Bethel Announces Dates for Events

Central Point—Busy days are ahead for members of Bethel 38, International Order of Jethel's Daughters, in Central Point. Several events were announced by Miss Marla Abbott, queen, at a meeting held October 11 at Central Point Masonic hall.

October 22 a practice for junior Bethel night will be held at 7 p.m. at the hall; junior Bethel night is planned October 23; a cooked food sale will be held at Faber's market beginning at 9:30 a.m. October 27; a rummage sale will be held November 3 in the building formerly occupied by Central Point pharmacy; Bethel friendship night will be held November 8.

Introduced at the meeting were Miss Kay Askwith, grand inner guard; Mrs. A. M. Setness, junior past guardian; Melvin McGraw, associate guardian and grand junior custodian; all are of the Central Point Bethel.

The autumn leaves and cat-tail decorations were arranged by Miss Donna Burnett, Miss Gail Collins and Mrs. Melvin Burnett. Refreshments were served by Misses Linda Warren, Julie Ashton, Patti Barber, Pat McCaslin and their mothers.

Birthday greetings were extended to Miss Suzanne Hood.

McMinnville Girl Named Queen at OSC

Corvallis—(U.P.)—Linda Courtney, a senior in home economics from McMinnville, last night was named as queen of the Oregon State College homecoming weekend at a courtney rally.

Miss Courtney and her court of four princesses, including Mary Bell, Rickreall; Ann Sektan, Milton-Freewater; Betty McBride, Madras; and Joan Norman, Portland, will reign over the alumni activities Oct. 27 and 28 and the Oregon State-UCLA football game.

Announcement of the queen followed a general student election for the honor.

Help Yourself to Happiness

Readers are invited to present their problems. All queries will receive individual attention and should be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope, directed to MARY HARRIS SHREVE, M.A., Department of Education, THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF FAMILY RELATIONS, 5237 Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles 27, California.

"What is group counseling?" asks a client at the American Institute of Family Relations. "I've heard of individual counseling, of course, for family and personal problems, but I'd like to know more about group guidance. How does it work? Or does it work? Do people really let down their hair with a bunch of listeners? What kind of problems come out in a group? And how do you avoid fireworks if a husband and wife criticize each other?"

Here at the American Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles, we see an increasing number of people who find they can talk through their emotional problems and profit from the interaction of group therapy. Under the guidance of Clinton E. Phillips, M.A., associate director of the department of counseling, five groups—three for the unmarried (Human Relations Workshops) and two for the married—run simultaneously. In these groups, clients, referred to the Institute by "Group" graduates, by physicians, by clergymen, or readers of our publications, come for help in adjusting to social or psychological problems.

Let us follow Jane G. to one of the Institute's three workshops in Human Relations. Jane is 28 years old, wistful, slightly dowdy, with no prospects of a honeymoon. She feels that something must be wrong with her but she doesn't know what; all her friends are married, and she wants to be married also. Why is she still single? How, blantly, can she find a man and make herself marriageable?

After four hours of individualized private conferences at the Institute, Jane knows considerably more about herself and her problems than before. She knows that she is insecure, and that men sense and avoid this insecurity. She knows in general what she must do to "find herself," but she isn't just certain how to do it. So she turns to a group of people who have similar problems, whose ages range from late twenties through fifty.

The groups are small, numbering about eight clients, meeting 1½ hours a week. Gradually in turn, members talk through their problems, with all contributing suggestions, under the direction of a trained counselor-moderator. They discuss problems freely, without the emotion so often found in family or friend-discussions. Gradually they understand their faux pas, their limitations, their means of increasing their social effectiveness. The counselor acts as a father-substitute when necessary, helping the group to evaluate, clarify, and interpret their findings. He initiates emotional re-

Schools To Hold Open House

Central Point — Open house will be held Sunday, October 21, at Jewett school in Central Point and Patrick school, Gold Hill. Hours will be from 2 to 5 p.m. at both schools.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of Central Point Parent-Teacher Association, December 6 was set as the date of the annual dinner. It will be a chili feed.

The committee voted to donate $150 to Jewett schools for purchase of equipment of the school's choice.

The membership chairman reported that about 460 parents and teachers have joined the PTA unit.

A budget submitted by Mrs. N. G. Cote, Eugene Ferrell, C. E. Chamberlain and Mrs. Clinton Charley was approved by the committee.

Navy Seaplane Sets Hawaii-U.S. Record

Alameda, Calif.—(U.P.)—A four engine Navy Trade Wind set a new world seaplane record Thursday when it completed the 2,100-mile trip from Honolulu to the mainland in 6 hours, 45 minutes.

The old record of 10 hours, 21 minutes was set in 1948 by the "Caroline," a Mars predecessor to the Trade Wind.

The record was set by the "Indian Ocean," making its first test run over the Pacific. The plane, carrying a crew of 25 and seven observers, averaged 320 miles per hour during its record-breaking flight.

The Indian Ocean, 170,000-pound Convair-made plane, will be used for mid-air refueling and troop transport, the Navy said.

REFUGEES DEPART

Bremen, Germany—(U.P.)—The U. S. troop transport "General Langfitt" left for the United States Thursday with 1,250 Germans and refugee immigrants.
