crowd, estimated at 2,000 or more, which greeted them at Hedrick Junior High school. The Nixons spent Friday night here, and their chartered campaign airplane left at 7:29 a.m. Saturday amidst an unseasonal snow shower, en route to Santa Rosa, Calif.

Nixon Warns Against 'Roadblock' On Important Programs of Future

"Election of a Republican president and a Democratic congress will mean a roadblock for two years on important programs for America's future," Vice President Richard Nixon said here Friday night.

Nixon, his wife, and about 30 staff members made an overnight stop in Medford Friday as the vice president wound up his campaign tour in the northwest. He spoke for 40 minutes to a responsive crowd of about 2,000 at an 8:15 p.m. program in the Hedrick Junior High school gymnasium.

Question for Voters
"A majority of the people of Oregon will vote for President Eisenhower as they did in 1952," Nixon said. "The question Eisenhower voters must answer here and all over the country is this: Do they want to give the President a full vote or half a vote?"

He said, "To vote for President Eisenhower and at the same time elect a Democratic house and senate would be the same as hiring a contractor to build a brick wall, but stipulating that he must use ditch diggers rather than bricklayers to get the job done."

The vice president listed several Eisenhower programs which he said were killed by the Democratic 84th congress. They included his programs for better schools, civil rights, better health, development of water and power resources on a partnership basis and his progressive labor program.

Sabotaged Program
"In other words," he said, "Democratic control of this congress sabotaged the Eisenhower domestic program."

Nixon told the audience that he and his wife have visited large and small towns in 33 key states during the current campaign. "People have been very much the same everywhere we went. They are happier than they were four years ago. The Eisenhower years have been the best four years in our lives and and we want more years with him."

He further declared, "The Eisenhower campaign is speeding up and the Stevenson campaign is slowing down and it's going to stay like that. All over the country Republicans, Democrats and independents are joining to keep Eisenhower."

Vice President Nixon's address in Medford was recorded and will be broadcast over radio station KYJC at 1 p.m. Monday.

The vice president named four requirements for a good government: honesty, prosperity, security and progressiveness.

He said the Eisenhower government has restored "dignity and respect" to the highest office in the land and "cleaned up the mess" that existed in Washington four years ago.

The Eisenhower government has also benefited wage-earners, he said. "There are some 67,000,000 wage-earners in America. Today they have more jobs, better wages, greater take home pay, security and peace."

Nixon said, "Before the present administration, farmers hadn't had prosperity for 20 years except in war or as the result of war."

He designated surpluses as an essential reason for lack of farm prosperity and stated, "We have attacked the surplus problem on two fronts. We have increased harvests abroad and at home, and through the soil bank program have reduced production of surplus items."

Full Rate Security
Referring to security, he said each dollar earned and saved during the Democratic administration in 1942 was worth only 50 cents in 1952. "We've given Americans full rate rather than cut rate security. People who save for the future now are going to get their money back in solid Eisenhower dollars, rather than rubber Truman dollars."

He has made many great decisions and has the experience and background to make great decisions. We can't take a chance on losing these in the next four critical years."

He added, "Eisenhower knows that an agreement to end H-bomb tests wouldn't be worth the paper it's written on." Such an agreement might put the United States two years behind in security development, Nixon said.

"Mr. Eisenhower puts security of this country above any political consideration."

Promoting support for Douglas McKay, ex-secretary of the interior, now a U. S. senatorial candidate, he said, "We know what he stands for and that's why we should elect him. The difference between Doug McKay and his opponent is graphically illustrated by their own words. Doug McKay says that Dwight Eisenhower is 'the greatest president in history.' His opponent says that Mr. Eisenhower is 'the most dangerous man who has been in the White House.' America needs Dwight Eisenhower, Mr. Eisenhower needs Doug McKay and I think voters are going to see they're elected."

Supports Ellsworth
The vice president also urged support for Republican Congressman Harris Ellsworth, referring to him as "a man of courage."

Nixon was given a brief introduction by McKay. As Vice President and Mrs. Nixon arrived on the stage at 9 p.m., the Hedrick Junior High band played portions of "California, Here I Come." The Nixons hail from Whittier, Calif.

The audience cheered and applauded every few minutes throughout his address and at least 100 photographs were taken. Many in the crowd carried banners for Eisenhower and Nixon, McKay and Republican Gov. Elmo Smith.

Treaty Gives Rich Saar Coal, Steel Area to Germany

See Final Settlement Of Friction Cause

Luxembourg — (U.P.) — France and Germany Saturday signed a treaty giving Germany the rich Saar coal and steel district for the second time in this century.

The 900-square mile area has bounced back and forth between France and Germany four times since 1919 when it was created as an autonomous territory to be administered by France under League of Nations supervision.

Both nations hailed Saturday's treaty as a final settlement of the chief remaining cause of friction between them.

German Citizens
The Saar's 900,000 German-speaking inhabitants will become German citizens next Jan. 1. But their economy will continue to be based on the French franc during a three-year transition period ending Jan. 1, 1960.

The Saar is an important center of heavy industry because of its rich coal fields and the availability of iron ore from nearby Lorraine in France.

In a 1935 plebiscite, the Saarländers voted to join Hitler's Germany. Recaptured by American troops in early 1945, the Saar came under French military government. In a second plebiscite in 1947, its people voted for economic union with France.

Foreign Ministers Christian Pineau of France and Heinrich von Brentano of Germany signed yesterday's treaty.

Memorial Hospital Fully Accredited
Rogue Valley Memorial hospital has been fully accredited, according to notice received from the board of commissioners of the joint commission on accrediting hospitals, it was announced at a meeting of the hospital board of directors Thursday.

The joint commission is an agency established by five health organizations to conduct hospital survey and inspection program initiated by the American college of surgeons in 1919.

The five organizations are American college of physicians, American college and the Canadian Medical Association.

Hospitals are rated on certain basic requirements such as safe physical plant free from fire hazards, proper supervision and review by the medical staff of the clinical work done, maternal, infant and anesthetic death rates that are not excessively high, adequate medical records, ethical practices, investigation of all tissues removed at operation, mortality rates that are within reasonable limits, proper nursing care, and proper administrative and medical staff organization.

Earlier this month, Sacred Heart hospital received notice of full accreditation.

McLoughlin Filled As Voters Attend Candidates Fair

Morse, McKay, Other Aspirants Are Present

State, local and national candidates had a "heyday" Saturday at the Candidates Fair sponsored by the League of Women voters and the two political parties at McLoughlin Junior High school gymnasium.

The decorated gymnasium was filled to capacity and attendance was expected to exceed 1,500.

Among candidates attending were U.S. Sen. Wayne Morse, Democrat, and his Republican opponent, Douglas McKay; Republican Gov. Elmo Smith and his Democratic opponent State Sen. Robert Holmes; Republican Congressman Harris Ellsworth and his Democratic opponent, Charles O. Porter; and Monroe Sweetland, Democratic candidate for secretary of state, and Sig Unander, GOP state treasurer seeking re-election.

A great number of Jackson county candidates were also attended.

No Speeches Made
No speeches were made and emphasis was placed on voters meeting candidates and asking questions.

Special prizes were presented throughout the evening. A prize was awarded by the Mail Tribune to the Republican party, which had the most audience representation. The award was a gavel.

Prizes were also to be awarded to the first five people scoring 100 per cent in a "voter's I.Q." test on candidates and ballot measures and to the oldest and youngest voters present.

Members of both parties spent considerable time Friday and Saturday decorating booths for candidates.

In addition to the candidates' booths, other booths were manned by the United Nations association, United Medford Crusade, AAUW, BPW, League of Women Voters, Jackson County Chamber of Commerce, county elections department and representatives for and against fluoridation.

Russ Jamison was master of ceremonies.

Veterans Day Parade Plans Are Announced

The council has asked local organizations to enter floats in the parade. Arrangements for entries may be made by calling Merrill Beneka, parade chairman, at the county courthouse.

Tentative plans call for the parade to start at the city park next to the library. The route will be east on Main st. to River st. It will move west on Sixth st. to Holly st., then south to the city park.

In the past, the parade has been held on Veterans Day, but will be held a day late this year since Veterans Day falls on Sunday.

Opposition to Adding Fluorides Is Losing Battle, Smith Writes

By A. ROBERT SMITH
Mail Tribune Correspondent

Washington—The forces that have been denouncing fluoridation of drinking water are now fighting a losing battle. The most recent survey shows that city after city across the nation is adopting fluoridation in record numbers this year.

The U.S. Public Health Service, in a tabulation made public this weekend, reported that up to Oct. 1, this year had already seen six million additional Americans drinking fluoridated water because their home communities adopted this method of fighting tooth decay.

Biggest Victory
This represents the biggest victory in such a short period of time for pro-fluoridation groups, who have been fought steadily in recent years by anti-fluoridationists who often proved strong enough to defeat fluoridation proposals.

Now about 1,400 cities and towns throughout the country with a total population of over 30 million residents are using fluoridation. This means, in other words, that about one out of every fourth person in America who uses municipal water is getting fluoridated water.

The six million persons who were added this year to the number using fluoridated water compares with an average annual gain of only four million during the years 1951 through 1955. The chances are that before 1956 has been concluded, many cities like Medford set to vote on the proposition on election day, that many more than six million persons will be the final tally for this year.

Strong Trend Today
Looking at this big gain in the perspective of the past decade since the fluoridation battle began, one can see how strong the trend is today in favor of using this method of combatting tooth decay.

Records Gov. Smith's slogan has been "a man people like and trust". Whatever the outcome of this election, I want to be known as a man who likes and trusts the people of Oregon."

Sen. Morse, Sweetland and Porter each spoke for about five minutes, attacking "smear tactics" of the Republican party and voicing confidence for a Democratic victory.

Also making brief statements were Larry Sheehan, chairman of the county Democratic central committee, and Robert Boyer, state Democratic central committee chairman and candidate for state representative. Clyde Fichtner, president of the Jackson County Democratic Social club, was master of ceremonies.

Other Democratic candidates attending were Thomas Reeder, candidate for district attorney; Ralph James, candidate for county assessor; Ray Schumacher, candidate for assessor; Karl Janouch, incumbent treasurer and Robert Duncan, candidate for state representative.

Volunteers Set to Rescue Insurgents In Scarred City

Uprising Becomes Full Revolution

Vienna — (U.P.) — Provincial rebel leaders Saturday proclaimed a march on Budapest to rescue insurgents still holding out against freshly-reinforced Soviet forces in the battle-scarred capital.

The rebels said "many thousands" of volunteers were massing in western Hungary to break through the Russian steel ring around Budapest.

The five-day-old uprising had become a full-fledged revolution against the Communist regime and the Soviet army which kept it in power.

Premier Imre Nagy, desperate to salvage Communist control, capitulated for the fourth time to rebel demands by bringing non-Communists into his emergency cabinet. But the action was too little and too late.

Battle 'More Intense'
On the spot diplomatic reports said the battle Saturday was "more intense" than ever and the situation, "if anything has worsened."

In Budapest, however, the situation became desperate for rebels who had been submitted to four solid days of merciless tank and infantry attack by Russian troops. Diplomatic reports said new Russian units were moving in.

There were several reports that some Hungarian exiles were preparing to cross the now-open border from Austria into Hungary to join the rebellion.

Moral support for the rebels came from all over the world—the big three appeal to the United Nations, the International Red Cross, the Inter American Press association and leaders of free world countries.

Joining Rebels
A rebel colonel in the town of Mayygarovar told a United Press staff correspondent who got in from Australia, 15 miles away, that "many thousands" of volunteers were joining the rebels for a march on the city.

The colonel said large areas of western, southern and northern Hungary were in rebel hands. He refused to be identified further.

So great has been the slaughter in Budapest that Russians are reported dumping bodies in the Danube river or hiding them in cellars. Eyewitnesses have reported bodies hanging from lampposts and poles near the river which divides the city.

Eisenhower Enters Hospital for Exam
Washington — (U.P.) — A smiling, chipper President Eisenhower entered the Army's Walter Reed medical center Saturday for a "head to toe" medical check-up to confirm his physical fitness to serve another four years in the White House.

As he strode briskly into the big hospital, he beamed with confidence. And his aides said he was "feeling just fine."

The President was taken immediately to the x-ray department to begin 24-hours of checks and tests which he had promised to undergo before election day. A report from the eight physicians directing the examination will be issued today.

He was scheduled to spend the night in the three-room Presidential suite which he occupied last June after he underwent an abdominal operation for an intestinal obstruction.
