Elmer Wilder, youth worker and author, is the speaker for the three camps. The Rev. Rolf Hansen of Spokane Beacon chapel is the young people's evangelist. The Rev. Noel Olson is camp director.

Anyone wishing to attend this camp should contact the pastor of any of the churches in the fellowship.
