

New Storm Front Heads for Oregon; Temperatures Dip

By UNITED PRESS
A new storm front swept southward from the gulf of Alaska to Oregon today on the heels of an icy blast that brought snow to mountain passes and eastern Oregon and overnight temperatures down to 10 degrees.

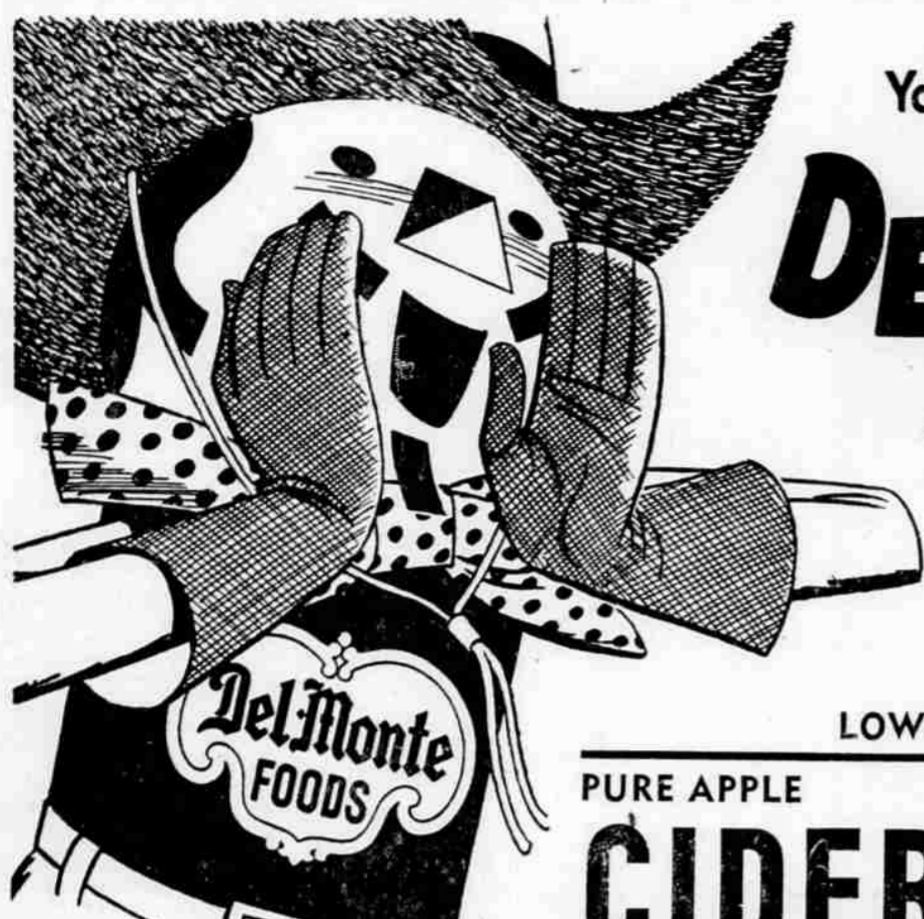

bring rain into Oregon starting this afternoon on the north coast. The storm is moving so fast that no great amount of precipitation is expected. Cool air is expected to remain.
26 at Klamath
Clearing skies east of the Cascades last night produced low temperatures of 10 at Redmond, 14 at Bend, 16 at Lakeview, 20 at Baker, 25 at Burns and 26 at Klamath Falls.

Snow blanketed mountain passes yesterday and chains were advised on high routes. A few flakes of snow also were reported at Pendleton and at Colgate, 43 miles east of Pendleton, three inches of snow fell. High-

County Court Orders New Voting Booths

Construction of 90 new voting booths, for use in Jackson county in the Nov. 6 general election, was ordered by the county court Monday and is now underway, according to Mrs. Bereth Hopkins, county clerk.
When the new booths are completed, the county will have a total of 650. Mrs. Hopkins said. Several other voting booths were ordered a short time after the primary election. The supply includes several metal and canvas collapsible booths.

The clerk said it is hoped the additional voting booths will speed up general election procedure.
