Colorado Springs, Colo.—(AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon charged Saturday that some labor leaders and the Americans for Democratic Action are dictating Adlai E. Stevenson's economic policies. He also assailed Democratic farm plans as "political fakery and demagoguery."

Stevenson, he said, offered "second best" leadership. Nixon levelled his two-pronged ed attack against the Democratic presidential candidate and Stevenson's farm program during a midwestern swing that took him to Sioux City, Iowa, and Colorado Springs.

Nixon spoke at Sioux City only a few hours before Stevenson delivered a major farm policy address at Newton, Iowa.

Farm Plan Defended
The 43-year-old vice president defended the Eisenhower farm plan during an address at Sioux City. He said it cut "straight to the heart of the problem" of surpluses with a "bold and imaginative program" of expanded overseas markets and the soil bank.

Nixon said it is "the height of political fakery and demagoguery to tell the American farmer to support the Democratic farm program 'which by design and effect will simply create still more staggering surpluses.'"

But at a Sioux City airport news conference, Nixon said Republicans must get down to work at local organizing if they expect to win several close senatorial races in the west. He said under questioning that GOP senatorial candidates have especially tough fights in Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

He said he found President Eisenhower's popularity in nine midwest and western states greater than it was in 1952. He said he felt the Republicans have a "better than even chance of carrying Minnesota," al-

Stolen Doughnuts Make Too Much for Thief
Cooks Bay — (AP) — Stolen apples may be the sweetest, but not doughnuts.

When Francis Henry Boyle was arrested here on a charge of taking a dozen-and-a-half doughnuts out of a bakery truck, Police Chief Glen Kolkhorst ordered him to "stand right there and eat every one of those doughnuts."

Boyle was mid-way through the eighth when he pleaded for mercy.

though "I didn't rate our chances that high before I went to Minnesota." He spoke last night at Minneapolis.

Optimistic About Nevada
Nixon said he was more optimistic about Nevada than are some other party strategists. He said Rep. Clifton R. Young (R-Nev.), GOP senatorial candidate, is a "real sleeper who could pull an upset."

Concerning Stevenson, Nixon told a Sioux City audience: "Let's not settle for the second-best leadership of expedient politicians who offer false hopes of ending the draft, and restricting military research—all in the face of the global threat of Communism."

He said, "we need the wisest and most experienced leadership we can possibly have—the kind President Eisenhower has given since 1953 and which he is prepared to give in the four critical years that lie ahead."

At Colorado Springs, Nixon addressed a state Republican rally at the local high school. He said a Democratic victory in November would lead to the return of "the tired old philosophies of the ADA and we will have the stagnation and bitterness that were the curse of the 1930s."

Progressive Approach
Nixon said President Eisenhower's administration offers the "real progressive approach," and he listed three main aims: "... to wipe out the remaining pockets of distress and economic discrimination in the United States" for those not sharing in the general prosperity, including "so-called minority groups."

"... to wipe out bitterness and class struggle" which are leftovers from the socialism and class distinction of older nations.

"... to promote a new way of life in the United States... by unleashing the research facilities of our scientists and technicians so that new forms of production will evolve."

Crater Lake Park Staff Conducts Anniversary Event

At a campfire program Wednesday night, Crater Lake National park employees commemorated the 86th anniversary of the campfire meeting which led to establishment of the first national park in the United States.

On Sept. 19, 1870, the Washburn-Langford-Doane party held a campfire meeting and conceived the idea of establishing Yellowstone park.

Tom Williams, superintendent of Crater Lake park, told the Crater Lake group, "The 1870 campfire introduced a new ideal in conservation and preservation that eventually brought into being the 28 national parks of the nation that are being preserved for all time for all to enjoy."

He further stated, "Campfires in our national parks have a significance for Americans. They symbolize the campfires of our forefathers who explored and settled these United States. They are an important part of our present day recreational pursuits and experiences as evinced by the millions of Americans who seek rest and inspiration in camping in the national and state parks and national forests."

The program was held indoors because of rain, Williams reported.

Leader of Research Center Transferred

G. Lloyd Hayes, leader of the Siskiyou-Cascade research center in Roseburg, has been transferred to Ft. Collins, Colo., it was announced by director Robert W. Cowlin of Pacific Northwest Forest and Range Experiment station at Portland.

He has been in charge of the Siskiyou-Cascade center since 1949 and has conducted studies in forest management, brushfield reclamation, forest regeneration, silviculture and watershed management.

Hayes will leave for his new post in mid-October, where he will be chief of the forest management research division at the Rocky Mountain Forest and Range experiment station.

NEWS NOTES from Crater High School

By PAT MEDLEY
Central Point—"School Days—Welcome Freshmen" was the theme of the first dance of the year. The dance, held after the Crater-Redmond game, was sponsored by the journalism classes. Freshmen were admitted free and were given little green "beanies" to wear to distinguish themselves as "youngsters."

The "Comettes," Crater's 40-member pep club, and the band, did a snappy drill routine during the half-time of the game last Friday night. The pep club makes a striking appearance on the football field in their black and white uniforms. Their new basketball uniforms will be all white with black emblems. The officers of Comettes are Rose Drake, president; Kathy Coe, vice president; Pat Medley, secretary; Joanne Ritter, historian; Judy Davis, drill leader, and Helen Hood, assistant drill leader.

The poor freshmen—love 'em! A very large boy walked into a senior English class last week and handed Miss White, the teacher, his roll card. Being in the middle of an explanation, Miss White simply placed the card on the desk behind her and told the boy to sit down. She finished the explanation, and gave the class a rather difficult assignment. The boy sat looking befuddled for a moment, then suddenly turned to the boy behind him and started a terrible commotion. The teacher sternly told the boy to be silent and do the assignment, whereupon he scooped up a handful of his own books and galloped out of the room, shouting, "I'm just a freshman! Let me out of here!"

New Yearbook
One of the nice things about the first day at Crater High school, after the summer vacation, is the distribution of "The Constellation," the school's yearbook. This procedure seems to be different in this vicinity, as most schools receive their annuals before the end of the school year. Crater's yearbooks, however, contain the pictures of the Junior-Senior prom, graduation and all other important events taking place at the end of the year all in the same book, keeping the events of the whole year complete. Most students are in agreement that "The Constellation" is worth waiting three months for.

Clarence Melbye has been named new vice principal at Crater High. In addition, he teaches two classes of American problems and government. Principal is Arthur Strauss, who has been at Crater since 1951.

"The big and little sister program" under the direction of Pat Medley, Girls League president, is under way. A get-acquainted skating party is being held Sept. 26 for the freshman girls and their "big sisters." Various other activities during the year will be held for these girls. Mrs. Carol Ash is the adviser of Girls League.

Approximately 3,000 tourists visited the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce office in Medford during the summer for vacation and other information on the Rogue valley, according to a chamber report.

Many of the tourists expressed an interest in this area as future home, the report said. A special visitors information service was started for the first time this year. A weekly visitors bulletin, listing valley events, fish news and vacation suggestions was made available for display purposes at 150 service stations during the summer.

The program was carried on by the tourist and convention committee with cooperation from the oil industry committee, according to the report.

Gov. Elmo Smith has asked citizens of Oregon to observe Oct. 1-8 as National Newspaper week and Oct. 6 as Newspaper day.

"Your Newspaper... Freedom's Key to Better Living" is the theme of the observance.

"Oregon newspapers are fulfilling an important role today in keeping us an informed people, in making better our way of life, and in bringing to all of us by the printed word and picture the news of our community, our state and nation, and the world," Gov. Smith said.

He added, "I also wish to pay tribute to the small army of newspaperboys who every day, rain or shine, deliver their papers to homes and business establishments. Most of these boys are in business for themselves, learning the principles which will help them in years to come."

A basking shark caught in California waters was about 30 feet long and it weighed in at 8,600 pounds.

Small Business Group To Sponsor Event at Armory

The Small Business administration will sponsor a Small Business fair from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. Oct. 3 and 4 in Portland at the National Guard Armory.

Co-sponsors are the Portland Chamber of Commerce, the Oregon Chamber Executives, Inc., the Oregon Development commission, and the Columbia Empire Industries, Inc. The various military and civilian agencies of government are also working with the sponsors.

The purpose of the meetings is to acquaint small businessmen of the area with procedures and opportunities for participating in all types of government contracts and in subcontracting with the government's large prime contractors.

Each exhibitor is being asked to have current invitations to bid for examination and responsible officials available to answer questions on procedures and opportunities to bid. Each participant will also have an exhibit of the types of procurement required by his firm or agency.

The hours 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. each day will be set aside for business consultations among the businessmen. The remainder of the time is for the public.

Director of Demo Fund Visits Here

Sherman Merrill, one of eight regional directors of the Dollars for Democrats fund campaign, was to have arrived at the Medford airport Saturday night to confer with southern Oregon Democrats.

Merrill was to spend Saturday night at the home of Sidney E. Ainsworth, Ashland attorney, and meet with local Democrats today. He planned to leave for northern Oregon this afternoon.

Merrill was recently appointed by the National Democratic committee as director of the fund campaign for Oregon, Washington and Idaho.
