

Mrs. America Lands At London Airport

London—(U.P.)—Mrs. Cleo Nettis, "Mrs. America 1957," flew into London airport yesterday from the United States.

During her three-day visit the vivacious brunette "mother" of three from Portland, Ore., will visit typical homes, exchange home-making news and study housekeeping methods.

On Thursday she will fly to Brussels on her way to Moscow.

She said "I hope to see some homes and flats in Moscow and to find out how the ordinary people of Russia live, what they eat and wear."

In her luggage she had a stack of clothing patterns and a pile of American home-making magazines.

Texas oil men spent about $1 billion annually finding and developing petroleum. About $390 million is lost annually on dry holes.

On The Side

After all, I have smoked Italian cigars. Those long black ones. Also Dutch cigars. And have puffed on many a stogie. So why should I view with alarm the prospect of smoking a French cigar? To make a lengthy tale brief, my hope to win enough francs at Longchamp to keep me in Havanas for a week was a shattered dream. I failed to break even. The only winner I had was a noble animal owned and bred by Rita Hayworth's former father-in-law, the Aga Khan. Even my best bet failed me. That was a horse owned by Marcel Boussac, the textile manufacturer, and backer of Christian Dior.

Beautiful Course

Longchamp has always been considered the world's most beautiful racecourse. It is more beautiful than ever. They now have a race caller. Makes the racing more interesting. But even he can't inform you what is going on when the horses disappear into the forest. For admission to the best section, the price is about $1.25. In this section you can bet as low as 100 francs. That is about 30 cents. When you buy a win and place ticket you collect something if your horse comes in first, second and third. No show tickets sold.

Horses and Women

The most important stake race staged the day we were at Longchamp had a value of six million francs. Sounds like a lot of money but is only the equivalent of $15,000. The daily double on the fourth and seventh races paid 60 to 1. That would be a $1,200 double at Belmont. So much for the horses. As usual, there were many extremely smart looking females strolling about the beautiful parklike paddock. My girl friend expressed much admiration as to the style sense of these feminine patrons of the turf.

The Paris climate at this time of the year is good. Or so it seems to me. Not too hot, not too cold. Very good for walking. According to the experts on the subject of weather, Paris has an average of 184 rainy days annually. Only 13 days of snow. On 62 days the weather is below freezing. The sun shines approximately one-half the year. There is fog in Paris but no smog.

Art

My interest in art preceded my interest in horses and women. I never went to a racecourse until I was 10. I didn't have a steady girl until I was 14. However, at the age of eight my mother was taking me to visit the art galleries in New York. I spend quite a little time in the art galleries of Paris. I usually go first to the Louvre to see if Da Vinci's Mona Lisa is still there. As you know, it was stolen a few years ago but recovered shortly after. After doing a little additional figuring as to what Mona Lisa was smiling about, I take a look at some of Titian's paintings featuring blondes. I want to be certain I know a Titian blonde when I see one. Leaving the Louvre I go to the Musee Rodin to again view the statue titled "The Thinker." However, I don't have to tell you about the art galleries of Paris. You can read about them at the public library.

Exchange

The first time I saw Paris the exchange rate was 33 francs to a dollar. The official rate is now 350 francs to a dollar. In Holland and Belgium you can get 300 francs to a dollar, in New York, at a legitimate establishment, you can get over 400 francs to a dollar. I know I told you that before. However, I want to emphasize it. Keep it in mind if you are coming to Paris. You can save yourself quite a little money.

Quotes From the News

By UNITED PRESS

United Nations, N.Y.—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold on establishment of an international police force in the Mideast: "My personal conviction is that if the General Assembly, and I am certain it will, will accept my proposals on the establishment of the international force, that force will be competent to attain the objectives."

Washington—State department spokesman Lincoln White on possible Russian violation of the Austrian border: "The United States has respected and will continue to respect and observe the neutral character of Austria and considers that the violation of the territorial integrity or internal sovereignty of Austria, would, of course, be a grave threat to the peace."

Cairo—Cairo radio reporting on the Egyptian defense of Port Said: "We are turning Port Said into another Stalingrad."

London—British Prime Minister Anthony Eden rejecting a Soviet claim British action in Egypt was "barbarous": "At such a time it ill becomes the Soviet government to speak of the actions of her majesty's government as barbaric."

Chicago—Coroner Walter E. McCarron on an election day inquest into an elevated train that killed seven persons and injured about 142 others: "I don't care if it is election day. This thing is above politics."

French Photographer Dies of War Wounds

Paris — (U.P.) — Jean-Pierre Pedrazzini, photographer and reporter for the French magazine Paris Match, died here today of wounds suffered in the fighting in Budapest last week.

Pedrazzini, 29, was machine-gunned by a Russian tank and was flown to a Paris hospital with 12 bullet wounds in the abdomen, back and legs.

He covered news all over the world for Paris Match and was inhibited in Paris. That is, except in extreme emergencies. The Paris autoists still engage in heated arguments regarding alleged driving errors. The supreme insult one Paris autoist can scream at another is "Ecce! l'ecole." That means, "Why don't you go to an automobile driving school and learn how to drive, you bum."

MEDFORD (OREGON) MAIL TRIBUNE—NEWS

10,000 Workers Idle in Oregon

Salem—(U.P.)—Some 10,000 workers were laid off by Oregon firms last month, the State Unemployment Compensation Commission has announced. Officials estimated 25,400 workers were looking for jobs Nov. 1, compared with 15,000 a month ago and 21,100 last year.

Although seasonal unemployment was increasing in nearly every section of the state, most of the layoffs came in downstate western Oregon.

About 2,000 were added to unemployed in the four-county Portland metropolitan area. Fewer than 1,500 were counted east of the Cascades, while the remainder of 6,500 came from the western timber area.

Early snow and cold weather in higher elevations were given as causes for most of the lumber and logging shutdowns, but lowering demand for wood products also was noted. Construction, food processing and other seasonal lines also contributed to the job slackening.

ONLY 44 YEARS LATE

Providence, R. I. — (U.P.) — Back in 1912, Jesse Heath did a moving job for a man who said that "some day" Heath would be paid. True to his promise, the man mailed Heath a $15 check 44 years later.

4-H Club News

Talent Sewing Club
The Talent 4-H Sewing club met last Saturday, Nov. 3. Elections for officers were held, the results are as follows: Betty Jo Howell, president; Sandra Roth, vice president; Marilyn Pfaff, secretary; and Linda Hazelton, reporter. It was decided that the meetings be held every third Monday of the month. Candied apples were served.

BACKWARD
Boston — (U.P.) — A marked lack of progress is evident in Boston. Sun dials are generally replaced by clocks, but Mayor John Hynes says the clock on the Old State House will be replaced by a sun dial as part of a remodeling program.
