Waitress Sought For Questioning In Kidnap Case

Woman Disappears After Few Drinks

Mineola, N.Y. — (U.P.) — A fast-drinking waitress who failed to go home to her husband and five children Friday night was sought by police today as a possible witness in the kidnaping of infant Peter Weinberger.

The search for Aida Cherniachovskiy, 30-year-old employee of a pizza restaurant, began after Angelo John Lemarca confessed he kidnaped Peter July 4 and left him to die in a rainstorm.

Kept Child All Night — Lemarca told police he kept the 32-day-old child with him all night and then abandoned him in a honeysuckle thicket the next day. Police had not determined whether he had any accomplices.

Nassau county police tried to keep their activities secret, but some information leaked out. Lemarca, 31-year-old mechanic, underwent a 90-minute psychiatric examination Saturday after a mysterious eight-hour absence from his jail cell.

Mrs. Cherniachovskiy, also known as Aida Yoos and Aida Dart, worked as a waitress in Mama Lianzo's Pizzeria in West Hempstead, Long Island, and frequented the Short Rail bar, also in West Hempstead. Mrs. Norma Solis, a barmaid at the tavern, said the pizza waitress had a few quick drinks Friday night and then left with a man. She had not been seen since.

Shocked at Disappearance — "She is a very good worker, a very hard worker and honest as they come," said Phil Lianzo, her employer. "I'm shocked at her disappearance. She never did this before." Police would not disclose exactly why they wanted to see Mrs. Cherniachovskiy.

The bereaved parents of the dead child had hoped until the very end that he would be found alive. They remained in seclusion at their home in Westbury, Long Island, awaiting release of the baby's body so they could arrange a funeral service for him.

Kennedy Unaware Of Wife's Illness

Hyannisport, Mass. — (U.P.) — Sen. John F. Kennedy, (D-Mass.), is yachting "somewhere in the Mediterranean (sea)," unaware that his wife suffered a miscarriage, the lawmaker's brother Robert said Saturday.

Mrs. Kennedy, 26, underwent an emergency operation earlier this week at a Newport, R.I. hospital suffering an internal hemorrhage. The child died but Mrs. Kennedy's post-operative condition was described as "good."

Robert Kennedy, counsel for a senate committee, said at his Cape Cod home Saturday that the senator had flown to Europe immediately after the close of last week's Democratic National convention in Chicago. Sen. Kennedy lost the vice presidential nomination to Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

Bomb Hoax Clears Hollywood Theater

Hollywood — (U.P.) — A bomb hoax Saturday cleared Grauman's Chinese theater of some 500 persons.

Hollywood police searched the premises without result following an anonymous telephone call warning that a bomb was set to go off in the theater at 2 p.m.

"Well, Men, That Buttons It Up"

Nasser Calls Cabinet To Consider Menzies' Offer of Discussion

Cairo — (U.P.) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser has called his cabinet into special session today to consider an invitation from Australian Premier Robert G. Menzies to discuss the Suez question, it was announced last night.

Nasser called the cabinet session a few hours after receiving a message from Menzies, who heads the five-nation commission appointed by the London Suez conference to convey its findings to Egypt.

But while Nasser considered the Western overture for a peaceful settlement of the dispute, thousands of Frenchmen made plans to leave Egypt in a new wave of pessimism over the canal crisis.

Thousands Seek Information — Many of the 7,000 French residents of Egypt lined up outside their consulate in downtown Cairo to seek further information on how to leave if things get worse in the wake of the London Suez conference.

A French embassy spokesman said his government's advice had been renewed to French residents urging them to quit Egypt unless they had a "compelling reason" to stay. He said the word was spread quietly through the French community Friday.

Mothers in sun suits brought their children with them and businessmen took time out from work to join the queues. Many frangely were worried at leaving Egypt, where a thriving French colony has existed for years.

British embassy sources said no similar warning had been issued to Britons recently, although a mild warning has circulated there when the Suez crisis first broke in July. They were told then that wives and families would be better off at home than in Egypt. Many since have left.

Military Buildings Continue — The new decision urging Frenchmen to leave came as Britain and France continued with their military buildups for the Middle East and Egypt indoctrinated its people for a possible fight.

Despite these maneuvers, the diplomats continued their efforts to obtain a workable and peaceful solution to the Canal emergency.

The complete written record of the 22-nation Suez Canal conference which ended in London last Thursday was on its way to the Egyptian government for consideration. So was a proposal for direct talks between Egypt and a five-power committee set up by the majority members of the London conference.

The latter group was assured of a welcome to Cairo, but officials pointed out that this did not mean that Egypt was willing to negotiate on the basis of its plan for internationalizing the Suez Canal.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that Egypt will continue to prevent ships carrying "war materials" to or from Israel from passing through the Canal.

Search Called Off For Naval Airmen Off China Coast

Continued Watch Ordered in Area

Taipei, Formosa — (U.P.) — The U.S. Chief of Naval Operations has ordered an end to the huge sea and air search for 15 American Naval airmen shot down off Red China two days ago.

The orders called for a continued watch in the immediate area where the body of the 16th member of the plane's crew was found.

But most of the ships which had been standing by to resume the suspended search were ordered back to regular duty.

The vast search was set off originally when a Martin Mercator Navy plane on a "routine flight" over the Formosa Strait was attacked and shot down Thursday by "unidentified aircraft" believed to be Chinese Red fighters.

The last reported position of the plane was 160 miles north of Formosa and 32 miles off the coast of Red China near Shanghai. The body of Electronic Technician 1/c Albert P. Mattin, of Delta, O., two life rafts and bits of plane wreckage were found 100 miles southeast of Shanghai.

Only Evidence — This was the only evidence of the incident, and the fact that only one body had been found in three days led to belief among Naval officers that the rest of the 15 men went down with the wreckage or were picked up by Chinese fishermen.

Mattin's body was flown back to the Iwakuni, Japan, Naval Air Base where the destroyed plane had been stationed. A memorial service will be held there Monday and his body returned to the United States Tuesday.

Russia Sends World Disarmament Plan In Vatican Approach

Vatican City — (U.P.) — The Soviet Union has sent proposals for world disarmament to Pope Pius XII in its first diplomatic overture to the Vatican, it was disclosed Saturday.

The Vatican press office said Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin's appeal to the parliaments of the world for disarmament was received two days ago. It was given to Msgr. Giuseppe Fietta, Papal Nuncio to Italy, by Dmitri Pojidaev, Soviet charge d'affaires in Rome.

No Direct Relations — The Soviet Union has had no direct diplomatic relations with the Vatican since the Communist revolution. The unprecedented contact between the Russian chief of mission and the Papal Nuncio in Rome, therefore, was the nearest Moscow could come to a direct diplomatic approach.

The only Communist state which still has direct diplomatic relations with the Holy See is the tiny republic of San Marino in northern Italy.

In the past, the Soviet Union and other Communist states and organizations have ignored the Vatican in their appeals for world peace—a subject close to the Pope's heart.

One notable exception was in 1951 when French scientist Frederic Joliot-Curie sent a letter to the Pope informing him of peace resolutions passed by the congress of the Communist-run "Peace Partisans" staged in Rome.

Sure Way of Approach — The Russians appeal for disarmament was one sure vehicle through which Soviet diplomacy could make its first tentative approach to the Vatican. It was bound to be accepted.

The Pope himself called for disarmament in his last Christmas speech. But, Vatican sources pointed out, there must be adequate controls and inspection.

Rumors of an impending diplomatic approach by the Soviet Union to the Vatican have been current in Rome for many months. Some reports even went so far as to say that Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov would propose establishing diplomatic relations between the two states.

Carl W. McMillan Found Guilty of Drunken Driving

Carl Wallace McMillan, 50, route 2, box 816, Central Point, Saturday was found guilty of driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

A six member district court jury returned its unanimous verdict at about 3:10 p.m. after approximately 20 minutes of deliberation. The trial began Friday morning. District Court Judge Rawles Moore set 10 a.m. Wednesday for sentencing.

McMillan was the driver of a car which struck a jeep in which were riding members of the Arthur Hanshaw family, 211½ North Columbus ave., last July 21. Eight-week-old Michael Hanshaw was killed in the accident and several others in the family were injured.

McMillan may be taken before a grand jury soon to face possible negligent homicide or manslaughter charges. District Attorney Walter Nunley said before the verdict was in that whether or not McMillan would go before the grand jury depended largely upon the outcome of Saturday's trial.

Nunley prosecuted the case on behalf of the state. McMillan was defended by Attorneys Noreen and Edward Kelly.

Tension Mounts In Feather Falls Pine Mill Strife

Union 'Reign of Terror' Charged by Official

Feather Falls, Calif. — (U.P.) — This tiny lumber town, hit by labor strife, violence and threats, bristled Saturday into an armed camp reminiscent of the old West.

Almost the entire male population of some 300, employees of the Feather River pine mills, carried sidearms in either hip or shoulder holsters in readiness to combat what a mill official called a union "reign of terror." Deputies Added

Sheriff Larry Gillick added 12 extra deputies to his force and warned both the lumber and sawmill workers union (AFL) pickets and the non-union mill workers he would brook no law-breaking. Gillick refused to issue permits to carry concealed weapons, but the unconcealed weapons were said to be legal.

The union went on strike at the lumber mill two years ago. Two months later the company reopened with non-union help. The situation was static until a week ago when a company-owned railroad bridge over the South Fork Feather River canyon burned.

FBI Investigators — Gillick and state officials said the burning appeared to be arson and the FBI began investigating. The railroad was the company's main supply and delivery route between the mill and Oroville, Calif., 19 miles to the east.

The only other access to the plant, a company-owned truck bridge across the canyon, was posted with armed guards.

Armed guards also began riding in the cabs of the trucks after the home of Sacramento trucking executive George Dunlap was bombed and oil tanker driver Ralph Hudson of Chico, Calif., was beaten outside an Oroville cafe Friday.

Both Dunlap's trucks and Hudson had crossed the picket line.

Luther Sizemore, international representative of the union, denied union men were involved in the violence and said the union "can't always control the actions of some individuals who are not under our jurisdiction."

William Gamble, general manager of the mill and the company's railroad, notified Gov. Goodwin J. Knight of the situation Saturday and said his workers were thinking of forming a vigilantes committee as "a good way to handle things."

State Kept Closely Advised — Knight replied that he had received no indication that local law enforcement had broken down. But he said the state is "being kept closely advised of the situation."

A United Press reporter at the scene said the situation was "very, very tense." He said most of the mill workers were men who quit the union when the strike was called and now "95 per cent are violent non-union."

He said the workers were incensed especially because the wives of several had been telephoned by unidentified persons who threatened to beat their husbands if they reported for work.

The union pickets and other representatives appeared to be unarmed, he said, although a baseball bat was seen in the car of one picket.

The mill is owned by Georgia-Pacific Plywood Corp., Portland, Ore., the second largest lumber company in the world.

Two Sentenced To Penitentiary; Other Cases Heard

Norman Lee Stegner, 29, of 532 Pennsylvania ave., and Bob Spriggs, 38, of 405 Earhart st., were given two year sentences in the Oregon state penitentiary by Circuit Court Judge Orval J. Millard Friday.

Stegner was charged with grand larceny in connection with the theft of two chain saws in a city police case. Spriggs was charged with "forgery."

In other court action Friday, Elmer Dean Fry, 22, Miami, Okla., was fined $200 for unlawful possession of a weapon. C. W. Henderson, 19, of 124 Tripp st., was sentenced to one year in the county jail for causing injury to property with explosives. John Earl Simon, 26, route 1, box 63, Central Point, was voluntarily committed to the state hospital for 30 days' observation in the same case.

Henderson and Simon were accused of setting off a stick of dynamite in a pump house on the Old Stage rd. July 3. Several burglaries and an arson case were also cleared with their arrest, according to sheriff's deputies.

Both Mrs. Larc Searcy, 30, Portland, and J. B. Berriman, 39, of 306 Effie st., were given three year suspended sentences, she for larceny in a building and he for receiving stolen property. Berriman was involved in the same case as Stegner and was accused of receiving and concealing the stolen chain saws.

Bomb Burst Damages Home of Southerner

Montgomery, Ala. — (U.P.) — A bomb burst damaged the home of a white minister who has encouraged Negro bus boycotters Saturday and ended the lull in this old Confederate Capital's eight-months racial struggle.

The intended target of the home-made dynamite bomb, The Rev. Robert Graetz, 27, and his family were visiting in Tennessee. The blast ripped out windows and knocked a hole in the front door. Windows also were blown out in a house across the street but no one was injured.

The Rev. Graetz, a soft-spoken Lutheran minister, only this week had called on the Montgomery ministerial association to bear a leader of the boycott, the Rev. M. L. King, explain the Negroes' position. His request was refused.

Mrs. Charles W. Koyl Succumbs at Hospital

Mrs. Charles W. Koyl, 64, died at a local hospital Saturday night. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Jackson, former Jackson county sheriff. Funeral services are pending at Litwiler funeral home in Ashland.

Disappearance of Infant Explained by Young Mother

The temporary disappearance of 3½-month-old Jeanne Marie Pfluke called police at 10:52 p.m. and reported her child missing from the family home at 146 South Ivy st.

Police said Mrs. Pfluke, who is in her early 20s, was distraught as a result of personal problems.

District Attorney Walter Nunley said no charges are being filed, but it is with the understanding that Mrs. Pfluke and her husband, Chester Pfluke, will seek psychiatric help.

Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey, 62, Succumbs To Heart Ailment

Bloomington, Ind. — (U.P.) — Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey, 62, whose scientific studies on human sex behavior became controversial best sellers at home and abroad, died Saturday of a heart ailment and pneumonia.

The author of the famed "Kinsey Reports" died at Bloomington hospital where he was a patient for three days.

At his bedside, when death halted the work he launched 18 years ago, was Kinsey's wife, Clara. Relatives requested no floral tributes, but rather that contributions be made to Kinsey's Sex Institute to further the studies. Funeral arrangements were pending.

Kinsey, who became the world's foremost authority on the life and habits of the Gall Weevil before turning his scientific talents to the study of humans, had been in failing health for some time.

Third Book Interrupted — His last illness, described as a "heart flareup," interrupted work on a third book, "Sex Law and the Sex Offender." The book, based on conclusions he drew from his two previous works, was expected to recommend revisions of sex laws on grounds many of them are obsolete.

Kinsey recently caught a "summer cold" which developed into pneumonia and complicated his heart condition. He then suffered another heart seizure, but associates as late as Friday denied he was critically ill.
