

Ike's Visit To Oregon This Week Expected To Give McKay Big Boost

By A. ROBERT SMITH
Mail Tribune Correspondent
Washington — The high commands of both parties are agreed on one thing at least in connection with the hot senatorial campaign in Oregon — that the visit this week of President Eisenhower will probably help the chances of Douglas McKay in his effort to overtake Sen. Wayne Morse.

Republicans, of course, are pinning great hopes for McKay on the personal appearance of Eisenhower in Oregon, otherwise the president would not have added this long trip to his limited campaign schedule.

The attitude of Democratic strategists here was expressed by Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.), chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee which is doing everything it can think of to assist Morse.

"I think (Ike's visit) will help McKay," said Smathers. "I don't think there's any doubt about that. The president, of course, is still personally very popular and when he goes out there he always is able to attract a big crowd and undoubtedly Douglas McKay will be all wrapped around in those coat-tails and every time he turns around you're going to see Douglas McKay. So that won't hurt him."

Washington Critical
Another good reason for Eisenhower's visit is GOP hopes of nailing down both Oregon and Washington states for the president just like he carried them in 1952. Washington state is considered on the critical list, in view of the strong showing made by Democratic Sen. Warren G. Magnuson in the September primary. Oregon is regarded as much more likely to go for Eisenhower again.

The camp of Adlai Stevenson, however, has added Oregon to the list of "maybe" states following the visit to the state last week of the Democratic contender. This is based on advice given Stevenson by Oregon Democrats who believe Morse is running so strong that he may help Stevenson, rather than vice versa.

Stevenson's strategy nationally is based on (1) an assumption that he will carry the South and its border states, (2) that he will lose without coming even close in many states of the North, (3) but that he can win in enough northern states to capture a majority of the electoral votes needed for victory.

Stevenson on Coattails
Those northern states where Stevenson strategists believe he has the best chance are those in which the Democrats have been showing strength locally, such as Pennsylvania.

So there is perhaps as much truth as wit in the observation that Stevenson hopes to ride into the White House on the coattails of the Democratic party, while the Republicans hope to ride home on the coattails of the President.

If Oregon were only closer to the nation's capital, the state would probably be visited by a bevy of cabinet wives on the political stump in behalf of one of their own, Mabel McKay and her campaigning husband. Recently the wives piled into a chartered bus and went politicking in behalf of GOP candidates in nearby Maryland and Delaware. It was just a one-day fling, talking to women's groups and passing out literature.

Main speaker at the National Press Club last week was "the real Joe Smith," as he was referred to by club proxy Frank Holeman. It was really Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton, the man the Nebraska delegate, Terry Carpenter, wanted to nominate originally at the Republican convention. Recalling White House anecdotes, Seaton said Sherman Adams, presidential assistant, thought anyone who said "Good Morning" was "dangerously garrulous." "Sherm though 'Morning' was good enough for anybody."

Missing Youngster Found Unharmed

New York — (UP) — Police found a missing six-week-old Negro girl alive and unharmed early Saturday and arrested her alleged kidnaper.

Patrolmen Salvatore Trovato and John Tomasulo recovered the baby, Joanne Wells, in a Brooklyn apartment occupied by Mary Jackson, 35, and her husband.

Police said that Albert Corbin, 23, told Trovato and Tomasulo he had information on the kidnaping and led the policemen to the nearby Jackson apartment.

Joanne was reported kidnaped two days ago from the apartment of Clarice Hall, a baby sitter, by a woman posing as a friend of the infant's mother.

The arresting officers said the man in the Brooklyn apartment identified himself as Richard Glanton and said he was the common law husband of Mary Jackson.

They said the Jackson woman became pregnant without Glanton's knowledge and checked into a hotel last Saturday and delivered the baby stillborn there.

Not wishing to disappoint Glanton, she struck up an acquaintance with Mrs. Wells at a hospital where Joanne's mother worked as a nurse's aid.

From her conversation with Mrs. Wells, she learned that Joanne was at a baby sitter's home and picked up enough information to pose as a friend of the child's mother.

Five Commissioners Named to Port Group

Salem — (UP) — Five commissioners for the newly created Port of Brookings have been named by Gov. Elmo Smith.

They are: Wilson Freeman, Karl Ostberg, Warren McNeely, Murray Palmer and Gunnar Hedberg. All are Curry county or Brookings businessmen.

The Port of Brookings was established Sept. 14 by an area residents' vote of 72-58. An initial appropriation of $225,000 has been approved by Congress to begin construction of a harbor at the mouth of the Chetco river at Brookings.

HOW TO QUALIFY

Washington — (UP) — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson, who recently was operated on to correct a prostatic condition, flippantly said that I'm qualified now to run for some kind of high office."
