On The Side

Paris — What is the smallest night club you have ever visited? For me it is Suzy Solidor's Cabaret here on the Rue Balzac. This place is about the size of a living room. I have never seen such clever utilization of so small an area. It has a bar, a dance floor and a stage. It is furnished and decorated in an extremely artistic way. The intimacy of the establishment is such that those present have a feeling they are at a private party. It is, in fact, almost that. Suzy, one of the great Cabaret artists of Europe, greets all comers warmly. Later on she sits for a period at each table to chat with her guests. She is the main attraction but the night we were in attendance there were several other extremely clever acts presented. We have seen solidor enthusiasts for some time and have a collection of her records. By request, Suzy sang several of our favorites. Practically all the people present were French. Our evening at Chez Solidor was a touch of the real Paris.

Dogs
The tender regard Parisians have for dogs is extremely interesting. You could slap your wife or your female companion in the face while strolling down the boulevard and nobody would pay any attention to you, however, if you slapped your dog several passers-by would stop and offer strong objections. They would want to know what the dog had done to deserve such punishment. Or, if while walking your dog, on a leash you pulled him along faster than he wanted to go some passer-by would surely request you to be more kind to the dog. To let him enjoy his walk.

Sidelights
When the average Parisian is asked for his telephone number he gives out three numbers, those of his residence, his office, and his favorite cafe. Some of the French cigars are not so bad. They are not so cheap either. Cost about 25 cents. That is, however, less than half the price of a Havana. Evening dress is compulsory on Friday nights at the Florence night club in the Montmartre section.

Subway
Haven't started my study of the Paris subway system yet. I had planned to go out to the Auteuil racecourse by the underground. At Auteuil nothing but hurdle and steeplechase races are staged. After thinking it over I gave the idea up. To bet on seven jumping races and ride on the Paris subway in the same day seemed too serious an undertaking. Might give me a nervous breakdown. However, my mind is made up. I will master that Metro if it takes all the rest of the time I am here. First I am going to ride on the subway from the place zolite to Montparnasse. Don't get me wrong. The actual riding on the Metro is not bad at all. It is getting confused in the stations that makes it tough.

Auld Lang Syne
Georges Carpentier, erstwhile ringman, has a very attractive bar and restaurant on the boulevard De La Madeleine. When World War II started Georges had a place near the Champs Elysees. When the Germans occupied Paris he closed his bar and refused to open it despite the threats of the Nazis. He said he wouldn't serve the enemy. As you know Carpentier is a veteran of World War I.

Frog Legs
Frog legs are not among my favorite delicacies. However, in case you are interested the best place for frog legs is La Frovenciale at the Gernoulle restaurant in the Halles Market section. This place has only 15 tables which are packed night and day with frog legs enthusiasts.

Favorite Spot
One of my favorite Paris spots for strolling is the Parc Monceau section. Sarah Bernard had a house in the part of the city for many years. When Sarah went from her house to the theatre she featured an elegant horse drawn equipage with a coachman and liveried footman. As she passed along the boulevards she exchanged greetings with her admirers and acknowledged repeated outbursts of applause by strollers.

Night Clubs
The intimate night clubs of Paris such as the Florence, Patouchou's, Le Drap D'or, Suzy Solidor's, Carrol's and Sully Du Bois are worthwhile but the larger places are nothing much. The New York night clubs of that type are much better. The Paris night spots that feature unattired females are a little on the corny side. Most are just tourist traps with prices outrageously high.

CUT-RATE FINE
Massena, N. Y. — Twenty-one year old Clifford R. Yeager got a cut rate on his traffic fine in police court here. Yeager, fined $10 as an unlicensed driver, dug into his pockets and came up 20-cents short of the sum. Justice Robert La Plante accepted the $9.80 and released him.

Two Apply for Tree Farm Certificates

Applications are being submitted to the Western Pine association and the Industrial Forestry association, both of Portland, for certification of tree farms for W. L. Shannon and Harlan Cantrall, both of the Applegate area, according to Clem Ault, soil conservationist for the Rogue Soil Conservation district.

Shannon is applying for a 46-acre tree farm and Cantrall is applying for a 140-acre tree farm. Ault said.

Dale Prentice of the Western Pine association, and Hardey Glascock, technician for the Industrial Forestry association, inspected the farms last week with John Taggart, local forester for the Rogue Soil Conservation district.

Technical assistance for the timber management program for Shannon and Cantrall will be provided by foresters from the local conservation district office.

Last year certificates for tree farms in the Rogue Soil Conservation district were issued to Don Minear, Medford, and C. W. Jensen and Willis Steinhil, both of Rogue River.

Theft of Bananas Makes Urgent Case

Singapore — (UPI) — When a Singapore court decided to postpone a case in which a Chinese was accused of stealing a bunch of bananas, the police prosecutor protested.

"Last week they were green. What will happen to them if we do not get an early date for hearing?"

The court clerk took one glance at the bunch of bananas and decided the case was urgent. They were already turning yellow. He fixed the hearing the following day.

Approve Jr. College For Siskiyou County

Yreka — A junior college in Siskiyou county was approved Thursday during a session of the 10-man state board of education in Chico, according to a report from Jerry Hurley, Siskiyou High school district superintendent.

The superintendent said the next step will be calling an election in Siskiyou to determine whether or not citizens of the county favor establishment of a junior college.

Investigators, including a survey team of education officials, have indicated such a junior college would be beneficial to the community.

Opponents of the college have listed school curriculum, location, plant, per capita cost to Siskiyou citizens and enrollment questions as possible objectional features.

Dr. Frank Wright, education department official, has stated as many as 350 to 400 students will attend the school immediately. He also indicated the figure may rise to 700 or 800 in a few more years.

Build a stronger, richer life . . .
WORSHIP TOGETHER EVERY WEEK!
You know the hymn—"How firm a Foundation?" Of course you do. But it's more than a hymn. To many it is a way of life.
The foundation is faith. Faith that gives every day a shining new quality. Faith that provides a strong shelter in time of need. Faith that sustains you in sickness and trouble. Faith that makes life a great adventure, truly worth living.
You find faith as a member of a family, as a member of a community. Worshiping together every week, with those you love, with others who believe as you do—gives you strength to carry through with hope and courage.
You can build a stronger, richer life—on a firm foundation of faith. Worship together this week . . . every week!
