

Hollywood — (U.P.) — A new comedy team is being groomed to replace the breach left by the Dean Martin-Jerry Lewis splitup.

Aline Mosby

Now Martin and Lewis' bosses—NBC, Paramount Studio and the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev., are rubbing their hands over a new pair of comics.

The two hopefuls even have a similar name — Rowan and Martin. NBC put them under contract with the boys beginning a series of guest shots on the new Walter Winchell show in October.

The Sands, where Martin and Lewis will now appear as singles, put the new team on the dotted line. And Paramount, stuck with scripts for Martin and Lewis, have an option for a contract on Rowan and Martin.

Comedians Draw Attention

Currently Hollywoodites are heaping a pain to the Coconut Grove to see the new team in action. Although Dan Rowan and Dick Martin may be stepping into Martin and Lewis' shoes, the acts are different.

"We're different because we're really a team and Martin and Lewis weren't—they were two separate acts working together," explained Rowan.

"I'm lost doing our Hamlet sketch on the floor without Martin. We can't work separately. But Dean sang his songs without any help from Jerry. And Jerry didn't need Dean. They had separate talents.

"But we must work together. We'd rather be compared to Laurel and Hardy or Abbott and Costello, who never did anything alone. And, of course our act is straight talking—no singing."

From Pen to Grease Paint

Rowan, 23, and Martin, 30, were two gag writers who worked up sketches for another comedy team, Nonan and Marshall. The writers were so funny demonstrating their routines that Noonan and Marshall suggested they don the grease paint and try them on the public themselves.

Rowan and Martin were unknown in small bistros until New York columnists began to plug them last winter. Then came a Sands engagement that brought them a flood of offers.

"We're both fans of Dean and Jerry and we think it's a shame they're breaking up," Martin said. "But we don't want to be compared to the champs. People will think we're just an imitation.

"We want to be another successful comedy team—not just another Martin and Lewis."

Diagnostic Speech Clinics Scheduled

Ashland — As in previous years, diagnostic speech clinics will be conducted in Josephine county schools by Leon Mulling, director of the Southern Oregon speech and hearing center.

The clinics, which have helped several children throughout the county, Mulling said, consist of a consultation of the speech therapist with parents, children, teachers, nurses. Following the initial diagnosis, a program for home and school therapy is set up to treat the problems of the child.

Famed 101st Gets Own A-Weapons

Fort Campbell, Ky. — (U.P.) — The U.S. Army's famed old 101st Airborne Division has returned to the colors as a brand new type of paratroop unit complete with its own atomic weapons.

Streamlined with only 11,500 men, the reactivated "Hundred and First" is designed for rapier thrusts into enemy territory in a big nuclear war and "firebrigade" action to stop little wars.

Its "Honest John" rockets, able to hurl atomic warheads 20 miles, and other new weapons including eventually a still-secret atomic gun will give the "screaming eagles" division far more fire-power than the conventional airborne outfit of 17,300 troops.

The division paraded and gave airborne exhibitions at its new home base here in a rousing "Organization Day" ceremony, under the critical eyes of Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker, Chief of Staff Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor and a host of other dignitaries.

"Organized for battle in an atomic war" and embodying "the most modern concepts of military science," as Brucker has said, the 101st symbolizes the soldiers' new air mobility and firepower.

should contact the school for an appointment. Clinics will be Sept. 24, Redwood; Sept. 25, Jerome Prairie, Fruitdale, Wilderville, Fort Vannoy; Oct. 9, Roosevelt, Highland; Nov. 5, Riverside, Murphy; Nov. 6, Oak Grove, Merlin, Hugo, Sunny Valley, Wolf Creek; Nov. 19, Illinois Valley; Nov. 20, Grants Pass Junior High.

Additional information concerning the clinics can be obtained by conferring with the public health nurse or calling the Josephine county health department, Mulling stated.

EAGLE POINT Veteran Employee Retires

By LOUISE M. BERG

Eagle Point—On Sept. 19, George Daley, 86, made out his usual daily report to the Little Butte Irrigation district as follows:

"This rain ends the season, and also ends 34 years of my continuance with the Little Butte Irrigation District." Daley started his work in 1922, with watermaster Fred Cummings, now deceased, and was working with D. C. Hendricks until his retirement Wednesday. Daley had charge of the water distribution from Eagle Point to the old city intake. For 35 years prior to working for the irrigation company, Daley operated the first grist mills through out the area, at Klamath Falls, Ft. Jones, Doris and Eagle Point, his grandfather having built the building that is now known as Putman's cold storage.

When asked how he was going to spend his time now that he was retired, Daley replied, "Oh, I'm just going to sit and talk with 'Dad' Putman, another young fellow of 84."

75 members of the school faculty, board members and guests were entertained at a picnic on Sunday at the Walsh reservoir on the Butte Falls highway. Swimming and water skiing were enjoyed by many, and Stan Smith prepared the barbecued beef, baked beans, cold slaw, ice cream and coffee.

The new school cafeteria, with Peggy Peck, assisted by Bertha Ullrich, Martha Knoebel and Nellie Webb, in charge, is serving meals each day to the 408 students and teachers, including a meat entree, vegetables, desert and milk. The prices vary accordingly to the grades; 20 cents through the 5th grade, 25 cents through the 8th grade, 30 cents for the high school students and teachers. The teachers have a separate lunch room, which like the rest of the cafeteria is all new.

Timberline Lodge To Expand Facilities

Portland — (U.P.) — Portland Chamber of Commerce officials have announced plans for a $1,300,000 expansion of facilities at Timberline Lodge on Mt. Hood.

The project would be financed by federal funds. Improvements would include an additional wing for guests, a meeting hall and a ski chalet.

The lodge will be closed for maintenance work from Oct. 15 to Nov. 15.

Plans Discussed for Yreka Junior College

Yreka—Plans for construction of a junior college in Yreka were discussed with California department of education officials at a meeting of the Yreka Lions club Wednesday.

The results of a survey to be taken in Siskiyou county within the next few weeks will determine whether or not the plan is feasible.

It was estimated that between 250 and 400 students from Yreka and the surrounding area would attend the school immediately and that the number would rise to 700 or 800 within a few years. It was stated that one of the advantages of the school would be to offer adult education to the people of the area.
