New Rogue Basin Report Due Soon

"Studies and reanalysis" are under way to "outline a plan of development for the Rogue River Basin which would take into account the relative merits of . . . diverse interests," according to the bureau of reclamation.

Aug. 31 Deadline For First Contract On Talent Project

Aug. 31 is the deadline for the award of a contract for initial construction work on the Talent irrigation and reclamation project at Deadwood tunnel, according to the bureau of reclamation.

Bids were opened earlier this summer, with Lord Construction company making the low offer. Award could not be made until the election last week at which landowners of the Talent Irrigation district approved a repayment contract with the bureau.

Representatives of the district were to sign the contract today, and it is expected the bureau's regional office will give the go-ahead to the construction firm within the next day or two.

The bureau of reclamation will open bids at 10 a. m. tomorrow on another portion of the rehabilitation work on the Medford and Rogue River Valley Irrigation districts. Bids will be opened at the bureau's office in Building 234 at Camp White.

Work involved is for earthwork, pipelines and structures at the Yankee creek and Antelope creek siphons on the Medford canal, both about 15 miles northeast of Medford.

On Friday at 10 a. m., bids will be opened on asphalt tiling and stair nosing for the bureau's Camp White office.

Vancouver Avenue Homes Burglarized

Two residences on Vancouver ave. were burglarized between 10:30 p. m. Saturday and 6:45 a. m. Sunday, according to Medford police.

Hugh Downing Remington, 28 Vancouver ave., reported to police Sunday morning that his home had been robbed of about $11 in cash. Remington told police that someone had come into his bedroom during the night and taken his clothes from a chair near the bed.

Police said Remington found his clothes in the morning on the work bench in his garage. The money was in his pants pocket. Remington said that all doors were unlocked and no force was necessary to gain entrance, police reported.

The Rev. Kenneth Frederick Korby, 18 Vancouver ave., also reported to city police a break and entry at his residence Sunday. He said that while he was sleeping a wallet containing about $10 or $12 in cash was taken from his bedroom.

Police reported that entrance was made by the front door, which was unlocked.

Richard—(U.P.)—Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson was scheduled to make a "routine rush visit" at the Hanford Atomic Works near here today.

Wilson was to fly here from Washington, D.C., make the tour and then return.

Governor Knight Asked To Help Solve Explosive Feather Falls Labor Dispute

Oroville, Calif.—(U.P.)—Luther A. Sizemore, international representative of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, called on Gov. Goodwin J. Knight today to help resolve the explosive Feather River pine mills labor battle.

In a telegram, Sizemore called the present situation at the Oroville mills "tense" and asked Knight to contact top union officials and executives of the Georgia-Pacific Corp., owner of the mill, to "suggest they make an honorable settlement of this undesirable labor dispute."

Sizemore accused mill General Superintendent W. W. Gamble of "encouraging employees to carry guns." He said "somebody is bound to get hurt or prepared about the first of the coming year.

The new studies were set in motion last March following the disastrous floods along the Rogue river. They were ordered by the then secretary of the interior, Douglas McKay, who requested an immediate review and reanalysis of all available studies and data on the basin.

His action came less than a year after the bureau of reclamation's earlier report on a major basin development for this area was ordered put on the shelf. The earlier report, prepared over a period of several years, proposed a multi-purpose development of the Rogue basin, including a number of small dams on watershed streams and a high dam across the Rogue river at Lewis creek.

The report was completed in 1950. It was the subject of controversy and dispute which reached its high point in public hearings in Medford in June, 1948, when advocates and opponents of the project proposal presented their cases. Opponents consisted largely of fish, wildlife and conservation interests.

Supporters were advocates of more irrigation, power and flood control in the area.

Because of the opposition, the plan was never placed in effect, although part of it, the Talent project, was. In April, 1955, Secretary McKay told his bureau and department heads the proposed basin developments were no longer under consideration.

However, last winter's floods resulted in the new directive, which told the agencies that "the object of the present coordinated review will be to reach agreement on a plan of development which will properly take into account the divergent interest of the interior bureaus, make possible the development of additional flood protection desired by local interests, and otherwise be acceptable to local interests and sportsmen's groups."

Nelson's letter added: "The bureau of reclamation was directed to give specific consideration to methods of flood control for the main stem of the Rogue river other than Lewis Creek dam in order to fully appraise alternatives which would minimize damage to fishery resources.

"The fish and wildlife service was directed to evaluate the fishery losses which would result from construction of Lewis creek or other dams, and to prepare and appraise plans of remedial measures which would minimize or offset losses from all plans of development."

Nelson said that a first hand inspection of the Rogue River basin was made by representatives of the several agencies of the department shortly after the new directive was issued last March, and that the agencies are now gathering and evaluating data. He said the report resulting from these studies should be available about the first of the year.

Robbery Suspects Arrive Tomorrow

Deputy Sheriff Barney Tennant is due to arrive here tomorrow with two prisoners from Pendleton who are suspects in an $800 armed robbery here Aug. 12.

John Albert Olson, 20, of 423 Plum st., and Roy B. Armstrong, 23, address unknown, reportedly turned themselves in to Pendleton city police Saturday. They are suspected of robbing Fritz Boight of $800 cash at the point of a gun at 401 Orchards two weeks ago.

Jackson county authorities held warrants for the arrest of the pair and they are being returned to face charges here.

killed." However, Sizemore denied that "union people" were carrying arms.

Sizemore said he had asked the union's international officers to approve the establishment of picket lines at all Georgia-Pacific lumber mills with union affiliations. This could result in a nationwide walkout against the corporation, second largest lumber company in the world.

Meanwhile, Georgia-Pacific Vice President R. E. Flowerree, in charge of West Coast operations, said there was "no strike at Feather Falls."

State Treasury Surplus Neither Inequity Nor Iniquity, Sen. Lee Ohmart Declares

Portland — (U.P.) — The $30 million surplus produced as a result of the surtax "is neither an inequity nor an iniquity," State Sen. Lee Ohmart, Salem, vice chairman of the Interim Tax committee told the board of governors of the Oregon Association of Public Accountants at their meeting here last week end.

Ohmart told his audience that "it is not necessary to defend any surplus." He said the state could just as easily have ended the accounting period with a deficit of an equal amount.

"Had we had an economic recession or a serious strike, we could just as well have had a like deficit," Ohmart contended.

Ohmart reported that copies of the preliminary draft of the 11-member tax committee's proposals are now available to groups and individuals who wish to study the plan, which includes repeal of the surtax and enactment of a 3 per cent sales and use tax with certain basic exemptions.

"It is the consensus of the committee that the sales tax will produce a marked reduction in the state income tax," Ohmart said, and assured his listeners that a sales tax would not be in addition to their taxes.

He estimated that a sales tax would yield $120 million revenue for the biennium, as compared to $147 million for the income tax and the surtax.

Egypt Delays Reply On Suez Canal Talks

London — (U.P.) — Egypt put off for another 24 hours today any reply to a five-nation committee's invitation for further talks on the future of the Suez Canal.

The committee headed by Prime Minister R. G. Menzies of Australia met for two hours today in expectation of receiving an answer from Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser. Then it adjourned until Tuesday.

Officials in Cairo announced that Nasser's reply would be delivered Tuesday when it will be presented through the Egyptian Embassy here.

The Menzies committee, set up by the 18 nations which supported Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' plan for international control of the Suez Canal, met to study semi-official Egyptian reports that its members would be invited to hold talks in Egypt.

Home Economics Fair Awards Given

Ten home economics awards and the style review champion were announced Saturday evening at the special awards program which closed the Jackson county 4-H and Future Farmers of America fair.

Linda Malloroy, Antelope, received the style review award for being grand champion. She received an engraved trophy from the Medford Branch of the U.S. National Bank.

Other winners included Susie Palm, S and R Sewing club, Eagle Point, and Virginia Martin, Phoenix, outstanding clothing club members; J. C. Penney's special award summer school scholarship; Pat Cranston, Medford, and Patsy Charley, Kandy Kids of Central Point, best food preparation or food preservation demonstration team, one-half toward summer school scholarship by Safeway Stores, Inc.; Marlene Coffman and Cheryl Gherlarde, Kandy Kids of Central Point, best food preservation or food preparation demonstration in which 25 per cent of the sweetening agent is honey, cash awards by Oregon Beekeepers' association; Joan Dobrot, Kandy Kids, Central Point, outstanding cooking club member; Larry Schade trophy donated by Schade's Jewelry store; and Pat Cranston, Medford, and Nedra Harris, Phoenix, highest scoring exhibit in each of the cookery and food

Nasser's Decision On Invitation Due To Be Made Tuesday

London — (U.P.) — Egypt put off for another 24 hours today any reply to a five-nation committee's invitation for further talks on the future of the Suez Canal.

Second Bear Creek Bids Open Tuesday

Bids for construction work along the left bank of Bear creek are to be opened in the Portland office of the Army corps of engineers tomorrow at 2 p. m., according to district engineer, Colonel Jackson Graham.

Bids were first asked on July 16 and were opened Aug. 1. But failure to obtain right of way caused the awarding of the contract to be delayed and the bids were cancelled.

The project would include 5,260 cubic yards of excavation, 500 cubic yards of embankment from gravel borrow and 4,020 cubic yards of dumped stone re-vestment.

Tydings' Wife To Seek Seat in Senate

Ocean City, Md. — (U.P.) — Mrs. Eleanor Tydings, wife of former Sen. Millard E. Tydings, has announced she is a candidate for the Maryland Democratic senatorial nomination.

Tydings, who lost to Sen. John Marshall Butler (R-Md.) in 1950 after five terms in the senate, won the Democratic nomination in a close primary race with George P. Mahoney, a Baltimore contractor. However, Tydings withdrew last week because of illness.

AFL-CIO Cracks Down On Three Unions

Forest Park, Pa. — (U.P.) — The AFL-CIO top command today cracked down on three unions with a total of 170,000 members on charges of corruption involving alleged union welfare fund abuses.

The AFL-CIO's 28-member Executive Council approved recommendations raising a threat of suspension against the 25,000-member Distillery Workers, the 72,000-member Laundry Workers and the 73,000-member Allied Industrial Workers, formerly known as the AFL United Auto Workers.

Pacific Palisades Slide Cleared Away; No Vehicles Trapped

Santa Monica, Calif. — (U.P.) — The Coast Highway below towering Pacific Palisades overlooking the Pacific ocean was cleared today, and workmen found that no vehicles were trapped in the slide which Sunday carried four women down a 150-foot cliff.

Two of the women suffered fractured vertebrae and two escaped serious injury in their terrifying descent down the perpendicular bluff.

Officials said the important route, Highway 101, would be open later today.

The four women were picnicking in a park on top of the cliff Sunday when a 150-foot section of the bluff edge crumbled with a roar and carried them tumbling to within 15 feet of the six-lane coast highway at the bottom.

Mrs. Eugenie Baughman, 72, nearly was buried in the mass of sliding dirt, trees and picnic tables, but managed to free herself with the help of bystanders.

The other three picnickers were identified as Eugene Baughman, 72, Maude Hankerson, 64, and Lucille Glenn, 48, all of Los Angeles. Mrs. Glenn and Mrs. Hankerson suffered spinal fractures. Their companions were given emergency treatment for shock, cuts and bruises, and sent home.

Heavy earth-moving equipment was swung into action and manned throughout the night at the spotlighted scene.

Motorist Bobby Sullivan and a companion, Jim Loftis, missed being buried alive by inches when Sullivan spotted the crumbling of the sandy earth and swerved to the left across the highway.

"It sounded like a waterfall," Sullivan said after climbing from his partly buried car.

Mr. Hayward said she remembered "being afraid we were going to be buried" in the tons of falling earth.

"We were tumbling over and over and dirt was coming down on top of us and everywhere else," she said.

The women said the fact that the earth was soft and moist probably saved them from death.

Mr. Glenn said, "the next guy who says picnic to me . . ."

The Pacific Palisades have been a constant slide threat for years. Twice this year huge chunks of the cliffs have broken away and buried the highway.

Reelection Plans Will Be Announced Soon After Return

President Will Spend Week End at Gettysburg

Pebble Beach, Calif. — (U.P.) — President Eisenhower, no longer a post-operative convalescent, will fly back to Washington Tuesday to map plans for his reelection campaign against his Democratic opponent, Adlai E. Stevenson.

The chief executive planned to take off from the Monterey Naval Air station early Tuesday, arriving in Washington between 8:30 p. m. and 9:30 p. m. (EDT).

In a briefing this morning, Press Secretary James C. Hagerly said the President's campaign plans would be announced "soon" after his return to the White House. This probably means some time next week because the President plans to drive to his farm at Gettysburg, Pa., Friday, for the week end.

Plays Golf Again

This morning the President played another 18 holes of golf over the tricky Cypress Point course, his fourth round in as many days.

Hagerly's announcement that the President would return to Washington Tuesday came somewhat as a surprise to some White House correspondents, who, along with the White House staff, thought the President might remain at the Cypress Point club through Wednesday.

However, Hagerly shrugged off the suggestion that the return Tuesday represented a change in plans. From other sources, however, it developed that the President was flying back Tuesday for two basic reasons:

Mamie Unenthusiastic

1. Today was foggy and overcast along the Monterey peninsula, leaving Mrs. Eisenhower something less than enthusiastic about staying longer.

2. The President is well aware that his Democratic opposition has started campaign slugging early and he wants to huddle with GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall on plans to open his own campaign Sept. 15.

Festival Scenes On Radio Tonight

The annual nationwide broadcast from the Oregon Shakespearean festival theater in Ashland will be heard over radio station KMED beginning at 8:30 p. m. today. The show will originate from NBC in Hollywood.

Andrew C. Love, NBC executive from Hollywood, was in Ashland earlier this summer supervising the tape recording of scenes from "Richard III" which will be broadcast tonight. Don Gunderson stars as Richard, William Oyler is narrator, and Frank Pincock of KMED is the announcer. William Dawkins prepared the script.

A re-broadcast over KMED is scheduled for Sept. 2 at 6 p. m. At 7:30 p. m. today, station KBES-TV will feature a half-hour show sponsored by the First National Bank of Portland. Gunderson will star and David Thayer, teacher of television at Iowa State college, a festival technician, will direct.

New Haven, Conn. — (U.P.) — Ed Sullivan, TV master of ceremonies and newspaper columnist has left Grace-New Haven hospital where he was admitted a week ago for treatment of a lung congestion.

San Francisco — (U.P.) — The western division of Safeway Stores, Inc., said it did not intend to raise coffee prices locally, despite a four-cent raise announced by the New York division of the chain store.
