The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Overweight Women Have Normal Glands

Hundreds of fat women keep begging their doctors to find something wrong with their glands, and particularly their thyroid gland. They want to blame their weight on their glands so that then their doctor can give a gland extract that will work a cure—without all the annoyance of a diet. I sympathize with these women, and I wish I could find in them the glandular defect that they want, but I can very rarely succeed. During the 25 years when I was at the Mayo Clinic, I saw thousands of stout women being thoroughly examined by experts on glandular disease. I saw them have estimates made of their basal metabolic rate (a test for thyroid trouble) but practically always the verdict was that the glands were all right and the whole difficulty was with the woman's marvellous appetite. She was hungry all the time, and the reason for this seemed usually to be that she had several ancestors who were greatly overweight.

Dr. Alvarez

I know some people will doubt this, but they ought to see the new roly-poly variety of mice, which inherit their obesity the fat mice breed fat mice. I remember a pleasant, nice-looking, very stout young woman who came to me years ago to be reduced. She weighed 330 pounds. Because my office scale was calibrated only up to 300 pounds, I asked her if, during the first few months while I was getting her weight down, she would mind weighing herself on the drugstore scales across the street from my office. She said with a sad smile, "No, I would prefer not to do that because the minute I get on those scales, everyone nearby rushes over to see what I weigh." I remember also her statement that her mother and her four sisters all weighed over 250 pounds. They all just loved to eat, and the mother loved to have them eating in her house. Hence, often, they gathered at mother's where she had a refrigerator full of fat pork sweetbreads and other rich foods which all of them ate in large amounts. As I remember, after I had taken about 75 pounds off of the woman, her will-power petered out, and she quickly went back up to her old 330 pounds.

What I must keep emphasizing is the folly of a naturally stout person's going on some freak and very narrow and hunger-producing diet. Since a stout person, if he or she is to stay thin, must practically always stick to a reducing diet for life, it must be one that will not be too boring or disgusting. It must contain all the substances that are needed for the maintenance of health. Few people can stand a freak diet for more than a few weeks.

School Official Urges Haircut for Student

Muskegon Heights, Mich. — (U.P.) — A high school superintendent said Monday Robert Pherneton, 16, should get his controversial "Elvis Presley hairdo" cut.

W. R. Booker, superintendent of Muskegon Heights schools, said he had no quarrel with Robert's haircut. But he said he thought the teenager should get his hair cut because publicity connected with the hair style would be "harmful to his future."

Robert has been banned from two high schools near his Washington, Mich., home because he refused to get his hair cut. He decided to apply for admission to the Muskegon Heights High school, 200 miles from his home, after Booker said he thought "the question of a child's hair style should be left to his parents."

Salem — (U.P.) — Gov. Elmo Smith has extended congratulations to Oregon State College and Coach Tommy Prothro for bringing "nationwide attention and distinction to the entire state of Oregon," as the West's Rose Bowl representative.
