Around Hollywood

By ALINE MOSBY

Hollywood — (UPI) — Rossano Brazzi, a new sleepy-eyed matinee idol, has so overwhelmed some American females that they're showering him with gifts from a watch to a Cadillac.

After enjoying European fame from 37 Italian and French films, the handsome Italian actor hit gold in this country after three Hollywood movies made over seas. "Three Coins in a Fountain," "The Barefoot Contessa" and "Summertime."

Brazzi, with an air of bewilderment but pleasure, sat in his Beverly Hills hotel suite today fidgeting a handsome watch inscribed, "To Rossano, Bueno Fortuno (good luck)."

"It came from a fan in Chicago," he said with a shrug. "And when I arrived in New York there was a Cadillac — from a girl in Tulsa, Okla. She was the only child in a very rich family."

Donor Insists
"I said no, of course, but she insisted I keep the car. What else could I do. I have paid her back in many gifts that more than equal the car's price. I have never met her. We have spoken on the telephone about 10 times. Brazzi insists this adulation doesn't do anything to me."

"My career has been very lucky," the ex-actor-turned actor said. "I was starred in my first picture. I received fan letters from Japan, Spain, many countries. Since 'Summertime' I have received 50,000 letters a month from the United States. I had to open an office! It is fantastic."

"I get letters from women inviting me to stay for 15 days, and so forth. One American woman came to Venice to see me."

Second Visit
Rossano is here on his second visit to finish a film made in Germany for Universal-International studio, "Interlude," in which he portrays a married man in love with June Allyson. Next year the tough-talker star does the Eric Pinza role in the movie version of "South Pacific" and, then I hope to settle down in Hollywood for a while."

In person, the 33-year-old Brazzi is the same character he plays to be on the screen, the type who lights your cigarettes, helps you on with your coat and has other good mannerisms that the usual Hollywood actor forgets.

And what does his wife think of women sighing over him? "She enjoys it," laughed Rossano. "We have been married 17 years. She is a wonderful woman."

North Korean Army Alerted Against Revolt

Tokyo — (UPI) — Gen. Lee Heng Kun, chief of staff of the Republic of Korea army, said today the North Korean army has been alerted against a possible Hungarian-type revolt.

He told a news conference that North Korea Communist authorities have restricted travel in an effort to prevent anti-Communist demonstrations.
