

Top Ranked Elevens Face Tough Foes

By TIM MORIARTY
United Press Sports Writer

Another tough week end lay ahead today for most of college football's top-ranked teams — some of whom already are quaking in their cleats after the rude treatment handed Ohio State, Texas Christian and Mississippi.

Top-ranked Oklahoma and second-ranked Michigan State, who escaped the season's first "lost week end" with their winning records intact, look safe for another week. The Sooners face Notre Dame, still bloody from its 47-14 defeat at the hands of Michigan State, while the Spartans resume their Big Ten conference schedule against Illinois.

Now look at the tough hours facing the highly-rated teams this week:

Third-ranked Georgia Tech runs into a Tulane team that earned its spurs last Saturday by dumping eighth-ranked Mississippi, 10-3, fourth-ranked Ohio State, nursing a 7-6 upset by Penn State, must face always dangerous Wisconsin, while fifth-ranked Texas Christian will attempt to rebound from its 7-6 defeat by Texas A & M against Miami.

And the "toughies" don't end there.

Mississippi has an important intersectional date with Arkansas, ninth-ranked Southern California must entertain Stanford and 10th-ranked Baylor, idle last week end, bumps into Texas A & M.

Of the three major upsets recorded last week end, Penn State's victory over Ohio State stood out as the most important. The Nittany Lions provided added proof that Eastern football definitely is on the upgrade.

Syracuse remained in the running for the mythical Eastern championship by edging Army, 7-0; Pittsburgh tallied three times within five minutes during the second quarter to down Duke, 27-14, and North Carolina presented Coach Jim Tarula with a 34-6 victory over his former Maryland team.

Yale took over undisputed possession of first place in the Ivy league with a 25-7 triumph over Cornell, but Princeton looked equally as strong in outlasting Colgate, 28-20, in a non-league struggle.

The other major conference leaders: Southeastern, Georgia Tech (3-0); Big Seven, Colorado (3-0); Atlantic Coast, South Carolina (3-0); Pacific Coast, UCLA (3-0); Skyline, Wyoming (4-0); Rocky Mountain, Montana State (4-0); Southern, Virginia Tech, West Virginia and George Washington (each 2-0); Big Ten, Michigan State and Iowa (each 2-0); Southwest, Baylor, Texas A & M and Southern Methodist (each 1-0).

Linfield, Willamette Chalk Northwest Conference Victory

By UNITED PRESS

Leaders in both the Northwest conference and the Oregon Collegiate conference stepped outside their respective leagues for action last week and only the Oregon Collegiate leader puts its unblemished record on the block this week end.

Lewis and Clark, the only perfect record holder in the Northwest conference, has a date with Whitworth of the Evergreen loop Saturday while Eastern Oregon, the OCC leader, has a counting battle billed with Portland State.

Linfield picked up a 14-13 Northwest conference decision over Whitman. Ron Parrish

Ryff Rival Of Ippolito This Evening

New York — (U.P.) — Three able scrappers who lost their latest bouts will try to bounce back this week in the three most interesting fights on the schedule.

Tonight at St. Nicholas arena, ex-lightweight contender Frankie Ryff of New York meets Frank Ippolito, also of New York, in a 10-rounder that marks Ryff's first start since his ninth-round knockout by Larry Boardman at Madison Square garden June 1.

Ryff, who was ranked eighth among contenders before the Boardman defeat, is favored at 3-1.

Wednesday night, big Johnny Holman of Chicago, eighth-ranking heavyweight contender, will try to upset unbeaten Eddie Machen of Redding, Calif., at the Portland, Ore., armory. Machen is ranked seventh and favored at 4-1. He seeks his 18th straight victory.

Friday night at the Garden, two unranked young middleweights tangle in a 10-rounder. They are Yama Bahama of the British West Indies and Tony (Tex) Gonzalez of East Orange, N. J. Bahama is favored at 8-5 to bounce back after his upset defeat by Pat Lowery on Aug. 9.

$3,178,000 in Construction Planned at Southern Oregon

Ashland—Expansion plans for Southern Oregon college currently encompass the spending of $3,178,000 in new construction within the years 1957-63. Dr. Elmo N. Stevenson, president, said last week.

During the biennium 1957-59, $1,254,000 has been earmarked for a central heating plant costing $410,000; a new science classroom building, $460,000; and a new men's dormitory, $192,000. The latter figure will be matched by the college, Dr. Stevenson said.

Requests for state appropriations for building construction for the period 1959 to 61 total $934,000. Projected expenditures from this sum include a new social science building for $350,000 and a second man's dormitory costing $192,000 plus a matching sum of $192,000 from the school.

For the years 1961 to 63, the expenditure of $990,000 is planned. An arts building is projected for $275,000; an addition to the physical education plant will cost $495,000, and $220,000 passed for one Linfield TD and ran for the other while Gene Manley booted both extra points for the Wildcats. Lewis and Clark got its fifth straight win of the year by a narrow 28-26 count over Chico State.

An 80-yard ramble by freshman Roy Barnes with the opening kickoff of the second half provided the margin as Willamette edged College of Idaho, 13-7, in another Northwest league game.

A first period pass from Harry Santee to Doug Zitek that ate up 36 yards provided the only scoring play of the night as Oregon college posted a 6-0 win over Portland State in an OSS game.

Oregon Tech, beaten twice in its two league starts until Saturday, went on a 20-point scoring spree in the third quarter against Southern Oregon college and came out with a 27-20 win.

Pacific scored a first period touchdown against Eastern Oregon in an inter-league struggle Saturday, then matched third period scores with the Mountaineers to pull out with a 13-7 win.

RADIO SERVICE PRAISED
New York — (U.P.) — The baseball fans of the Virgin Islands have voted a plaque for Armed Forces Radio service in appreciation of its World Series broadcast beamed to overseas troops. Spirits Director J. Gordon Bridge received notice of the award Friday.

ARCARO SUSPENDED
Camden, N.J. — (U.P.) — Eddie Arcaro's latest suspension may cost him $17,000—the estimated purse that will go to the winning jockey in Saturday's Golden State stakes. Arcaro was scheduled to ride Bold Ruler, the favorite for the world's richest race, but was set down for 10 days for careless riding last Saturday by the stewards at the Keeneland Race track at Lexington, Ky.

Dr. Stevenson emphasized that the order in which construction would take place was in an "extremely fluid state," and involved consideration "of each school's needs by the state board of higher education and by the legislature."

West Europe Economy Expansion Predicted

New York — (U.P.) — Harlow H. Curtice, president of General Motors Corp., predicted today continued expansion of West Europe's economy but "at a somewhat slower pace" than in the postwar decade.

Returning to the United States after a four week European business trip, Curtice said the continent's prosperity "appears to be on a sound and expanding basis" and "the basic strength and vitality of the automobile business is most gratifying."

USC, UCLA Roll Along As Top Dogs

By SCOTT BAILLIE

United Press Sports Writer
Southern California and UCLA rolled along today as the customary top dogs of West Coast football despite last summer's penalties for conference violations which left both teams stripped of their manpower and suspended from the Rose Bowl.

The Trojans, with halfback Jon Arnett playing the fourth of his allotted five games, smashed Washington, 35-7, last Saturday while UCLA belted out California 34-20, after letting the Bears enjoy a brief 14-14 tie.

The triumphs left UCLA at the head of the mythical conference race with a 3-0 record and 4-1 on the season while undefeated Southern California and twice beaten Stanford, which came out of the conference probe clean, had 2-0 PCC marks.

Stanford helped clear its decks for next week's grudge battle with revenge-minded Southern California by downing Oregon 21-7.

The grudge angle stems from two points. Stanford not only was accused of looking down its nose at the two Los Angeles schools during the gridiron scandals, but also upset Southern California, 28-20 last year.

Wilson, and another passenger, Hugh William Hobart Adams, Scappoose, were hospitalized with multiple injuries.
