The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Mr. T. N.—My wife is spoiling our daughters.

Mrs. T. N.—They need clothes to develop confidence.

Mr. T. N.—I wonder whether a 15-year-old girl needs dozens and dozens of expensive dresses, shoes and a closetful of cosmetics. Ever since our daughter entered teenage, my wife has been encouraging her to buy and want these things.

I can't afford to keep my daughters in this kind of wardrobe. The two younger ones, who aren't even teenage, are beginning to want the same things. The girls seem to think I am some kind of monster when I object to this kind of extravagance. As a matter of fact, they are all lined up against me. I don't want to deprive my daughters of anything, but I can't see how I'm going to be able to see them all through until marriage at this rate.

My wife is spoiling them, making them think only of clothes and appearance.

beautifully dressed for the next ten years and more. If he weren't able to do this, I would be glad to go to work myself, because I think it is so important.

When I was a young girl, I was not very attractive and was badly dressed as well. My mother thought I was hopeless and just didn't bother with me. I don't want my daughters to go through the kind of youth I had. Unfortunately, our oldest daughter, Ellen, is not pretty and I want to give her all the help I can. Good clothes are so important to her right now, to help develop her confidence.

The Council: This well-meaning mother may be defeating her own purpose by placing so much emphasis on clothes and cosmetics. Of course, every young girl needs to learn what she can do for her appearance with these things, but she should not become so dependent on them that she would be lost if she didn't have them.

This mother has so many anxieties because of her own unhappy girlhood that she is undoubtedly already undermining Ellen's own confidence in herself. The girl may be actually prettier than her mother thinks. In any case 15 is an awkward year for most girls, but many a plain young teenager has blossomed into a most attractive woman in her twenties.

Ellen probably needs the kind of confidence she can develop by learning to do things and by being interested in other things than herself. Posture, movement, voice projection, the ability to enjoy other people and the aliveness that comes with an interest in the outside world are at least as important to a woman's appearance as clothes.
