There were no injuries reported in either accident.

New Record Set In Calf Roping

Pendleton—(U.P.)—The Pendleton Round-Up, that granddaddy of all Western shows in the Northwest, opened its four-day run on a fast note yesterday. John Dalton, Brownfield, Tex., came close to a new arena record in the calf roping competition when he was timed at 14.1 seconds. The record is 11.6. Wayne Dunston of Westmoreland, Kans., ranked number 3 in the national ranking of the Rodeo Cowboys association, set a record time in the steer bulldozing competition when he threw a steer in 6.3 seconds. The old record of 7.2 seconds was set last year by Barney Willis of Visalia, Calif.

An innovation of the Round-Up program this year is the staging of a mass Indian tribal dance under direction of the oldest living member of the Round-up association, Lee Drake, 75, of Pendleton. More than 500 Indians performed ceremonial tribal dances, said to never before presented of their reservations. One of the top national cowboys, Shoat Webster of Lenapah, Okla., who three times has won the all-around cowboy award at the Round-Up is missing from the roster of performers this year. Illness in his family prevented Webster from entering the show.

Cancer Fight Must Be Planned, ACS Official Declares

San Francisco—(U.P.)—An official of the American Cancer Society said today that as many as 75,000 additional lives could be saved from cancer each year if people could be persuaded to change health habits enough to have annual checkups and be alert to the disease's early warning signs.

Leonard V. Griffith, ASC director of Field Services, spoke at the ACS's Region Six meeting here. Approximately 150 volunteers and staff members of the society's divisions in California, Arizona, Nevada, Nebraska, Utah, Colorado and New Mexico are attending the three-day meeting.

Griffith told the group that growth and progress in the fight against cancer cannot be accidental; it must be planned in the interest of saving human lives. "Until research provides methods by which we can conquer cancer, we must direct our efforts toward an intermediate objective, that of saving lives from cancer through education and service," he said.

Dr. W. Kenneth Clark, assistant medical and scientific director of the ACS, told the delegates that establishment of more cancer case registries was the best tool for measuring progress against cancer. Last night, the delegates elected Dr. Horace Taylor of Reno, Nev., as chairman of ACS Region Six for the coming year. Dr. Ian MacDonald of Los Angeles and Judge Frank McNamee of Reno were nominated to the national board of directors of the society.

Hearing on Flood Control Scheduled

Grants Pass—A public hearing on flood control and related water uses in the Rogue River basin will be held here Wednesday, Oct. 24, with representatives of the Army Corps of Engineers attending, according to Raymond Lathrop, Josephine county judge. It is being held at the request of Col. Jackson Graham of Portland, district engineer, who will conduct the hearing.

In a recent letter to Judge Lathrop, Col. Graham said purpose of the hearing will be to obtain views of the people on problems to be considered in a study of flood control and related water uses. The Corps of Engineers recently received an appropriation with which to resume the study. Col. Graham indicated his office will not be prepared to offer any plan or proposal at this time. A later hearing will be held to present plans and proposals developed in the study, he said.

The hearing will take place either in the Josephine county library auditorium or the circuit court room, according to Judge Lathrop.

McKay Scheduled to Turn on Natural Gas
Pendleton—(U.P.)—Former Interior Secretary Douglas McKay today was to turn a valve at 10 a. m. sending natural gas into the Oregon Fibre Products plant system near here.

Neuberger Says Candidacy Should Be Repudiated

Salem—(Special)—The Republican state committee of Oregon should repudiate the candidacy of Gov. Elmo Smith because of his "shocking record" in the state senate, Sen. Richard L. Neuberger said at a press conference here today.

"It is a record shot through with opposition to civil rights, opposition to the United Nations, opposition to necessary legislative support of our public schools and colleges of higher education, opposition to the foreign-trade policies of the Eisenhower administration, opposition to the aspirations of our elderly people," Neuberger stated.

His statement continued: "I challenge the Republican Party to stop promoting Governor Smith on the basis of his participation in rodeo shows and county carnivals, and to have him run on his record concerning governmental policies. The governorship of Oregon should not be reduced to a hippodrome. A deliberate effort has been under way for the past six months to conceal from the public the fact that Governor Smith was the State Senate's foremost foe of civil rights, foremost foe of education and only foe of the United Nations."

"This effort destroys the meaning of democracy itself, because it exalts trivialities and hides those things which cut at the root of free government. "I make no statement against Governor Smith personally. I make this statement only on the basis of issues which have come before our Legislature, and on which Governor Smith has been recorded against the public welfare."

Benson Scheduled to Speak in Indiana
Union Mills, Ind.—(U.P.)—Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson came to Indiana today for a two-day tour of a key Midwestern farm state, obviously hoping to help sew up Hoosierland for the Republicans in the November election. Benson was booked to appear in this small town, about 40 miles southwest of South Bend, as first stop in a 32-hour trip over Northwestern Indiana.

SOC Professor Discusses Reading Instruction Details

The need to go slow because of the need to be right in the use and application of new methods to teach children to read was stressed by Dr. William Sampson, Southern Oregon college director of education, in a talk to Medford Kiwanis club yesterday noon.

Dr. Sampson spoke on "Why Johnny Can Read" at the service group's luncheon at Rogue Valley Country club.

Read Better
The college instructor brought out that youngsters can read better today than in the past. This is because teachers are better prepared and have better instructional aids, more adequate facilities and better working conditions, because parents are better informed, because of more information about the learning process is available, and because of more kindergartens.

"There are a good many things about teaching reading that we do not know, the speaker said. In teaching the subject progress is slow, he said, pointing out that the program must be acceptable to the people of a community and that changes can be made most effectively if taken gradually.

Rates Vary
Sampson brought out that children do not learn to read at the same rate, although they may have the same exposure to the subject. Some students, he stated, need specialized help. In the Medford schools this is being done to a high degree, he brought out.

The instructor reported that 30 to 35 per cent of students entering Southern Oregon college do not have the required level of reading ability. At the college's clinic, he reported, about half of this group can be brought up to the level in 25 clock hours. Most of the others, he stated, would be salvagable, if time and money was available.

Coaches Present
Head Coach Fred Speigelberg also gave information concerning the Medford High school football team. Other members of his staff were guests, Paul Evensen, line coach; Bob Newland, backfield coach; and Frank Roelandt and John Kovenz, junior varsity coaches.

Paul Hornbeck and Dr. William Stamm were introduced as new members.
