DO LUTHERANS BELIEVE THEIRS IS THE ONLY TRUE RELIGION?

Yes. But they do not believe that they are the only ones who have it.

Someone has aptly defined "true religion" as, "Accepting what God wants to give you." And Lutherans know that no one denomination has a monopoly on those who "accept what God wants to give."

But Lutherans also realize that again and again throughout history, men have tried to dilute that which God most wants to give: The Gospel of Christ.

And because the Gospel is the power through which God works in man, Lutherans know that any "watering down" of the Gospel is a blasphemy against God and a danger to human souls.

That is why Lutherans are not among those who say, "One church is the same as the next" or, "It doesn't make much difference what you believe, just so you believe!"

If you drink strychnine, believing it to be cough syrup, it makes a great deal of difference.

And if you trust your own goodness, believing God to be satisfied with it — or, if you belittle God-on-a-cross, believing Him to be merely a fine moral example — that makes a great deal of difference, too. An eternal difference!

That is why both children and adults are thoroughly instructed in the faith before being received as Lutheran communicants. It does make a difference what you believe!
