Italian Police Seeking Answer To Gypsy Queen

Rome—(U.P.)—Who is Matzoska and where can she be found? Is she really such a beautiful, stately gypsy queen, and does she deck herself with the stolen Torlonia jewels at every annual reunion of Italian gypsies? These are questions the Carabinieri, Italy's federal police are trying to answer—for Matzoska is a new lead in a strange robbery case that began 16 years ago. In July, 1940, a month after Italy entered World War II, a Torlonia princess booked a room at the Grand Hotel of Carezza at Lago near Bolzano in northern Italy. The next morning all of her jewels disappeared—a five-string pearl necklace, two large emerald rings, a ruby-studded silver bracelet and a diamond Tiara. Their value was put at about a billion lire ($1,600,000) but there was a much higher historical value, for these jewels were once part of the treasure of the royal house of Spain. The local police could not find out how the thief could have entered the room on the second floor without awakening the princess and without forcing the only door to the room or the French windows opening onto a terrace. Special agents from Rome were equally baffled. A gypsy Because of the war the whole story was hushed up and the identity of the Torlonia princess has been kept a close secret even to this day. But a few months after the robbery the Carabinieri of Ron, near Bolzano, arrested the chief of a gypsy tribe on a vagrancy charge. This tall, handsome gypsy chief called himself Guglielmo Leimberger and during questioning on his activities he boasted that he stole the Torlonia jewels. He even offered to show how he had done it. He was taken to the hotel and let free in the garden. The police did not tell him which had been the room of the princess. Leimberger, according to a police report, darted to a drain pipe, kicked off his sandals, and then clambered up. He reached the balcony of the terrace in 12 seconds. At the French windows, he whipped a loop of piano wire from around his neck, slipped on end through the slight crack where the windows met and lifted the swing latch. Leimberger was arrested at once and questioned for hours as to where he had disposed of the jewels. He assured the police he had not sold them. He said he was willing to pay for his crime because he had gained considerable prestige among the gypsy tribes. He added that it had been pure chance that he had entered the room of the Torlonia princess. A Gypsy Talks Leimberger was put on trial, found guilty and sentenced to eight years in prison. By now it was believed that the Torlonia jewels had been smuggled out of Italy. Nevertheless police were told to be constantly on the alert at gypsy camps for any sight of the

Heating Oil Price Boosted in Portland

Portland—(U.P.)—The price of heating oil was boosted one-cent a gallon here yesterday by one major oil company but distributors said that the price rise would not be passed along to householders unless other companies follow suit and a general price rise is made to adjust costs. The Union Oil company of California revealed the wholesale price increase to its dealers. Company spokesmen said that no increase in the price of gasoline was anticipated, however. The meeting was at the home of Lona Buffington. The next meeting will be at Romelle Yossen's home at 7 p.m. Dec. 12, 1956. Miss Marjory Hatten County 4-H leader visited the club Nov. 14 there were 12 members present.

Emergency Board Has Power of Allocation

Salem—(U.P.)—Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton said today that the State Emergency Board has discretionary power in making allocations from the state emergency fund. Thornton held that while the emergency board may supplement regular biennial appropriations made to state departments and agencies in case of emergency, it is under no legal obligation to supply the emergency money. State officers are responsible for working within the limits of regular appropriations or incurring individual liability, Thornton said.

LOCKED UP BY THIEF

Portland—(U.P.)—A service station attendant was locked in a car trunk last night by a holdup man who fled with about $100. Pete Troy, the 18-year-old attendant, managed to free himself by pressing a button, police said.

Stock List Retreats To 'Critical Level'

New York—(U.P.)—Stocks retreated again today with the average approaching what the chart experts call a "critical level." Tax selling and evening up operations in advance of the Thanksgiving Day holiday brought prices down after an attempt at rally in the early trading. The losses held to modest amounts in most instances. Also, there were many gainers, most of them in the group outside the stocks used to calculate averages.

Ex-Convict Charged With Bank Robbery

Seattle—(U.P.)—FBI agents and Seattle police Tuesday night arrested a former convict and charged him with taking part in the armed robbery of a West Seattle branch bank Monday. The suspect was identified as Raymond William Joseph Clement, 40, who was paroled from McNeil Island Federal penitentiary in 1954 after serving time for interstate transportation of stolen property. The drive-in branch of the People's National bank of Washington was robbed just before the 3 p.m. closing time Monday by two armed robbers.

Cahill in Prison For Second Time

Salem—(U.P.)—Otto Cahill, Delake, was back behind the bars of Oregon State penitentiary today for the second time to serve a one year penitentiary sentence for misappropriating $750 belonging to the Taft-Nel-Scott-DeLake water district. Cahill was imprisoned last June but was released when the State Supreme Court stayed his sentence pending outcome of an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court. The U. S. high court denied his petition two weeks ago. Cahill was convicted in Polk County Circuit court and was fined $1,500 in addition to his prison sentence. He was known on the Oregon coast for charges he made two years ago that vice and corruption were rampant in the Lincoln county area.

Boys Admit Dropping Dirt on Passing Auto

Salem—(U.P.)—Three Keizer boys have admitted they dropped a handful of dirt from the Chemawa overpass onto a car operated by Bernard Mainwaring, publisher of the Salem Capital-Journal. The incident occurred on the Baldock freeway last Saturday. Marion county deputy sheriffs said the windshield of Mainwaring's car was shattered and Mrs. Mainwaring injured by flying glass. The boys, two of them 12 and one 13, were on a Boy Scout hike when they stopped to drop rocks and other objects on passing cars. They were scheduled to appear in juvenile court here today. Detroit—(U.P.)—Thieves have stolen a Christmas tree the city of Detroit planned to set up in front of one of its public buildings. The tree and its roots, which had been loosened in preparation for moving, weighed four tons.

Corvallis May Have Rose Parade Float

Corvallis—(U.P.)—Officials said today that a move to get an entry from the city of Corvallis in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses parade on New Year's day has been started. Rex Smith, former city councilman, said he was informed that entries for the parade closed seven weeks ago but that a place had been reserved for the Pacific Coast Conference entry. Officials said that if Oregon State College did not wish to enter a float in the parade the city of Corvallis could take up the reservation. Cost of constructing a professionally-built float is estimated at between $3,000 and $5,000. ford, or by telephoning him at 2-2974.
