Family Council

Sylvia—My husband doesn't want children.
Fred—I can't give them the right advantages.

Sylvia—Fred told me before we were married that he never wanted to have a family. He said his prospects were poor and that he didn't want to bring up children the way he had been brought up—in poverty. I was so much in love with him that I agreed to marriage on the basis that we were never to have children.

Now it turns out that Fred is doing much better than we ever expected him to and we are well able to support a family. I find that I want children more than I ever thought I would. I've promised Fred that if ever we find he cannot make ends meet, I'll gladly go to work, but he won't agree to this either.

He says we should break up and I want children so much. I love Fred and I want to stay with him, but I feel that life is very empty without children. I am now so unhappy I think of nothing else and cry all the time.

Fred—It's true that I'm now making out better financially than I could ever have hoped, but I don't know how long this will continue. There is a lot of uncertainty in my business. I don't believe in bringing up children in a home where the mother is working. People who can't give their children the right advantages in life shouldn't have them. I can't stand Sylvia's unhappiness and feel that we really should split up if she can't be happy with just me.

The Council: This unhappy man must come to realize that his fears are not really based on the financial problem, but on his very deep lack of confidence in himself and in life itself. His statement that he believes he and his wife should split up if she can't be happy with "just me" indicates that he sees himself as unable to share his wife's love with a child.

Fred is right when he believes that he cannot give children the "right advantages," but those advantages are not the ones he thinks they are. Surely he knows that many big, happy, healthy groups of youngsters have grown up in the midst of considerable economic distress.

The advantage Fred lacked and is unable at this point to give his children is the kind of love that produces in the young an optimistic, self-confident, outgoing attitude toward life. He also obviously lacked a happy family life.

Sylvia must have lacked some of these advantages as well, or she would not have agreed to a marriage on the basis Fred proposed. She could not have been "so much in love" with a man who let her know that he intended to frustrate some of her strongest desires unless she, too, was deeply insecure.

This couple is undoubtedly missing a great deal in life, but nagging and crying on Sylvia's part will only make Fred more stubborn and will damage the marriage relationship even further. Sylvia and Fred need more specialized and personal guidance and should seek help from a clergyman or family physician.

The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez
Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Sudden Death From Infection

Two grief-stricken parents have just asked me about the death of their six-weeks-old child. He seemed to be perfectly normal and healthy until one day he cried about 10 minutes before he quieted down. Twenty minutes later he was found dead, with blood and mucus flowing from his nose. The pathologist who examined the body found signs of an "acute fulminating streptococcus infection of the lungs, with septicemia." Fulminating means lightning-like; streptococcus are germs which sometimes are highly virulent, and septicemia means invasion of the blood by the bad germs.

The only comfort these unhappy people can now have is that there is nothing that they or anyone could have done to help the situation. Such tremendously virulent infections can kill an infant or child or even an adult within a matter of hours. Perhaps the germ or virus was particularly virulent, or perhaps the child or person for some reason had a low resistance to infection. We doctors cannot be sure.

Army physicians know that a soldier can go to bed one night feeling well, and in the morning can be found dead in his bed. Autopsy will show that he died of a virulent meningitis or brain fever, or perhaps a pneumonia, or a generalized infection of his blood. Similar happenings occur in zoos where a monkey who one evening was running around happily, the next morning was found dead. In a high percentage of those cases in which a mother thinks her baby smothered, autopsy shows signs of one of these fulminating infections of the lungs or brain or blood.

Dr. Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnose by mail.

Structures for Sale In Camp White

Several structures at Camp White will be offered for sale by the Army Corps of Engineers for removal from the premises, Col. R. J. B. Page, Seattle district engineer, has announced.

The buildings consist of five storehouses, 18 feet by 32 feet, with frame construction and concrete floors (purchasers will not be required to remove the concrete); nine utility buildings, 12 feet by 18 feet, all frame construction; and four observation towers, 20 feet high, with frame construction.

The property may be inspected during regular working hours, 8 a. m. to 4 p. m., at the following address: TOWNE BEAUTY SHOPPE, Ph. 2-4266

SHIRTS CARRY MESSAGE

Waterbury, Conn. — (U.P.) — The National Labor Relations Board rejected a losing union's project against allowing workers at a collective bargaining election to wear T-shirts with the slogan, "Vote for U.A.W."

There are about a hundred old-fashioned grist mills still in use along Ohio streams.

Plagued Day And Night with Bladder Discomfort?

Such a common thing as urinalysis or drinking may be a source of mild, but annoying bladder irritation—making you feel restless, tense, and uncomfortable. And if restlessness, with nagging backache, headache or muscular aches and pains due to over-exertion, strain or emotional upset, are adding to your misery—don't wait—try Doan's Pills.

How To Hold FALSE TEETH More Firmly In Place

Do your false teeth annoy and embarrass by slipping, dropping or wobbling when you eat, laugh or talk? Just sprinkle a little FASTERE on your plates. This alkaline (non-acid) powder holds false teeth more firmly and more comfortably. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTERE today at any drug counter.

Approval of Projects Creates New Jobs

Engineers, engineering aids, and construction inspectors are needed by the Bureau of Reclamation to fill jobs created by recent Congressional authorization of Colorado river storage and other projects.

The civil service jobs pay $4,480 for engineer, $5,335 for engineering aid, and $6,115 for construction inspectors, yearly salary. Most vacancies exist in Utah, western Colorado, California and Wyoming.

Information and application forms may be obtained from Chester W. Silliman, U.S. Post Office, or from the executive secretary, central board of U.S. Civil Service examiners, Bureau of Reclamation, Denver federal center, Denver, Colo.

Eight Presidents were born in Ohio.

1,000 Trees Planted in An Hour at Exhibition

Cleveland — (U.P.) — A mechanical tree planter "zipped" 1,000 trees an hour into the ground at a demonstration here.

The American Public Works Association described the device as a disk and plow connected to a tractor. The operator of the machine pokes a seedling through a slot in the machine at intervals after the disk has broken the earth.

Two rubber-tired wheels in a V-shape follow the planter and close the opening, "zipping" in the seedling.

Jubilee Scheduled At Cave Junction

Cave Junction — The people of Cave Junction and their valley neighbors are preparing for the 16th annual Illinois Valley jubilee celebration to be held here over the Labor Day weekend, Sept. 1-3.

For the first time since its inception, the jubilee is being sponsored solely by local citizens. More than 100 persons are working in 10 separate committees readying the town for week end events.

A queen contest will be held during a dance Saturday evening, Sept. 1. Saturday afternoon will feature children's games and contests.

A street parade will begin at noon on Monday. Other events planned for the three days include log bucking, axe throwing, and tree climbing contests; fire fighting exhibitions; square dances; amateur shows; and a barbecue.
