DEAD BUFFALO

Custer, S. D.—(U.P.)—Several score tourists were treated to an unusual sight in Custer State Park during the summer. They saw two bull buffalos fight to the death of one of them along a well-traveled highway, stopping scores of tourists.

BIKE BITE

Grand Rapids, Mich.—(U.P.)—Malcolm Couch of Grand Rapids went fishing in the nearby Grand River and hooked a ride instead of a fish. His fishing line snagged a stolen bicycle that had been dumped in the river.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

John H.—She has reformed. I want to marry her.

Mr. F. H.—People will have no respect for us.

John H.—Six years ago when I was still in high school I got involved with one of the girls at school. We had relations with one another and we wanted to get married, but our parents wouldn't let us. Then we had a fight and broke off entirely. I guess Sue got very desperate, and after we got out of school, she ran off to the city, where she got involved with a married man. She had an illegitimate child and gave the baby out for adoption.

Three years afterward Sue returned to our town. She had gotten all straightened out through the help of a social worker and is now a very different kind of a girl. She works in an office, doesn't go out much, doesn't drink or any of the things she used to do. We started going out together again and now we feel we love one another very much and want to get married. But my parents are raising an awful fuss and want to disown me and kick me out of my father's business.

* * *

Mr. F. H.—This girl was bad from the start and can't be trusted. She came back to get Johnny, and she now seems to have him.

I'm afraid the trouble is Johnny's conscience. She has made him feel that he was responsible for her involvement with the married man, that he "ruined" her during their school romance. I very much incline to the belief that it was the other way, that she trapped him into seeming the aggressor. She will always step over the line, and then blame him.

This girl has a terrible reputation. No one else in town would marry her. In my business, reputation counts for everything. People will have no respect for us. They will laugh behind our backs. Johnny is a sucker to be taken in by such a girl.

If I cannot save him from this terrible marriage, he will be ruined anyway. So he may as well leave his family and his community if he insists on destroying himself.

* * *

The Council—Mr. F. H.'s attitude toward Sue appears very harsh, and he apparently feels that everyone else judges her just as harshly. Most people are not so unforgiving. They respect others who have made mistakes, and then shown by their actions that they have really changed. There will always be malicious gossips who like to hurt others on general principle, but such characters rarely have much prestige in the community.

John and Sue should consider, however, that the harsh attitude of John's parents is unlikely to change. Mr. F. H. sounds as though he'll stand by his warning of disowning his son and throwing him out of the business.

This creates new problems for the couple. They must consider John's job problem and their general position in the community. If John's parents don't accept Sue, sides will be taken and not everyone will be on the side of the young couple. It could make for much unpleasantness for them.

John and Sue would probably be better off in another community. They must then consider whether they feel they can really cut themselves off from the relationships of their youth. It is not an easy thing to do, although it might seem like an exciting, romantic thing at the first impulse.

There are other complications. If John doesn't make out as well in life in an ordinary job as he would in his father's business, will he blame Sue? If things do not go smoothly for them, will Sue blame John for having led her astray in the first place?

There are many difficulties in store for this marriage, but if John and Sue sincerely feel they are ready to make sacrifices for one another, they ought to have the courage of their feelings and go ahead.
