Church Rites Wed Miss Dubs And Milton George Friesen

Yellow, bronze, and white chrysanthemums decorated Ashland Mt. View church Saturday, November 3, for the candlelight wedding of Miss Mildred Louise Dubs and Milton George Friesen. The Rev. Roy Frymire, brother-in-law of the bride and minister of the Apostolic Faith church, Eureka, Calif., officiated at the 7 o'clock evening ceremony, attended by 150 friends and relatives of the couple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reinhard Dubs, 4069 South Pacific highway, Medford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Friesen, 115 Reager street, Medford.

Candlelighters were Danny Andrews, nephew of the bride, and Ronny Myers, a cousin of the bride. Flower girls were Pamela Dubs and Paulette Andrews, nieces of the bride.

Paul Brown, brother-in-law of the bride, served as best man. Dick Schleich was groomsman, and Robert Brown, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Earl Buss, Los Angeles, seated the guests.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the hall at the Apostolic Faith church. Large wedding bells and chrysanthemums decorated the rooms. Mrs. Arthur Dubs, sister-in-law of the bride, poured and Mrs. Duane Jones, sister of the bride, cut and served the cake.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Dubs chose a dark rose dress and Mrs. Friesen wore a navy blue suit. Both had white orchid corsages.

The bride wore a blue suit with red accessories for her traveling attire. They will make their home in Riverside, Calif. near March Air Force base where the bridegroom is stationed with the United States Air Force.

The former Miss Dubs is a graduate of Phoenix High school and was employed by Jackson County Tax Department. The bridegroom is a graduate of Eagle Point High school.

Out of town guests included the O. Buss family, Mr. and Mrs. Don Andrews, Mrs. L. Andrews, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Charf, all of Portland, and Earl Buss, Sonny Phillips, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ploetz of Los Angeles.

Arrange a circle of well drained canned cling peach halves in an 8-inch ring mold. Top with a slightly thickened wine-lemon gelatin mixture filled with chopped celery, walnuts and halved grapes. Use a half cup of California white table wine for part of the liquid in the gelatin base.

Potpourri

We know that the election is over, and that it will be two whole years before there is another one, but Potpourri feels obliged to report something which we've been hearing about for the past two weeks. It seems that in spite of all the efforts of political parties, the League of Women Voters, newspapers and other public information institutions, a lot of people don't know how to vote. And a lot of other people, intelligent and sensible ones, are dissatisfied with the voting process in Oregon.

Before the election Elmo Roper, one of the nation's authorities on polls, wrote in the Saturday Review that many voters go to the polls determined to vote one way and then end up by voting another. He found out that 52 per cent said they had often wanted to split their vote. Eleven per cent said the last time they wanted to, and had not, it was because they feared they would invalidate their ballot. This is not a phenomenon of people with a poor education, Mr. Roper found. "Eight per cent of the people with less than a high school education reported that the last time they wanted to split their ticket they did not, but 12 per cent of the people with some college education reported precisely the same thing," he wrote.

Mr. Roper also pointed out that while it is difficult to find anyone who admits they aren't going to vote, after the election is over it is perfectly obvious that many who said they were going to, didn't. So, why not?

Immediately after the election was over we began to hear voters say that they dreaded the voting process, that election officials made them feel conspicuous and incompetent. At the meeting of Jackson County Republican Women, Wednesday members reported other instances — that voters admitted ruminating their ballots and being too timid to ask for a fresh one or admitted that they were unsure of whether or not they had voted as they meant to do.

A number of excellent suggestions were made — that the instructions at the top of the ballots be printed in red ink, that a box be placed between the name of the candidate and the number, and that each voter be mailed a copy of the sample ballot along with his voters' pamphlet.

With this fresh in mind we talked to a woman who had served on an election board for the first time, and who had been pretty upset. She found that voters were unsure of what they were doing, said she thought the chairman of her board had been to brusque and short-tempered with timid voters, and noticed that almost no one knew how to fold their ballot properly. Some extended it to the workers completely unfolded.

When counting time came she discovered that some ballots had been completely ruined and others were incomplete — the voting X's had been placed in the margins, at the bottom, or people had substituted completely blacked-in squares. She decided, too, as the night wore on, that people who had worked all day had no business trying to do the counting — they were too tired to do an accurate job.

What constitutes rummage? Potpourri's Agent 54 from the Hinterland reported last week that two full grown cats and a litter of kittens were among the "rummage" articles for a sale which her club planned.

With the Christmas gift season beginning to roll, our mail is filled with ideas for gifts. A New York firm has a pink mink bed jacket for sale—price about $1500. Another N.Y. firm, this one whooping it up for Swiss watches, says that some of the women's models are smaller than a man's shirt button, that some have calendars marking both the day and the date (these are for travelers) and another has three different colored discs instead of second, minute and hour hands. One man's watch is actually a belt buckle and others have outer dials that will solve arithmetic problems on the spot.

Charlene Reed, daughter of Lois and Bill Reed, put her foot down last week and announced that one concert on Sunday was enough. Charlene, whose nickname is George, said she didn't mind going to the afternoon concert of the Philharmonic orchestra to hear Mama Lois play her violin, but flatly refused to go to Grants Pass for the repeat performance in the evening. "I'm going to stay home and hear Elvis Presley sing," said Charlene firmly. She's in the third grade at Jackson school.—O.S.
