

Hearing Called on Agricultural Zone, Annexation Proposal

The Medford city council last night called for two public hearings Nov. 7.

A hearing was called on the establishment of an agricultural zone. The zone proposes that no building or land shall be used, erected, or maintained within the agricultural district except for eight uses.

The ordinance stated that buildings can not be erected unless certain property areas are maintained in connection with such land use.

Another hearing was called on the proposed annexation to Medford of the First Free Methodist church property, 1266 Peach st. Purpose of the annexation is to obtain a sewer.

The council awarded a bid to M. C. Linger and Sons, Medford, for the paving of 77 feet on Murray st. The cost of the project will be about $9 per foot. A higher bid was submitted by the Rogue River Paving company, Medford.

Request Granted

An ordinance was adopted amending the city sign ordinance. The amendment was recommended by the building department to correct an error made inadvertently in the original ordinance by the council July 6, 1954. The amendment will require that a sign cannot project more than two-thirds of the distance from the front property line to the curb line.

On the recommendation of the planning commission the council dedicated a strip of land about 400 feet in length and approximately 20 feet in width located on Barneburg Hill in Mont Crest sub-division to Claude E. McIntyre, 1485 East McAndrews rd., Medford.

McIntyre is one of three incorporators of the Mont Crest sub-division who are building homes on Barneburg Hill. He will dedicate the land for street purposes when the Mont Crest subdivision plan is filed.

The council awarded a bid to the Western Oil and Burner company, Medford, for supplying fuel oil to the city hall, swimming pool, fire station and the east side fire station. The bid was for $4,232. A separate fuel bid of .10441 cents per gallon was submitted for the airport. Other bids were submitted by the Medford Fuel company, Faber Fuel company and the Standard Oil Company Medford office.

City Manager Robert Duff stated that Raymond Fish, Medford sewage plant operator, has been certified by the Oregon State college and the state board of health as a sewage works operator.

The council also accepted an invitation by the Medford League of Women Voters to participate in the Candidates Fair Oct. 27 at the McLoughlin Junior High school boys' gymnasium. The council will present displays at the fair explaining the proposed capital improvement plan for Medford.

Voter-Banned Pinballs Sent To Oregon State

Portland—(U.P.)—Several of Portland's voter-banned pinball machines have found new homes at Oregon State College.

College officials said parents have no cause for alarm, though. The machines are being used in the mathematics department where they will be converted into electronic computers.

Adlai Hurls Charges Of Discrimination in Favor of Corporations

En Route With Stevenson in Michigan—(U.P.)—Adlai E. Stevenson today accused the Eisenhower administration of discriminating in favor of giant corporations to the point of endangering thousands of small businesses.

Stevenson, starting a four-day train and plane stump tour of Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana, assailed the "tight money" policy of the administration, saying it was "good news on Wall Street but bad news on Main Street."

Introduced by Williams The Democratic presidential candidate started speaking early this morning from the rear platform of his special train at Niles, Mich., where he was introduced by the state's Democratic governor, G. Mennen Williams, who is running for reelection.

Then came Kalamazoo, Battle Creek and a speech at Lansing, the state capital, devoted largely to the effects of Eisenhower domestic economic policies on the farmer, the consumer and the small businessman.

The major speech of the one-day journey across southern Michigan was set for Flint tonight when Stevenson was scheduled to step up his attack on Vice President Richard M. Nixon who is regarded by the Democratic strategists as one of their best campaign issues.

Results Said Discriminatory Stevenson said at Lansing that he did not maintain that interest rates on money should never be raised, but he believed firmly that the current results of the GOP "tight money" policy were "discriminatory and ineffective."

"It is not right to solve a problem by laying it on the weakest shoulders," he said in objecting to administration policies which, in his opinion, put the burden of inflation controls on the small borrower.

The Democratic candidate attacked the record of the Eisenhower administration on small business, pointing out that according to Dun and Bradstreet, 1,101 small business failed in August of this year—the highest August number in 16 years.

Hitchcock Speaker At Rotary Meeting

Government cannot give the people anything that it hasn't previously taken from the people, Phil Hitchcock, member of the faculty of Lewis and Clark college told the Medford Rotary club here Tuesday.

In a luncheon address at the Jackson hotel, the educator, who sought the U.S. senatorial nomination in the May primary, contrasted the French and the American revolutions in his non-political speech.

There were entirely different concepts involved in the two great conflicts in the eighteenth century, he said. Unlike the French revolution, the people of the American colonies sought a government that would be a servant, not a master. They wanted a way of life that would require minimum allegiance to government, he added.

The increasing complexity of life today has necessitated some limitations upon personal liberties, and the American people must always be alert against the dangers of excessive government, Hitchcock said.

In America there is no "common man" and no "masses," Hitchcock insisted. Every man enjoys the same dignity in the eyes of law. Personal liberty, the bulwark of American democracy, must be guarded since the U.S. holds the liberty of the world in trust.

E. A. Littrell, Rotary program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Nixon To Speak On Civil Rights; Faces College Quiz

En Route With Nixon—(U.P.)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon flew through upstate New York today for a civil rights speech and a nationally televised quizzing by college editors.

On a slightly-relaxed schedule the barnstorming vice president set up a speech in Rochester, N.Y., which aides said would touch on the touchy civil rights issue.

'No Holds Barred' Then he headed for Ithaca, N.Y. and a "no holds barred" questioning by 37 undergraduate editors in a televised "inter-collegiate press conference" at Cornell university.

Nixon told the student editors in advance to question him freely.

Nixon spent the night in Buffalo, N.Y., where he told an audience of 12,000, largest indoor crowd he has addressed in the campaign, that "the American people would be taking a fearful risk with their own security" by electing Adlai E. Stevenson president if he follows his announced policy of stopping hydrogen bomb tests on the basis of international agreement.

Argues For Ike's Policy Nixon argued hard for President Eisenhower's policy of insisting on a "foolproof" inspection plan to make sure the Russians kept the agreement. He accused Stevenson of "playing dangerous politics with American security."

The Republican National Committee announced that Nixon, who winds up his current 10,000-mile aerial tour Friday night in Baltimore, will take off again Monday on a third and final campaign swing which will last until election day Nov. 6.

Child Guidance Clinic Announces Programs Available to Groups

Robert Minear, chairman of publicity and education committee of the Southern Oregon Child Guidance Clinic association, has announced program possibilities which various groups and organizations may schedule.

Minear pointed out that an explanation of the child guidance clinic's work and organization may range from a brief five-minute talk to a 20-minute discussion. The presentation could be made by a staff member or a director of the board, he said.

He said Mrs. Carl Wimberly, president of the association should be contacted for this type program. She may be contacted by telephoning 2-8662.

Footlighter Minear said a group from the Footlighters theater will again present 12 performances of a one-half hour play for groups during January, February and March. The play is not yet decided because of casting problems, Minear said, but will be the type similar to those produced during the past seasons. Scheduling of the plays is possible by contacting Mrs. Dunbar Carpenter, telephone 2-4838.

A third type program, a 15 to 25 minute film, with discussion periods following, is available through the clinic office, telephone 3-3174, Minear said.

The clinic association is now conducting its fall informational campaign in the county outside the Medford city limits, and local chairmen said renewals of memberships and new memberships are resulting from interest gained through information.
