

Calling All Males! We're Losing Sex War To Secretly Calculating Females

By H. D. QUIGG
United Press Correspondent
New York — (U.P.) — Males of America, awake! — If that's possible, we're losing the sex war. We're becoming the underdogs of American civilization.

The battle of men against women has erupted out of the cold war stage. A flood of hot figures from the Census Bureau shows how the females of this country have built up their dread forces secretly and calculatingly since 1910.

And we have gone along, blithely, complacently, living our snug little lives, ignoring the voices of warning until—suddenly and dramatically, they have struck. The awful truth is this:

The Census Bureau says there are now 1,381,000 more women than men in this country. Their build-up began in 1910, when there were 106 men for every 100 women. Steadily they augmented their forces, increased their stockpiles until, in 1940, there were only 100.7 men for every 100 women.

Fight Back

In 1950, they spurred and passed us by 600,000. It seemed like a trivial figure and there were those who laughed lightly and avowed that a good cigar's a smoke. Well, all that's behind us now, and our work is cut out. We must fight back.

A sex that can outstrip us by 1 1/3 million in six years is monstrous crafty. You know what they're after? Guys and dolls. That's dolls, with one "L." Stands for $.

The female army has debauched upon the financial plain. In 1952, there were 3,230,000 women shareholders of stock in public corporations—for 49.8 per cent of the total. The latest New York Stock Exchange census shows they've won; right now there are 4,455,000 female shareholders—51.6 per cent of the shareholder total.

And who do you think are the largest single occupation-group of stockholders? Housewives. 34.2 per cent.

There have been all kinds of estimates that women own more of the wealth of the United States than men. Most financial experts say any percentage would be a guess. But one put it this way:

Only One Means

"It depends on what you mean by 'own.' If you use the word in the sense of own-and-control, then it's women by 100 per cent."

What did he mean?

"Why, if you're married, your wife controls all your wealth, in the practical sense. I'm a married man with three kids, and I know who controls my assets." It's rays of light like that that

Klamath Compact To Legislatures

Klamath Falls, Ore. — (U.P.) — Representatives of Oregon and California signed the Klamath River Basin Compact Saturday and sent it to the legislatures of the two states for ratification.

The compact, designed to promote development and proper use of water resources in the Upper Klamath Basin, also needs approval of Congress before it becomes effective.

The compact, which sets up a system of priority for water use, covers all land draining into the Klamath River above the point where it crosses the California-Oregon border near Coco Lake in Siskiyou County, Calif.

Less than two million acre feet of water — about 15 per cent of the entire runoff of the Klamath — is affected by the compact.

Domestic water users are given first priority under the compact, followed by irrigation, recreation, including fish and wildlife, industrial, hydroelectric and other uses.

Export of water from the upper basin is prohibited with one exception, in Oregon, but the compact provides for diversion between the two states within limits of the basin boundaries.

Visitation Night Held by School

Eagle Point — Eagle Point Elementary school held visitation night November 13 in observance of American Education week. Eagle Point Elementary Parent-Teacher association presented a program in the new elementary gymnasium.

Mrs. Dale Ackerman's Camp Fire Girls presented the flag, and the Rev. Glenn Wade gave the invocation. Lee Hayes, elementary principal, spoke on American Education week.

Mrs. Stanley Smith, PTA president, introduced a portion of the elementary faculty in a pantomime of the "Good Old Golden Rule Days" while the elementary chorus, directed by Mrs. Maxine Perryman, sang "School Days."

Wally West, eighth grade student, was master of ceremonies for several pantomime skits which Mrs. Elbert Hefley directed to show the contrast between the old days and new modern methods of education. The skits compared old-time transportation with modern busses, old-time classrooms and teachers with modern classes, the days of cold lunches with the new cafeteria system. Extra-curricular activities were depicted by music of the past and modern band instruction, and the advancement in athletics was shown by contrasting non-supervised sports and the new athletic program under qualified instructors.

Mrs. Berryman led the audience in group singing. She was accompanied by Mrs. Ray Chamberlain.

Mrs. Harry Daniels was presented the prize of the evening, a 27-pound turkey.

Defrost fruit before opening the carton. Home economists at the American Can Co. said the fruit color remains brighter, the fruit of better quality as a result.
