Service Bureau Offers Materials For Study Groups

A free monthly newsletter, PROGRAM NOTES, is now available to leaders of PTA's, church groups, and other interested clubs through Parents Magazine's Group Service Bureau.

Designed to help leaders plan lively, meaningful child meetings, this unique 4-page bulletin provides specific program material as well as general information on new meeting techniques, ways to build membership and news of what other groups are doing.

The program material is based on two series of authoritative articles on the preschool and school-age child appearing monthly in Parents Magazine. Specially selected for their timeliness and importance, articles scheduled include: Do Parents Need the Experts? ... Do Your Children Know You Love Them? ... Help Your Child To Face His Feelings ... Sex Education: What It Means at Different Ages ... Can Children Have Fun in Your Community? ... Must Your Child Conform? ... What Are Fathers For?

Program Notes is part of a complete program service offered by the bureau, and supplements the other free aids made available.

A copy of Program Notes and complete information can be obtained from: The Group Service Bureau, Box GX-24, Parents Magazine, Inc., 52 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York 17, N.Y.

Oldest Elementary School Building

New York—(U.P.)—What is believed to be the oldest elementary school building in the United States is located on Staten Island.

The building, restored in 1939 by the Staten Island Historical Society, is known as the Voorlezer's House. Voorlezer is a title the Dutch applied to a layman chosen to teach school and conduct limited church services in communities unable to support a school.

It is not known exactly when the two-story clapboard building was built, but the first mention of the structure in recorded history appears in a deed dated 1696.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual report. The Family Council does not give advice; it merely reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Warren K.—My wife squanders money on her parents.

Lillian K.—It's he who overdoes the generosity.

Warren K.—My wife and I have been married two years. We're both working and saving for the future when we hope to have a home and family.

My parents are not very well off and I am an only child, so I have to help them out. They won't take a regular allowance in money, so I buy them a lot of clothing and household supplies for gifts on every possible occasion.

The difficulty is that when I buy a gift for my parents, Lillian seems to think she has to buy one equally expensive, although her parents are very comfortably fixed. For example, when I bought my mother a new refrigerator, which she needed desperately, Lillian went out and bought her folks an expensive TV set, although they had a perfectly usable one.

I am not against my wife buying gifts for her parents, but I don't think she ought to squander much-needed money just to compete with me.

Lillian K.—I feel that it is Warren who is in competition with me and my parents.

Warren's parents do not have the same standard of living as my parents. They have enough money for the necessities of life, but when Warren sees how my parents live, I think he gets a little jealous and goes out to buy his the same things. His parents have often said that he is overdoing the generosity.

Warren also overlooks the fact my parents gave us so much when we married we have not had many of the expenses most young married couples must contend with.

When I buy a gift for my parents, I do not try to spend as much as my husband—as he be-

San Francisco Woman Has Apple Soup Recipe

San Francisco—(U.P.)—A San Francisco woman offers this recipe for a light clear soup, designed to perk up appetites, yet simple to prepare.

Appropriately named "Golden Gate Soup," the recipe belongs to Mrs. Seymour Farber and is published in "Kitchen Consultations," a cookbook compiled by the University of California Doctors' Wives Association.

First issued in December 1949, the recipe collection was reissued in a new edition in June 1950 and sold for the benefit of the University of California Hospital.

Ingredients: 4 tart apples; 1 can concentrated bouillon; 1 can concentrated consommé; Light cream—10½ oz.; and 1 tsp. curry powder.

Wash, quarter, core and cover the apples with water. Cook until mushy and put through a sieve. Add to the bouillon and consume undiluted.

Just before serving heat slowly with cream. When the mixture has almost boiled, add curry powder, stir and serve immediately.

The fashion industry in Berlin is one of the largest in the city, employing over 50,000 persons and producing over $150,000,000 annually.

Jewelry to Come In Darker Shades

By UNITED PRESS

One designer predicts a great future for the dark shades of jewelry.

"The darker tones are on the ascent," said Mrs. Judith McCann. "Right now, they're high fashion. By next year they'll be popular."

Mrs. McCann said one of her best sellers is a smoky shade of baroque pearl she calls "black brilliance." She combines it with rhinestone or with white pearls. One "black brilliance" necklace—a variation of the dog collar—can be worn three ways. It has a patented feature which makes it small enough to circle a chignon, or large enough to make a low-slung evening necklace.

Some of the new diamond jewelry is "out of this world."

Among the winners at the recent "Diamonds USA" awards in New York was a set of women's dress cuff-links and shirt-waist studs in star shapes. A set of earrings had crescent moons in diamonds and pearls for the top of the ear, with smaller crescents for the base. Another design featured a miniature "earth" watch. The tiny globe sparkled with blue enamel seas, platinum land-masses, and with the equator and north pole area in diamonds.

The Council: These young people are using their parents as pawns in a competitive game that is dangerous and destructive to the marriage.

It is possible Warren overdoes his generosity, but Lillian seems rather unfeeling on the subject. Her pointing out of her parent's higher standard of living may provoke Warren to want more for his own. She seems to want to make him more aware of the benefits that have come from her parents—an attitude that undoubtedly irks him. It indicates a wish to hold the upper hand over him.

Lillian should recognize her parents do not need to be shown "appreciation" in material terms. It is natural and customary for parents to give to their children when they can, and their repayment is to see the children happy.

Lillian and Warren can show their regard for one another by taking an equal interest in gifts for both sets of parents.

MEDFORD (OREGON) MAIL TRIBUNE—THREE

Ex-Mayor of Cave Junction Says Tourists Treated Badly

Elwood Hussey, who resigned last week as mayor of Cave Junction, said Monday that tourists in the city have been unfairly treated by the police chief and city council members for the past two years. Hussey, long-time mayor of the city, was a Medford visitor yesterday.

During a city council meeting Nov. 13, Hussey threw his gavel in the lap of Police Chief Don Holton, saying he wanted "nothing to do with a town run by the chief of police and his family."

Carroll Banks, who defeated Hussey for the mayor's position in the Nov. 6 election, was named acting mayor until his official term begins.

Hussey said Holton and his brother-in-law, the city's only other regular police officer, have been "jumping on tourists" and fining them "as much as $25" for exceeding the speed limit.

He said, "tourist trade is the town's main source of income, but it's getting so bad people are planning their trips to avoid going through Cave Junction." Hussey added that he had home-stayed the town of Cave Junction, incorporated it and served as mayor for most of its period of incorporation.

The former mayor also said

Horse Theft Society Still Going Strong

Ballston Spa, N. Y.—(U.P.)—The Saratoga County Society for the Detection of Horse Thieves was 13 years old on Oct. 28.

While horses aren't as plentiful as they were when the organization itself is "going strong."

The organization maintains its active membership, although there's little need for horse thief detecting these days.
