The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez, Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic; Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

Gifts Made by Animals to Man... In the magazine, Today's Health, there is a fine article by Richard and Gladys Harkness, telling of the great gifts of health that some individual animals have given to mankind. For instance, there is Gran'tley, the collie who helped give children with formerly hopeless heart disease, a new plastic heart valve, which makes life possible. There is Coconut, the merry monkey who, with a little radio antenna built into his brain, has been teaching doctors much about epilepsy and the way in which it can be relieved, so that suffering children can smile again and go to school.

Dr. Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnose by mail. (Released by The Register and Tribune Syndicate, 1956)

MOO-O-O'S AND MUSINGS

In the laboratories of this land, thousands upon thousands of mice are helping doctors to find a cure for cancer and other diseases. The great national Institute of Health at Bethesda, Md., alone uses 800,000 such small animals in a year. Without small animals we would never have had the Salk vaccine. I have just read that this last year only one child who had three shots of Salk vaccine died of polio; without the vaccine, hundreds of children would have died of the disease.
