President Speaks For Stamp Club On YMCA Covers

The Southern Oregon Stamp club met at the home of Mrs. Edward Leach for the November session. Clyde Smith of Ashland, president of the club, presented a program on the topic "YMCA Covers and Cachets."

Mr. Smith displayed covers mailed during the Civil War with a cachet reading "U. S. Christian Commission" which he said later became the YMCA. From the Spanish American War he showed covers stamped with the words "Army Christian Commission"; and from World War I there were covers showing the red triangle and the letters YMCA.

Mr. Smith also showed a few covers from the Civil War carrying the cachet of the U. S. Sanitary commission, which Mr. Smith stated later became the Red Cross. The commission, which worked with the hospitals during the Civil War was supported solely by free-will donations.

Other covers displayed by Mr. Smith were from the Salvation Army and other wartime covers with special cachets.

The club's December meeting will hear the report of the nominating committee, and the election of officers for the next year. On the nominating committee are Mrs. Leach, Mrs. Roland Beach and Mrs. Irene Corrier. The December program will be a Christmas party with the members exchanging gifts of a philatelic nature.

Artists Honor Doctor and Wife; Display Planned

During the evening, Mrs. Rankin extended an invitation from Mrs. Max Wimmer, president of Footlighters, to the members of the society to display paintings in the auditorium of the Footlighters Theatre during their forthcoming play, "The Devil Passes", to be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 8, 9, and 10 this week and again November 15, 16 and 17 the following week.

Gardeners Hear Glendale Woman At Last Session

Mrs. M. L. Gilbreath of Glendale, Ore., was speaker for a meeting of Medford Garden club held in the courthouse auditorium in November. Mrs. L. R. Thomas, president conducted the business meeting.

Contributions were voted for the National Council building fund. The Hanley horticultural scholarship fund and the National Veterans' cemetery in Portland.

Mrs. O. A. Floyd, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Gilbreath, who spoke on "Mountain Wind-wood and It's Uses." The speaker made many arrangements using fruits and flowers in combinations with wood. She stressed the importance of design and simplicity in making dried arrangements.

Many pieces with unusual lines may be found along small streams and gravel beds; also weathered roots from the mountain sides. She brought many specimens from their own collection of live-oak, myrtlewood, yew, manzanita and redwood. Some were waxed or bleached, others left in their natural state.

Mrs. Judy Smith spoke on the shrub, mahonia lomariifolia, a new introduction of the Oregon grape, which is more tropical in appearance with larger bloom spikes. This variety is especially suitable for hedges or mass plantings, she said.

Following the program tea was served by Mrs. Earl Bradfish. Mrs. Howard Bush, Mrs. E. M. Wallin, Mrs. Henry Bryant and Mrs. Robert Buckles, Mrs. I. D. Fitzgerald and Mrs. LeRoy Cline presided at the tea table.

Guests for the afternoon included Mrs. M. L. Gilbreath, Mrs. G. Major and Mrs. Grace Cross, Glendale; Mrs. I. D. Fitzgerald, Siskiyou district director; Mrs. Otto Nagel of Eagle Point, Mrs. Clarabelle Goodman, Mrs. Sally Hornbeck, Mrs. Alda Hall, Mrs. Pearl McKay and Mrs. Jessie Stagg.

Medford Ladies Lions will not hold the regularly scheduled meeting tonight, due to the election. Instead the meeting will be held Tuesday, November 13, at the home of Mrs. Robert Urie, 330 Hillhouse avenue.

Play Has Unusual Characters

Portraying the rather unusual characters in "The Devil Passes", a Footlighters production opening Thursday night, November 8 for a three-night run, will be something of a departure for most of the cast. The 3-act Bennett Levy comedy will be repeated on November 15, 16 and 17.

The local theatre group decided on the "split" production dates after noting that most theater-goers prefer to attend end-of-the-week performances. Curtain time is at 8:30 p.m. at the Fairgrounds theater, located back of the new Army building, which is under construction.

Director Richard Graham believes he has a "first rate cast" for the play, and adds that "every role presents a definite challenge to the actor." Graham himself was obliged to assume a major role when the actor originally cast for the part was unable to continue in rehearsals.

"Probably the most interesting factor with which the audience will be concerned," Graham said, "is the decision each character makes in turn as he or she is presented the opportunity to realize his 'innermost heart's desire'."

The modern set was designed by Raun James, display manager for Mann's department store, and construction has been in charge of Frank Buchter, Bernard Roberts and Max Wimmer.

Miss Kathleen Davies is handling props, and bookholder is Miss Janice Boardman.

The cast includes Colleen Romine, Les Boardman, Clyde Wheaton, Ruth Kilburn, Thayer Tarvin, James Sullivan, Charlene Tarvin, and Frankie Burton.

How To Be Chic On Dollar A Day Book's Subject

By GAY PAULEY United Press Correspondent New York—(UP)—The cost of being chic is cheap—one dollar a day.

And if any husband looking over his wife's clothing bill wants to challenge that statement, let him check in with a pretty convincer named Bea Danville.

Miss Danville has written a book which marks her as a husband's best friend and a traitor to those of her own set who already are lobbying for Christmas. The book, "Dress Well On $1 a Day," is intended to guide a woman to smart dress on a small pocketbook.

"The dollar a day will not provide a mink coat," she said in an interview. "She will have to find someone to give that."

"But I'm talking about the average woman . . . the one whose husband is in a middle and not a high income bracket. The woman whose wardrobe does not call for several cocktail and evening dresses."

There are several "ifs" in Miss Danville's plan. The buck a day is sufficient if a woman works out on a long-term, clothing purchase plan, decides how much to spend on each item, and then sticks to her intentions. It also helps if she does some sewing at home.

"And," said the British-born Miss Danville, "it means a woman occasionally has to wear blinkers . . . to get her past a sales counter."

Bea Danville is all for sales—

Nixon To Receive Returns in Capital

Washington—(UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon planned today to wait out the election returns in the nation's capital.

Nixon voted by absentee ballot Saturday. His home is at Whittier, Calif.

The vice president tonight was expected to make an appearance along with President Eisenhower at a big GOP election night party at the Sheraton-Park Hotel.

Nixon appeared briefly Monday night on a nationally televised GOP "victory" program that originated from the White House.

The vice president and his wife, Pat, joined the President and First Lady in the White House library to watch the program and later take part.

"I believe the American people want the President to have the chance to finish what he started," he told the nationwide audience.

they're part of her scheme of things. "But not bargain basement," she said, "except for lingerie, hose and shoes. I watch the sales in the top stores, where the merchandise has the store's backing."

She insisted she practices what she preaches—that her annual clothing allowance is $365.

"Have to keep within limits," she said. "I have a son to bring up." She makes big own-classically styled skirts. "A woman can save $15 or $20 a year," and build the rest of her wardrobe around simply styled dresses and suits.
