Douglas Fir Belt Production Figured

Portland—(U.P.)—Lumber production in the Douglas fir belt of Oregon during October was 98 per cent of the 1951-1955 average, the West Coast Lumbermen's Association has reported.

The association listed the weekly rate of production at 179,287,000 board feet.

The cumulative production for the first 10 months of this year now totals 7,754,472,000 board feet, down from the 8,206,475,000 board feet for a comparable period a year ago.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Margaret T.—My sister has rejected two fine young men.

Noreen T.—She ought to think about her own life.

* * *

Margaret T.—I am at my wit's end to know what to do about my younger sister, who has in the past two years rejected two wonderful young men.

Noreen is 21 and has gone out a lot with many boys of different faiths, and for a while I was worried that she would marry one of them. But along came these two good-looking boys of our own faith and begged her to marry them. She went with each of them for a while and then just turned them down.

I think Noreen was influenced by two of her girl friends, who were jealous of her.

Our parents died when Noreen was very young and I have taken full care of her since she was 13. I sure would like to see her married to a nice boy of our faith.

* * *

Noreen T.—My sister ought to think about her own life for a change instead of worrying about mine. She is 28 and I don't see her going around looking for men of our faith to marry. Margaret worries about me much too much.

All Margaret thinks about when she sees a young man is whether he belongs to the right faith. I want to marry in my faith, but I think other things count too.

My friends are very nice and are not jealous of me, but they happened to know these two young men very well. One of them drinks too much, the other is a very unsettled type who goes from job to job.

Margaret doesn't know anything about the realities of life. She just goes to work and comes home and worries about me. I feel that I am young and can look around some more.

* * *

The Council: If Margaret would heed her younger sister's advice and pay a little more attention to her own social life, she would have much more chance of influencing the girl.

Margaret appears weighed down by her responsibility to her sister, who talks like a fairly sensible girl. It is possible that Noreen was wrongly influenced by her friends, but she can't help feeling that they know more about "the realities of life" than a sister who does not go out herself or think about her own marriage.

Margaret may be trying to evade her own potentialities for living a happy life by focusing all the attention on her sister. Noreen is wise to turn the table and point out that it is high time the older girl thought about her own life. She might go even further and suggest specific social activities that would give Margaret more contact with people.

If Noreen is really as sensible as she appears, she will in the future take her girl friends' advice with a grain of salt.

It's a proven fact that the Indians discovered uranium right here in Southern Oregon over 400 years ago.

You can't blame them for keeping it quiet because of the tax situation.

New Disclosures Rekindle Scandal Of Hodge Finances

Chicago —(U.P.)— New disclosures swung the $1.5 million embezzlement scandal of imprisoned ex-state auditor Orville E. Hodge back into prominence today.

The developments occurred from an investigation by Albert E. Jenner Jr., a special assistant attorney general, into the finances of Hodge.

Springfield, Chicago, St. Louis and Washington figured in the new angles which arose from Hodge's fantastic raid on the state treasury through false state warrants.

Jenner sought to trace a $35,000 fee paid by the Union Electric Co., St. Louis, in connection with a bill which it wanted to pass the 1955 Illinois legislature.

Jenner said J. Roy Browning, Chicago lawyer, said the utility agreed to pay Hodge and Browning the money to lobby for the bill, which was approved by the Legislature.

Browning, however, said he received only one check, for $17,500 which he endorsed over to Hodge, Jenner said.

Meanwhile, the Securities-Exchange commission began a secret investigation at Washington into the alleged payments of the utility.

The commission sought to determine whether there was any violation of federal law governing public utility holding companies, and particularly whether there were any payments contrary to the ban on contributions to political parties or to candidates for public office.

The SEC investigation was requested by U. S. Attorney John B. Stoddard Jr., Springfield.

At St. Louis, officials of the utility said the $35,000 fee was intended for Browning and that Hodge was only an intermediary in the hiring of the Chicago attorney.
